La Follette Wins Senate Post Fight

Today

Royalty and Wild Boars.
Zogu in Trouble.
Shooting Indispensable.
Farewell, Charley Boston.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

TODAY the Italian crown prince married the Belgian princess with much of ancient ceremony.

Royalties invited to the wedding have enjoyed a great "shoot" on the King's estate. Each with a gun, royal ladies and gentlemen stood at positions assigned to them. Beaters drove to a clearing wild animals of all sorts—deer, rabbits, wild boar—and as they appeared royalty shot and killed as many as possible.

Hundreds of dead animals were laid out in a row, that royalty might admire its prowess.

Then, as royalty could not eat all or even a tenth of what was killed, the rest went to the poor in Rome.

SIX THOUSAND convicts were set free, that they might rejoice with the rest of Italy.

That also is in accordance with ancient custom.

A new, unpleasant feature is the desire of Italian anarchists, opposed to Mussolini, to do to the royalties what the latter did to the game driven past them.

THE London Daily Mail published a plot to kill the royalties by blowing up the chapel during the marriage ceremony, or mowing them down with machine guns when they left the chapel door.

BELGRADE hears of revolution in Albania, aimed at King Ahmed Ben Zogu, who has been trying to westernize Albania, giving a small imitation of Peter the Great.

Albanians don't want to be westernized, they are attached to ancient habits, which include hunting strangers with big bear hounds.

THE Balkan region is to revolutions what a well-managed incubator is to chickens. They appear quite often and represent one of many European threats of war.

How amusing it would be, after we get into the World Court, and slip gradually into the League of Nations, if the usual Balkan war should break out and Uncle Sam were told "You are rich and haven't lost many men. Go over, supply men and money to deal with this problem."

CONGRESSMAN BEEDY, of Maine, anciently dry, called forth applause in the House of Representatives yesterday, telling Congressmen the Coast Guard must shoot or "we must wipe the Eighteenth Amendment off the statute book."

CONGRESSMAN LA GUARDIA, from New York, told the House that transferring prohibition enforcement from the Treasury to the Department of Justice would ruin that department, "just as the Coast Guard has been corrupted by bribery."

It is a difficult prohibition problem, but American intelligence will find a way to solve it.

One thing is certain, prohibition is NOT coming out of the Constitution.

NEW YORK'S Chinatown will bury Charley Boston, now lying in state in Mulberry street. The funeral will be grand and rather complicated.

Charley Boston, founder of the On Leong Tong, was a good American Christian in New York, but as a Chinese he remained a disciple of Confucius, a believer in that philosophy.

In one way Confucianism and Christianity are not very far apart. Christianity says "do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

Confucius said, hundreds of years before Christianity, "do not do unto others what you would not have them do unto you."

MR. M'MANUS, shot through the back, probably dying, said to police questioning him: "Don't bother me. They got me. I'm through."

McManus, who had three revolvers on his person when shot, was an open enemy of an eminent gangster called "Whoops-a-Daisy" O'Connor, killed last September. Gangster killings are frequent, but recruiting is more rapid than the killing.

WE EXAGGERATE often the wisdom and skill of the ancients.

In South America, many skulls are found, with little pieces cut out, as in modern "trepanning."

Surgeons, offhand, said: "How marvelous that ancient Aztecs, with primitive instruments, could operate on the skull, and, presumably, remove tumors, or other causes of danger."

DR. HERBERT V. WILLIAMS, who teaches medical pathology at the University of Buffalo, returns from Peru and Chile with the real story.

When the South American of ancient days had a bad headache, the "medicine man" said to him: "There are evil spirits in your head; I'll fix that."

He cut off a small round piece of the sufferer's scalp, and took out a round piece of bone, "to let the evil spirit out."

Strange, barbarous, but it is not so long since, in Christian lands, the insane and the epileptic, supposed to be possessed by evil spirits, were often beaten with horrible brutality, even beaten to death, in an effort to discourage the spirits, and drive them out.

LA FOLLETTE WINS CLASH IN SENATE

G. O. P. Leaders Tentatively Agree on Insurgent for Powerful Finance Job

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The acrimonious battle within the Republican ranks of the Senate over committee assignments appeared on the road to peaceful settlement this afternoon with the Insurgents about to win a complete victory.

The olive branch of peace was held out to the insurgents by stalwart Republican leaders through a promise to place Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr., the Wisconsin insurgent, on the Senate Finance Committee. It also appeared entirely probable that a second vacancy on the same committee would go to John Thomas (Rep), of Idaho, who frequently votes with the insurgents.

BALANCE OF POWER

This assignment would give the insurgents the "balance of power" on the powerful Finance Committee. Administration leaders meanwhile indicated that Senator Reed Smoot (Rep.), of Utah, had reconsidered and would not resign his post as chairman of the committee. Smoot had threatened to give up the chairmanship if control of the committee were turned over the Democratic - Insurgent coalition.

The White House meanwhile denied reports that President Hoover was taking any part in the Senate warfare. It was said at the White House that the President did not want the controversy placed upon his doorstep, since it was his policy to "keep hands off."

Umberto, Heir to Throne Of Italy, Takes Princess Of Belgium as His Bride

By GUGLIELMO EMANUEL,

ROME, Jan. 8.—In a magnificent ceremony which carried this twentieth century city back to the feudal splendor of the middle ages, Crown Prince Umberto, the future king of Italy, took his childhood sweetheart as his bride today.

A galaxy of royalty, including kings, queens, princes and princesses from every reigning house of Europe, was present when the heir to the Italian throne was wedded to Princess Marie Jose, beautiful daughter of King Albert and Queen Elizabeth, of Belgium.

CLOSELY GUARDED

But while the princess was being married to the heir to the Italian throne within the palace, there was a sinister note in the streets outside, as heavily armed Fascist guards and plainclothes policemen kept a constant watch to see that no anarchistic attempt was made.

The discovery of a number of plots directed against the princess and members of her family, caused the Italian authorities to take extraordinary precautions to prevent any untoward incident.

HIGHEST SEE CEREMONY

With very few exceptions, the marriage was witnessed only by persons of royal blood. Approximately 100 persons, almost every

POLICE SEEK 2 PEABODY STUDENTS

Orphan Wards of McGovern, Dancers, Gone From Jancey Street Home for 10 Days

Joanna and Betty Parkes, 16-year-old twins, who attended Peabody High School in the daytime and are known to have danced in clubs and cabarets in the city at night, are being sought by police today.

Missing from their home at 1671 Jancey street since December 29, their absence was reported to the Bureau of Missing Persons.

Their parents are dead, and County Commissioner C. C. McGovern is their guardian. The mother of the young twins was formerly a tipstaff in the court house.

Known for their talent as dancers, having taken part in many amateur entertainments, as well as having worked professionally at times, the young dancers are believed to be in the city. Those seeking the twins do not believe the dancers are stage-struck and are trying their luck in New York before the footlights.

The girls' mother, who died last July 4, was Mrs. Elizabeth Parkes. She was attached to Common Pleas Court. The twins have no living relatives.

STATE DENIED DRY TRIAL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—The Supreme Court today dismissed the petition of Attorney General Heltzen, of Rhode Island, asking the court to order Federal Judge Letts to remand the case of Alvah H. Richardson for trial in the state courts. Richardson, a prohibition agent, was charged with conspiracy to steal property of Herbert Cavaca during a dry raid at Tiverton, R. I.

The accused and nine others were indicted after they took 654 cases from Cavaca's premises, which they entered without a search warrant.

The case was transferred to Federal Court on the ground Richardson was entitled to a trial before that tribunal, since his act was committed as an officer of the United States.

Taft Stages Rally, Visitors Barred

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Chief Justice Taft was described as "very comfortable" today at Garfield Hospital.

No visitors were permitted to see him except Mrs. Taft and his associates on the Supreme Court bench, but he was reported to be showing marked improvement in his nervous condition and it was predicted that he would leave the hospital the latter part of this week to go to Asheville, N. C., for a rest.

SNOOK APPEALS TO U. S. COURT

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 8.—(INS.)—The Ohio Supreme Court today denied a rehearing in the case of Dr. James Howard Snook sentenced to be electrocuted in Ohio Penitentiary here January 31.

Snook was convicted of murdering Miss Theora Hix, a co-ed at Ohio State University.

The attorneys for the steel-nerved ex-college professor announced that they will file another petition with the Supreme Court here, asking permission to carry the case to the United States Supreme Court.

Should Chief Justice C. T. Marshall, of the Ohio Supreme Court, refuse the petition, the attorneys, headed by E. O. Ricketts, Columbus, will seek the permision of a United States Supreme Court Justice, as was announced.

Woman Named Murder Jury Foreman

Mrs. Tillie Fierman, saleslady, of 816 Highview street, was chosen foreman of the jury of six men and six women selected in Criminal Court today to try Frank Magliazzo, 40, of Carnegie, for the murder of Santo Ferrainolo, 40, of Homestead.

Magliazzo's defense is that he was talking with Ferrainolo in Montclair street on September 9 when the murderer fired on both of them from an auto.

X-Ray Will Decide Tunney Operation

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—X-ray pictures are to be taken in a few days to determine whether Gene Tunney must undergo an operation for a slight kidney disorder, Billy Gibson, former manager of the retired heavyweight champion, said today. Tunney's ailment is not the result of body blows received in the ring, his former manager declared.

CHARTER TEST SUIT SPEEDED

Measures toward obtaining a decision on the question of re-submitting the Pittsburgh Metropolitan charter to the voters of Allegheny County were taken today when Judge John A. Evans in Common Pleas Court issued an order enjoining the County Commissioners from re-submitting the charter at the general election next November.

County Solicitor W. Heber Dithrich announced that the decision would be taken to the Pennsylvania Supreme Court here in March. The Metropolitan Plan Commission joins with the County Commissioners in the appeal.

Dithrich declared that the suit, which was filed by James Philip O'Conner, a taxpayer, is an amicable action to ge the question of re-submitting the charter before the higher court. Should the Supreme Court sustain the lower tribunal, he said, another vote on the charter could not be taken without amending the charter legislation.

COYNE'S CHOICE HAS LEAD

Senator James J. Coyne seems to have won the fight for the secretaryship of the Civil Service Commission.

The three members of the commission are to meet late this afternoon and, according to present plans, elect Thomas F. Hansberry secretary. Hansberry is sponsored by Coyne. City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley wanted Arthur G. Burgoyne.

The secretaryship is held at present by James Smith, Fifth Ward chairman and political lieutenant of former Councilman James F. Malone.

Rumors of a rift between Mayor Charles H. Kline and Dr. F. H. Frederick, North Side leader who directed his campaign, were ended when the latter accepted the proffer of his post as chairman of the commission.

Darkness had fallen last night before Dr. Frederick accepted the post and took his oath of office. A long series of conferences in which many leaders participated preceded the action. Several hours before taking the oath the Mayor, after a long talk with Frederick, said the latter would not take office that day.

First talk of friction began when Dr. Frederick did not appear Monday to take the oath with other appointees. Both he and the Mayor denied any break, although there were reports that the delay was caused by a difference of opinion as to who should be secretary of the commission.

225-Pound Youth Flees School to Escape Ridicule

The boy said he ran away because he was "bigger than the rest of the kids in the seventh grade at school." Police said he was too big for the detention home and they took him to offices at the county jail.

"I got disgusted," he said, "and decided to go away and work."

INSANE PATIENT KILLS DOCTOR

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Dr. B. E. Miller, staff physician at the Harrisburg State Hospital, was killed today by Moses Sweet, of this city, a patient, who attacked him with a razor. The physician's throat was cut so severely that he died 15 minutes later.

Dr. E. M. Greene, superintendend at the institution, said Dr. Miller had just entered the ward in which Sweet was confined and that the physician had talked with Sweet a few moments before the attack. When Dr. Miller turned to talk to another patient, the superintendent said, Sweet attacked him with the razor.

Greene said Sweet's only explanation of the attack was that Dr. Miller "was keeping me here." Sweet was committed to the hospital last June by a lunacy commission appointed by the Dauphin County Court.

$20 A DAY REPORTED PAID 'SUBSTITUTE' JAIL PRISONER

AUTHORITIES TOLD OF 'SALARY'

Probe of Erie Rum Prisoner's Identity Pushed; Real Name Said to Be Warner

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 8.—The alleged substitute now in Erie jail, serving the term imposed on Joseph Jarvis, rum runner, is to be paid $20, day or $1,200 for the 60-day sentence, authorities are said to have been told.

Federal authorities are investigating the report that the real defendant after being sent to Pittsburgh by Attorney F. Y. Rossiter, hired a substitute to face the court there.

The real name of the man in jail is said to be Joseph Warner. He has refused to talk, referring questioners to Attorney Rossiter.

Attorney Rossiter said he was unaware that the real defendant did not appear before the Federal Court in Pittsburgh.

TAKING AFFIDAVITS

In the absence of United States Attorney Louis E. Graham in Washington, his first assistant, James I. Marsh, is investigating the charge that the prisoner in the Erie jail who, under the name of Joseph Jarvis, is serving a 60-day sentence for rum smuggling is an imposter, "taking the rap" for the real culprit.

Affidavits have been taken from many Federal Court attaches who were connected with the case.

ROSSITER HERE

Attorney Rossiter, of Erie, one of the counsel for Jarvis, came to Pittsburgh today and was in conference for half an hour with Assistant United States Attorney Marsh.

"I made a complete statement of my position in this case to Judge Gibson and the United States attorney's office this morning," said Attorney Rossiter at the William Penn Hotel. "Further than that I do not wish to be quoted."

Attorney Max V. Schoonmaker, a member of the law firm which represented Jarvis and a fellow-defendant when they entered guilty pleas before Judge R. M. Gibson in Federal Court here December 31, said he was amazed at the reported substitution of defendants. If there was any such ruse, he declared, it was perpetrated by the clients and entirely without knowledge of counsel.

LOBBYISTS AIM AT HOOVER AID

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—A letter read today before the Senate Lobby Committee said W. C. D'Arcy, publicity man of the Coca Cola Company, "has a personal method of approach to Hoover and is going to see that Hoover gets full but concise data on the sugar subject."

The reference was contained in a letter written by H. H. Pike, Jr., Wall street sugar broker, to P. A. Staples, of Cuba, who is connected with the Central Hershey Company. Pike, who was on the witness stand, testified his information was received "from some one" but he said he had forgotten who.

Senator Robinson of Indiana, the only regular Republican on the committee, asserted that the letter indicated D'Arcy has "some back stairs way of getting to" the President.

When Pike said he did not know who gave him the information, Robinson shouted:

"Then you ought to have kept quiet, this is the purest kind of lobbying."

"I can tell everything now that I knew then," Pike replied.

Robinson asserted that the reference was unfair to the President, but Pike said he understood all that was meant was that D'Arcy either knew Mr. Hoover or could reach him through a friend.

Pike testified he was directing a fight against a higher duty on sugar made by the Hershey company and the Coca Cola Company. He said the companies had arranged to spend as much as $25,000 each in effort to keep a higher duty from being placed on sugar.

Hensel, Jr., well known throughout Eastern Pennsylvania for his long-range weather predictions and his picturesque newspaper correspondence on topics of the day "Down Lancaster Way," has been nominated as the Democratic candidate for the congressional seat left vacant by the death of W. W. Griest.

Hensel has devoted most of his spare time for years to research into the relations between groundhogs and the weather, and to collecting old fiddles and maintaining the fiddling art.

He is head of the Old Fiddlers' Associations of Chester and Lancaster counties, with 175 members.

The special election takes place January 28, and Hensel will make a 10-day campaign against his close friend, J. Roland Kinzer, the Republican candidate. He confesses high hopes of victory, although Lancaster County has a normal Republican majority of 5,000.

Gives Her Blood To Save Life of Gangster Son

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The mother of a wounded gangster lay beside him on the operating table early today and gave a pint of her blood that he might live.

James McManus, 32, had been shot and possibly fatally wounded in a mysterious street fight. Three guns had been found in his possession. He has long been known to police as a gangster.

His mother, a woman of 50, slight of build, with gray hair, read of the shooting and went to the hospital. Told that a blood transfusion was necessary, she said she was McManus' mother and pleaded that her blood be transfused to the weakening body of her son.

BURGLARS LOOT CHAIN STORES

Three chain stores were robbed early today, police reported. At the P. H. Butler store, 4122 Butler street, robbers gained entrance by smashing a cellar door with a pick. They stole $100 in merchandise.

The cellar door of the Butler store at Hazelwood and Monongahela avenues, was also smashed. Here the visitors took a quantity of merchandise.

Robbers found $150 hidden in the Atlantic and Pacific store, 312 Fifty-fourth street, to which they gained entrance by forcing a rear door.

MEXICO OUSTS CORTES' SCION

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Antonio Aragon Cortes, Prince of Pignatelli, who traces his lineage directly to Hernando Cortes, conqueror of Mexico for sixteenth century Spain, has been ordered deported as a "pernicious foreigner."

The government charges that Pignatelli, whose title is derived from an Italian house dating to the twelfth century, has disposed of family archives, which are of intense historical interest to Mexico, to American millionaires and universities.

The newspaper Excelsior said some of the archives had been found in the library of the United States Congress. Archives which the government announced December 31 had been turned over to it by Pignatelli were said to be only bills and administrative records of the Hospital of Jesus, founded by Cortes, known familiarly as the "Conquistador," in 1526.

The Cortes archives the government charges were disposed of in the United States were said to include an account of the battle in which Cortes and his soldiers were driven from the Azectec city in 1521, which culminated in "La Hoche Triste" or the "Sad Night," the order to the Spaniards to cease sacking the city after its final capture, and documents signed by Charles V of Spain naming Cortes governor and captain general of New Spain and marquis of the valley of Oaxaca.

The government contends that the documents really are the property of Mexico, and that Pignatelli had no right to dispose of them outside the country.

JUDGE CLEARS ACTRESSES IN TAYLOR CASE

Jurist Says No Evidence Implicated Mabel Normand Or Mary Miles Minter

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 8.—The reopened investigation of the murder of William Desmond Taylor has developed no evidence indicating the guilt of Mabel Normand or Mary Miles Minter.

In an exclusive interview today with International News Service, this declaration was made by Superior Court Judge William C. Doran.

He, as chief deputy district attorney following the shooting to death of the motion picture director, February 1, 1922, was in direct charge of the investigation.

DIRECT QUOTATION ASKED

For eight years and in numerous past and present revivals of the Taylor murder mystery, an unnamed "motion picture actress," has been stated in newspaper interviews to have been the slayer of Taylor.

Judge Doran was asked specifically if he could be quoted as saying that the investigation under his direction had exonerated the two former famous film stars, who were close friends of the director.

"NO EVIDENCE"

"I do not feel it would be proper," Judge Doran replied, "for me to say exactly that, for it would be a personal opinion. I will reiterate, however, that there was no evidence to indicate either of these two young women participated in the crime."

Miss Normand is in a sanitarium near Los Angeles in a critical condition from pulmonary trouble, and for several months her death has been expected.

SUSPICION ON SANDS

Miss Minter left her palatial apartments in Los Angeles a week ago and is now in a hospital at Santa Barbara from what is said to be a nervous breakdown.

Judge Doran said he had personally interviewed all suspects in the Taylor case "who could have known anything of importance about it."

"Their statements," he said, "were all preserved in writing. Among those I questioned were Miss Normand, Miss Minter and Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, Miss Minter's mother.

"The evidence was so limited that if some one would come forward and confess the murder, he would have to produce corroborative testimony before his confession could be accepted," said Judge Doran. "He would be compelled to substantiate his confession by other creditable testimony to secure his own confession. And that, in my opinion, would include even William F. Sands."

Sands, believed by some detectives to have been a half-brother of Taylor, acting as his valet and chauffeur, is the one man whom practically every investigator in Los Angeles, believes was the slayer.

Sands disappeared about the time of Taylor's murder.

HOOVER FOR PEACE

In spite of this unofficial statement, it was known on Capitol Hill that the President did wish peace within the Senate Republican ranks. The peace movement was led by Senator Watson (Rep.), of Indiana, the majority leader, who acted after a visit to the White House. He urged the administration senators to keep the party intact, since a split at this time would wreak havoc with the President's legislative program and would tend to smash chances of Republican success at the polls next November.

The Insurgents were ready for peace so long as LaFollette obtained the Finance Committee assignment. At a war conference, they agreed to back LaFollette "to the end," indicating they would carry the fight to the floor of the Senate if the post were denied him by the Republican Committee on Committees.

The Committee on Committees met for two hours this morning and at noon Senator McNary (Rep.), of Oregon, chairman, announced that no final decision had been reached.

"It looks as though we will reach a harmonious settlement all down the line," he added.

Buyer of City Light Plant, No Cash in Bank, Held

OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—J. C. Roberts, alleged swindler, who, Colorado authorities say, bought the Municipal Electric Light plant at Eads, Col., six months ago without any money, was under arrest here today on charges of passing worthless checks.

The arrest interrupted Roberts' plans for a honeymoon with his 17-year-old bride. She was left in Reno, Nev., several days ago when Roberts told her he was coming to Oakland to obtain additional funds.

Mrs. Roberts expressed faith in her husband, despite reports from Eads that Roberts left a wife there, Mrs. Sibyl Madge Roberts, who since has returned to her home at Leachville, Ark.

Colorado officials, who will seek to return Roberts to that state for trial, said he arrived in Eads last August, representing himself as a public utility magnate of Windsor, Ark.

Without the transfer of any money he purchased the electric light plant from the city, officials said.

On a promise of extension of service Roberts was able to collect about $2,500 from prospective customers, it is charged. Needing money to satisfy the city, he left Eads, saying he was going to Chicago to raise runds. He never returned.

Checks made out on an Eads bank in which Roberts had no funds, continued to appear, however, and it was through these checks he was traced to Oakland.

Better Homes Campaign Studied By Wilbur

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—With scrapbook reports of 5,960 communities piled high on his table, Secretary Wilbur today was ready to see America, with his better homes committee, in terms of tin cans cleared from back yards, dilapidated fences torn down, new houses erected, and old houses made new.

The Better Homes in America Committee is one of the mantles that shifted from the broad shoulders of the President to the tall shoulders of his secretary of the interior when Mr. Hoover went into the White House.

But the President's interest in improved small homes is still keen, so much so that he indicated his intention of calling a conference on that subject when the more pressing child health conference had been concluded.

Among those who set aside time today to go through "Better Homes in America" reports and participate in the annual election of directors, were Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the Children's Bureau; Mrs. William Brown Melady, of New York, founder of the movement; James S. Taylor, of the housing division of the Bureau of Standards, and John M. Gries, chief of the Division of Public Construction, Department of Commerce.

GALE SWEEPING SLEET EAST

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Over the favorite domain of King Winter—the vast region of the great plains and the eastern slopes of the Rocky Mountains—there rolled today the drum-like beat of a gigantic sleet storm with which the burly old monarch heralded re-establishment of his rule.

From the Dakotas and Montana to the Gulf, and from the Mississippi River to the Continental Divide, sleet, snow and rain drove south and eastward on the wings of a northern gale, while the mercury dropped out of sight in the bulbs of thermometers not built to register such temperatures as prevailed.

In Glasgow, Mont., the official thermometer broke yesterday after recording 40 degrees below zero.

Air lines, buses, railroads and all forms of vehicular traffic were forced to mighty struggles, and in many cases failed to keep moving.

Transcontinental Air Transport plane schedules were canceled here yesterday and there was little prospect of resuming flight today, as snow and sleet whirled over the city. National Air Transport planes departed for Chicago, but an incoming plane was forced down at Rushville, Mo., and arrived four hours late. A Western Air Express plane, westbound, was forced down at Wichita last night. The eastbound plane from Los Angeles was canceled.

POLICE SEEK 2 AFTER HOLDUP

Search was made by East End police today for two masked bandits who last night held up five men in a garage of John Ferenzo, rear of 134 South Beatty street, and obtained $201.

Ferenzio and his brother, James Ferenzio, who live over the garage; Charles Betzler, of 115 Whitfield street; Mike Dallas, of North Beatty street, and a man whose name was not learned by police, were lined against a wall. The robbers took $190 from John Ferenzio, $10 from his brother and $1 from Betzler. The pair escaped in an automobile which they had parked near the garage.

L. Cohen, of 1823 Webster avenue, was attacked by a gang of young men at South Twenty-eighth street and Carey way and robbed of $55 late yesterday. Cohen, a huckster, was dragged from his wagon and knocked down, he told police.

NORTH SIDERS AFTER HALL

To urge building the proposed $6,000,000 County Town Hall on the Anderson site, at the north end of the Ninth Street Bridge, a mass meeting will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in North Side Carnegie Library.

The meeting is under the auspices of the Business Men's Association of the East North Side. It was called after a meeting of the organization at which a resolution was adopted suggesting that the Town Hall be built on this site.

The Anderson site is the one for which F. J. Osterling, architect, has designed a building. It is also one of the alternative sites sponsored by the Allegheny County Town Hall Association which favors any location in or near the "Golden Triangle" and is opposing the Schenley site selected by the County Planning Commission.

Lindy Likes Plane, Pays $17,825 for It

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today became the owner of a specially built low-winged monoplane which he has been testing here for the last two days. Monday Mrs. Lindbergh accompanied her husband on his first flight in the plane, but yesterday she remained on the ground while the flying colonel put the craft through further tests. At the end of his test, which included speed, landing and various banking trials, Lindbergh paid the Detroit Aircraft Corporation with a check for $17,825 and the plane was his.

ACORD, BROKE, PLEADS CASE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Art Acord, one-time star of Wild West films, was back on the stamping grounds of moviedom "dead broke" and eager to convince the law he is not "trying to be crooked." Acord was brought from Nogales, Ariz., to answer a charge of possession of liquor.

Acord said that when he was arrested a few weeks ago a lawyer told him he could get him out of jail and get him bail for $100. When Acord paid the $100 and got out of jail he said the lawyer told him to go to Mexico, where he had a motion picture job, and that when his case came up he (the lawyer) would appear for him, and that Acord could mail the fine.

The court wanted him to appear in person, however, and when he failed to do so a search was initiated which resulted in his arrest.

Pilot Makes 19 Outside Loops, Likes It

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 8.—AP.)—Sensations experienced in putting an airplane through 19 outside loops were described here today by J. G. (Tex) Rankin, Portland aviator, as "not really unpleasant."

Rankin performed the feat yesterday, bettering by six the record set at the Cleveland air races last year.

The outside loop, which, until comparatively recently was considered almost impossible, is made with the pilot on the outside of the circle, which the plane follows.

COUNCIL VOTES CITY FUNDS

Council today approved a temporary appropriation bill to provide funds for the January and February requirements, pending passage of a final appropriation bill.

This will avoid delays in salary and other payments if the appropriation bill is not passed by January 15, when payments are due under the new fiscal year.

CLERK JOB DISCUSSED

A motion by Chairman English, of finance committee, called for a conference with City Controller Daniel Winters for the employment of a temporary clerk at $400 a month to assist in arranging the budget. The name of H. S. Breitenstein, former employe of the controller's office, was suggested.

Breitenstein was released by former Controller Henry O. Evans after Evans had uncovered alleged irregularities in dealings between employes of his office and the American Reduction Company, holder of the city garbage removal contract.

On recommendation of Dr. J. S. Hammers, superintendent of Mayview, the wage account for the coal mine at the institution was cut from $77,000 to $73,000. The salary account was cut from $379,650 and $349,984.

GARBAGE FUND DEFICIT

The Health Department forwarded a communication stating that the deficit of $125,000 in the garbage disposal account as reported by Mayor Kline would be actually $148,000. The difference will be provided in the 1930 appropriation.

Charles Anderson developed that officials of former borough of Overbrook had increased the payroll from eight to 40 employes after the election for annexation.

Mayor Kline was asked to submit a payroll setup of the actual needs for safety, works and health departments.

GAS RATE JUMP O. K. EXPECTED

It was indicated today the 20 per cent increase in gas rate asked by the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company will be approved.

The action was apparent today at a Public Service Commission hearing, when a "gentleman's agreement," entered into three years ago and bearing on the outcome of the City of Pittsburgh cases against the Peoples Natural Gas Company and the Equitable Gas Company, was cited.

The agreement was made between the City of Pittsburgh and Borough of Ben Avon, according to J. S. Christy, gas company attorney.

The Peoples and Equitable companies were granted the increase about a year ago. The hearings today were continued until January 22 to allow Assistant City Solicitor Charles P. Lang two weeks to present the matter before Council. Twenty-seven appeals were filed in the original protest six years ago.

MOTHER OF SON'S WIFE 2ND BRIDE

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8.—Julius Rosenwald, Chicago financier and philanthropist, and Mrs. Adele Goodkind, of St. Paul, mother of Mrs. J. Lessing Rosenwald, were married shortly before 10 a. m. today at the J. Lessing Rosenwald home, "The Meadows," in Abington, a suburb of Philadelphia.

Children of the bride and bridegroom by their first marriages were the only guests and witnesses to the ceremony, which was performed by Judge Horace Stein, of Philadelphia. The philanthropist and his bride wore ordinary street clothes.

WIFE DIED IN MAY

Rosenwald, head of Sears, Roebuck & Co., had been a widower since the death of Mrs. Augusta Nusbaum Rosenwald last May. He is 67.

The former Mrs. Goodkind is the mother of the wife of his eldest son. She is 60 and the widow of Benjamin Goodkind, who died in 1919.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Stern, of New Orleans; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Stern, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. David Levy, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. William Rosenwald, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. J. Lessing Rosenwald; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Goodkind, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Felsenthal, of Chicago.

TO SAIL ON HONEYMOON

Immediately after the ceremony the bride and bridegroom sat at the head of the table for a wedding breakfast with their children.

Later today the entire family will go to New York by special train, and Mr. and Mrs. Rosenwald will sail tonight on the liner Saturnia on a honeymoon cruise to Egypt.

The wedding, it was announced, had been delayed some weeks because of pressing work in which Julius Rosenwald was engaged.

With former President Coolidge and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, he supervised the distribution of $6,000,000 of the Conrad Hubert estate to various colleges and social welfare institutions throughout the nation.

"VERY LONELY"

Mr. Rosenwald and Mrs. Goodkind both went to Philadelphia from New York yesterday and remained at the J. Lessing Rosenwald home pending the ceremony today.

There had been rumors of the wedding for some time, but no confirmation could be obtained until today, when Mrs. Max Adler, a sister of Mr. Rosenwald, gave confirmation in Chicago.

Mrs. Adler said her brother had been "a very lonely man of late, and very tired, mainly because of the pressure laid upon him by philanthropic work."

"Mrs. Goodkind is a woman who can give Mr. Rosenwald the kind of companionship he needs," she added. "She has the same sort of ideals he has."

THIEF STEALS $50,000 JEWELS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Jewelry and gems valued at $50,000 were taken by a "tip-toe" burglar from the dressing table in the bedroom of Mrs. Samuel M. Nicholson, wife of the multi-millionaire banker and manufacturer, today as she slept.

Twenty-two pieces of jewelry were taken. They included a pearl necklace valued at $3,000 and a ring with two precious stones valued at $2,500.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson attended the annual ball of the Women's Republican Club last evening. They retired about 1 a. m. today. They were awakened by the butler who discovered that a window of the servant's dining room on the first floor had been pried open.

Mrs. Nicholson told police she had left her jewelry on a dressing table in her bedroom.

2 Absent, Donohoe Inquest Delayed

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 8.—Failure of Mrs. Helen Hess and Tony Bell to respond to calls issued by Coroner S. A. Baltz unexpectedly interrupted the inquest, started today, to determine the killer of John Donohoe, who was "taken for a ride" last July 31. The sheriff was sent out for Mrs. Hess and an effort is being made to locate Bell.

Miss Helen Eckert, financee of thet slain man, testified that Donohoe expressed fear of violence and that he told her on numerous occasions that he believed he was being "framed." Mrs. May Collins, at whose home Donohoe lived for five years, told of a telephone call he received a few hours before he was killed.

Edible Clay and Road Cost County Debate Topics

Director of County Public Works Norman F. Brown was the subject of a barrage of questions concerning the engineering work on the Saw Mill Run boulevard, the discussion finally branching off to a discussion of the edibility of "butter scotch clay at the commissioners' meeting yesterday. Brown had asked for $68,000 for additional work on the road at Woodruff avenue.

It seems that the original estimate on the work provided for a certain slope in the excavation but this was not sufficient to keep the hillside from coalescing and slipping.

"I don't know anything about engineering but I do know something about this butter scotch clay," declared Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, "and it will run like mush."

"I never heard of butterscotch clay," said Brown.

"Well, that's what you call it and you can eat it. I did when I was a kid," replied the commissioner.

"This is not just a question of having some money left and spending it," asked Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong.

"Oh, no, it must be sloped back, it has fallen away," assured Brown.

The commissioners authorized the expenditure with McGovern voting "No" because he said "I am opposed to these jobs where a contractor gets the job because he is the lowest bidder and it ultimately costs just as much as if the high bidder got it."

WIDE RIFT OVER YOUNG PLAN

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND,
Universal Service Special Cable.

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, Jan. 8.—The second Hague reparations conference, the chief purpose of which is finally to adopt the Young plan formulated in Paris, came to a standstill with a considerable jolt.

At the end of the fourth day of deliberations, no progress whatever could be recorded upon the main points at issue.

After their secret afternoon meeting, the delegations which comprise the big six—Germany, France, Great Britain, Belgium, Italy and Japan—it was decided to adjourn until Thursday to see if the deadlock could be broken and the wheels set moving again by private negotiations and references back to the cabinets in London, Paris, Berlin, Rome, Brussels and Tokio.

"We have not progressed one step further on the main points under consideration," said Dr. Paul Moldenhauer, German minister of finance, coming out of the session.

Dramatics began to enter into the conference, which at times became sharp and heated, as French and Belgian, and sometimes British determination clashed hard with German immovability.

Dr. Moldenhauer's unexpected resistance, which won for him the name of the "Snowden of the second conference," brought about answers with such sharp vigor and such displays of temperament that exception to his talk was taken by the other delegates, and Dr. Julius Curtius, German foreign minister, was asked to keep Moldenhauer a little more calm.

Rio Swelters In Grip of Worst Heat Wave

RIO JANEIRO, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The heat wave which descended in the middle of December still is holding this city breathless day after day, with the temperature steadily between 92 and 97 degrees in the shade.

Evenings everyone sits on the sidewalks in front of the houses to get a breath of air while during the day the beaches are thronged. Some suburbs were short of water while at Nictheroy, across the bay, householders brought seawater from the harbor for their household tasks. The nights have brought no relief and sleep has been almost impossible.

Local weather observers said that such a long heat spell at this season unbroken by rain had never been recorded.

Spanish Painter Comes to Pittsburgh

ALFONSO GROSSO BEFORE HIS CANVAS OF A SPANISH GYPSY LAD, TO BE EXHIBITED

RED RIOT BALKS BERLIN COUNCIL

BERLIN, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—As a sequel to the clashes between police and Communists on the streets here, the first meeting of the City Council this year was brought to an abrupt close last night when a row started by Communists, which precluded transaction of further business. The departing bourgeois councillors were threatened by the Communist members.

The clash with the police earlier came during extensive funeral processions for two well-known Communists. Two officers were injured and the crowd finally was dispersed by the police firing pistol shots into the air. Of 52 persons taken to police headquarters only 10 were arrested.

Grosso, Spanish Painter, Shows Work Here

By PENELOPE REDD

Hundreds of Spanish dancers have come to the United States. Thousands of American painters have gone to Spain. But American dancers go to Spain to dance, as infrequently as Spanish painters come to America to paint. Alfonso Grooso is the first Spanish painter to come to Pittsburgh in a generation, other than Anglada who made a brief official visit.

Grosso, the Sevillian, fulfills in his person the romantic temperament projected in his paintings already known through the Carnegie Internationals.

Penelope Redd

Alert, dignified, handsome and youthful, he brings a portrait of King Alfonso and other of his countrymen. A sad gypsy youth, a gay gypsy dancer, a Spanish noblewoman disguised effectively in Andalusian country costume, and his calmly beautiful mother, emphasizes Grosso's Iberianism. Of his native city, Grosso brings, "The Bullfight," the "Giralda at Night," the patio of his studio, and the churches of Seville.

Sixty churches, there are in my city. Not gloomy as are so many of the northern Spanish churches. The sunlight enriches the poor ones and makes the rich ones more magnificent. Every church is a museum of the baroque period when art in Spain burgeoned," said Grosso enthusiastically.

STUDIED AT SEVILLE

He attended the art school which Murillo founded at Seville in the seventeenth century. "Not Murillo, but Zurburan, the ascetic Sevillian painter, is to my taste in religious painting," remarked Grosso. "However, Murillo in the genre of Seville painted the everyday life of the people much as I see it today. In Seville, the majority of the young art students follow, not the Christian art of painting, but the more characteristic Sevillian art of ceramics, established by the Moors."

Questioned about the traveling scholarship which he won by composition, Grosso said that he had only spent one year in foreign lands returning to Spain where he preferred to spend his remaining two years of study.

Grosso's contact with American residents of Seville and his representation at the Carnegie Internationals impelled him to undertake a visit to the United States. In 1926, he came to New York, then traveled to Florida. Desiring to see more of the United States, he has returned to exhibit in New York, Washington and Pittsburgh.

His superb study of the interior of the chapel of the "Hospital of Charity" in Seville is in the Hotel Schenley. His painting in the Luxembourg Museum at Paris represents the poor church of "Santa Marina." He is also represented in the Spanish national collections of modern art.

IS PORTRAIT PAINTER

Pittsburgh will see Grosso for the first time in the role of portrait painter. He is one of the few Spanish painters to have portrayed King Alfonso. His friendship with the Marquis of Nervion, a favorite companion of the King, led to his opportunity to paint the King. The Marquis of Nervion also commissioned Grosso to paint the King and Queen with their retinue at the opening of the Seville Exposition last spring.

Grosso has also painted portraits of the Marquise of Nervion, the Marquise of Gamero Civico, and of Senora Perer de Gurman, a grande dame of Seville.

Alfonso Grosso shows his adaptibility in painting the less poised and more nervous American type of woman. He joins the company of international portraitists in his presentations of Miss Harriet Allen, the daughter of Senator Henry J. Allen, of Kansas; of Miss Aida Iglehardt, from New York, and of Miss Mary Rhodes, of Pittsburgh.

Grosso's exhibition of Spanish and American portraits, Sevillian types, and Spanish festivals, will be on public view at the Wunderly galleries from January 15 to January 25.

MASONTOWN IN DEADLOCK

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 8.—Masontown Borough council held two separate meetings in an effort to effect reorganization, but failed.

John Messmore, as president of the old council, called the body to meet in the sick room of Dr. John P. Mechem, but the faction headed by Burgess W. D. Lewis held that Messmore had no authority to call a meeting any place other than the council room.

Messmore, together with Martin Birosh and W. G. Howard met in Dr. Mechem's room while Burgess Lewis and Joseph Ferary, R. K. Wright and Dr. S. E. Peters met in the council chambers. Neither had a quorum.

WILKINS FINDS LINES CORRECT

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS,
Commander of the Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic Expedition.

DECEPTION ISLAND, Antarctica, Jan. 8.—(Via S. S. Melville and KUP, San Francisco Examiner Wireless Station)—Back again in the steamship Melville's comfortable steam-heated cabin, we have had time to work out courses and angles and to plot approximately our discoveries on what heretofore had been blank spaces on the Antarctic charts.

Flying at 120 miles an hour, one cannot pretend to fix positions as accurately as would a city engineer. And even the camera's keen, yet flattering lens eye shows only flat lines where nothing but unspecked whiteness confronts it.

It would require stereoscopic vision to discern from an altitude the outlines of the snow-blanketed great southland.

SURVEYS CORRECT

Our preliminary surveys are but reconnaisances, yet we feel sure that in general they are fairly correct. The north coast of Charcot Land we fixed five miles south of its charted position, a remarkable coincidence considering that Charcot plotted it from about 50 miles away.

Charcot's three peaks are conspicuous. Between Martine peak the coastline trends southeastward. The most easterly point is about Longitude 73:30, Latitude 71:20.

The cape where the coast turns more south, then west, is rounded, but conspicuous enough to deserve a name, and I suggest that it be named Cape Mawson after my contemporary fellow-countryman explorer, Sir Douglas Mawson.

HONORS BYRD

The conspicuous cape at Latitude 70, Longitude 76, west of Monique peak, I would like to be known as Cape Byrd, in honor of my friend, now Rear-Admiral Byrd, who successfully carried on in both North and South.

The land south to 80 degrees West Longitude, bordering on Hearst land, which was discovered last year, might well, I think, be included in that group.

Two islands, one small and one large, which we sighted eastward at about Longitude 70, and below Latitude 70, are possibly the most westerly of a group of uncertain number named Finley Islands last year in honor of Dr. Finley, president of the American Geographic Society.

Another small island, charted in more northerly latitudes during our trip were located by Captain Shannon of the steamer William Scoresby and his navigator, Lieut. Milward. It will rightly be recorded in the report of the British colonial office's discovery committee.

Barbers of Spain Seek Whiskers To Shave

MADRID, Jan. 8 (AP.)—The barbers of Spain are wondering whether Spaniards have gone in for long hair, or are simply trying to save money on their barber shop bills.

One way or the other business is poor for the trade. So poor, in fact, that many barbers are idle. The Madrid Association of Barber Shop Employes has sent out circulars to their brothers in the provinces, including the barber of Seville, advising them to stay where they are instead of coming to the capital in search of hair to cut and whiskers to shave.

Royal Pair Married Under Guard

one bearing regal titles, sat in crimson-draped pews in the historic chapel during the ceremony, while in the reception rooms of the palace adjoining, thousands of invited guests, including high state and ecclesiastical officials and diplomats, waited to greet the newly-wedded couple.

VISIT POPE LATE

Within a few hours the prince and his bride made a call upon Pope Pius in the Vatican and received from him the apostolic benediction.

The pontiff presented the prince with a beautiful tapestry and the future queen of Italy with a golden rosary.

So great was the crush of happy spectators in the streets of Rome that the prince and princess were late for their call upon the pontiff, and the princess apologized to the Pope for coming to see him dressed as she had been for the marriage, since she had not had time to change. The pontiff reassured her and said that he was glad to see her looking so charming in her nuptial attire.

The marriage was performed by Cardinal Maffi, archbishop, of Pisa, whom all Italy remembers as having pronounced a Te Deum in the Cathedral of Pisa when the Armistice was proclaimed. At that time he lauded the virtues of Italy's "Soldier King," an unusual tribute from a church dignitary at a time when the Vatican and the Italian state were still at seemingly hopeless odds.

In accordance with the ancient custom, the princes of the Italian House of Savoy flanked the bride and bridegroom, holding over their heads an exquisite veil of white and gold lace. It was the same which had been used when King Victor Emmanuel of Italy was married to Princess Helena of Montenegro on October 24, 1896.

VELVET GOWN

Princess Marie Jose's bridal gown was a masterpiece of the couturier's art. It was fashioned of cream-white velvet, woven especially for this purpose by skilled weavers of Como, Italy, and was trimmed with antique Brussels lace.

The gown carried a 23-foot train, embroidered with ermine and lined with white and silver moire. Although the Princess is known to be a devotee of the short skirt for informal wear, she bowed to ancient royal tradition on this occasion, and the lace-trimmed skirt of her gown dropped to her ankles.

The Prince was dressed in military uniform. Towering in height over his consort and the other members of his family, the Prince of Piedmont presen an impressive spectacle.

The wedding procession started punctually from the royal apartments of the palace. It was led by Count Macchi Di Cellere, court master of ceremony, who was followed by all the aides de camp of the Italian and foreign sovereigns and princes.

Then came the high authorities of the royal household, including Senator Count Mattioli-Pasqualini, minister of the royal house, and the 93-year-old Duke Borea D'Olmo, grand master of ceremonies. Then came the gentlemen of the court, and directly behind them the galaxy of royalty.

Princess Marie Jose walked slowly to the chapel on the arm of her father, King Albert, of the Belgians. A murmur of approval was heard among the brilliant throngs which packed the reception rooms and corridors through which the procession passed as the Princess went by, smiling demurely and blushing slightly, as befits a charming bride.

PAGES CARRY TRAIN

The Princess' mantle and train were borne by pages, selected from among the children of ladies and gentlemen-in-waiting to the Italian sovereigns.

Directly behind the Princess and her father walked Prince Umberto, with his mother, Queen Helena, on his arm. King Victor Emmanuel escorted the bride's mother, Queen Elizabeth.

Among the others taking part in the procession were Princess Mafalda, of Hesse, and her husband; Princess Giovanna and Princess Maria, daughters of the Italian sovereigns; the Duke and Duchess of Aosta, the Duke and Duchess of Apulia, the Duke of Spoleto, the Count of Turin, the Duke of Abruzzi, Prince Thomas of Genoa, the Prince of Udine, the Duke of Pistoia, Princess Maria Bona and her husband, Prince Conrad Wittelsbach, of Bavaria; the Prince of Bergamo, the Duke of Ancona, the Duke of York, representing the King of England; the Prince of Montenegro, brother of the Italian Queen.

Premier Benito Mussolini and Signor Federzoni, president of the Italian Senate, also marched in the procession, each bearing on his arm a lady of high rank. The court ladies-in-waiting followed, all wearing on their breast blue ribbons emblazoned with the royal cipher in diamonds.

The guests took their places in the crimson-covered pews at each side of the altar. In addition to those mentioned before, there were present King Boris, of Bulgaria and his brother, Grand Duke Cyril and sister, Princess Eudoxia; Prince William, representing the King of Sweden, the Grand Duchess of Luxembourg, the Prince of Monaco, former King Manuel, of Portugal; Prince Paul, representing King Alexander, of Jugoslavia; Augusta Victoria, once queen of Portugal, and Marshal Petain, representing the President of France.

Of this imposing number, the nine Italian royal princes and three princesses participated in the ceremonies. These, together with the parents of the bride and bridegroom, knelt near them during the ceremony.

The Prince and Princess took their places before purple velvet kneeling stools directly before the altar, while on their left knelt the King and Queen of Italy, and on their right the King and Queen of the Belgians.

Immediately following the religious wedding, Cardinal Maffi read to the Crown Prince and Princess the customary formula of the Italian civil marriage.

"Your Royal Highness, Prince of Piedmont," the Cardinal said, "are you willing to take her Royal Highness, the Princess Marie Jose of Belgium, as your wife?"

The Crown Prince turned to his father, who made a gesture of assent, since at a marriage of sons of kings it is necessary that the father's consent be given in view of all. Then in a clear voice the Italian Prince replied:

"I do."

The question was then addressed to Princess Marie. She, too, turned to her father, and King Albert nodded with the irresistible smile which has made him the most popular sovereign of Europe. The Princess turned to the Cardinal and answered:

"I do."

With these words, the Princess renounced her Belgian birthrights and became the consort of the future Italian King. As the word left her mouth, cannon were fired to inform the populace that the marriage had taken place, and the myriad church-bells throughout the Eternal City tolled forth the news.

The crowd which had been waiting patiently outside the palace burst into wild cheering, and clamored incessantly for a glimpse of their new crown princess. The newlyweds were forced by the shouts of the populace to desert for a few minutes the brilliant reception in order to make an appearance on a balcony of the royal palace, accompanied by the sovereigns of Italy and of Belgium.

Countless thousands who swarmed in the square below the balcony accorded the princess a welcome almost without parallel in recent history. She and the prince were forced to bow repeatedly in answer to the cheering throngs, whose shouts of joy were punctuated by the national anthems of Italy and Belgium, played by massed bands in the square.

FIRE IN HOTEL LAID TO PLOT

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Fire believed to have been of incendiary origin last night destroyed the Hotel Ambassador on Ocean avenue. The loss was estimated at $150,000. It was the third disastrous hotel fire in this vicinity within the past seven weeks. Title to the hotel had just been taken by the Sedgewick Manor Realty Corporation of New York City.

Fire Chief Charles Harvey said the blaze was of incendiary origin. He said when he arrived at the scene the hotel was on fire in a number of different places.

Isaac Volozick, former owner, said he sold the building to the Sedgewick company Monday.

Pioneer Weather Forecaster Dies

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Believed to have been engaged in weather forecasting longer than any other man in the United States, Henry J. Cox, 66, meteorologist of the United States Weather Bureau in Chicago, died last night after a two-year illness. Cox has been a "weather man" since 1885, when, soon after his graduation from Harvard, he enlisted in the Army and was immediately assigned to the weather bureau, at that time a branch of the Signal Corps.

Freeze Halts Army's Winter Test Flight

SELFRIDGE FIELD, MT. CLEMENS, Mich., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—A freezing rain that lasted throughout the night and covered the planes with a coating of ice delayed the takeoff this morning of the 21 planes set for the Army's winter flying test flight from Spokane, Wash., and return.

Maj. Ralph Royce, flight commander, inspected the planes shortly after daybreak and announced he would call the pilots together later to determine when a takeoff would be made.

$75,000 ASKED IN 3 SUITS

Three damage suits totaling $75,000 were begun in Common Pleas Court by as many individuals, against Schulte United, Inc., for injuries received when they fell down a worn-out stairway at 6015 Penn avenue.

The complainants are Mrs. Louise Cooney and her 8-months-old baby, Catherine, and Mrs. Theresia Harding. They allege that they tripped and fell December 10 last. Mrs. Cooney suffered injuries to her back, head and hips and her daughter concussion of the brain. The child was cut and its face disfigured. Mrs. Harding injured her spine and left knee.

Mrs. Cooney is joined in the suit by her husband, William Cooney and Mrs. Harding by her husband, Charles Harding.

ASK CONSTABLE IN 31ST WARD

A petition asking for the appointment of Clarence Walker as constable in the Thirty-first Ward has been filed in Quarter Sessions Court by Attorney Ralph Smith, former secretary of the Malone for Mayor campaign committee. Walker would take the place of George Baquet, who had been elected constable of Hays Borough. When Hays became a part of the city, Baquet was elected alderman of the Thirty-first Ward, leaving a vacancy for constable. Judge Harry H. Rowand set January 17 for a hearing.

Jug Under Auto, But Driver Is Freed

GREENVILLE, Pa., Jan. 8.—A gallon jug of liquor, placed under a machine driven by Milt Newman, of Youngstown, while he was in a restaurant, caused police to arrest him.

Newman denied possession of the jug and he was released.

The jug was disclosed when the driver of another car pushed Newman's machine several feet in attempting to pull from the parking space.

NEW STEEL LINK DISCUSSED

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 8.—Opinion seems to be veering in industrial circles regarding possible inclusion of Youngstown Sheet and Tube in Republic Steel consolidation, and now favors a separate grouping to at first include Sheet and Tube and Inland, and later probably Bethlehem Steel and Jones & Laughlin, of Pittsburgh.

It is considered likely that Sheet and Tube will not, at any rate, be included with a Republic merger for a considerable time, at least.

Influential interests in the Sheet and Tube company are at present opposed to such a combination.

ACCUSES GANG, SHOT TO DEATH

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Jean B. Hassewer, 50, who recently brought complaints against a gang of alleged extortionists, including Sergt. William Begley, local policeman, on charges of fraud, was found shot to death in his cabinet shop here last night.

Mrs. Marie Ballard, Hassewer's secretary, discovered the body when she went to the shop after the victim failed to fulfill a dinner engagement. The body, with two bullet wounds in the head, was found sprawled on the office floor.

Hassewer had charged that Sergt. Begley and five other men compelled him to purchase a "$1,200 money-making machine," later extorting another $700 from him under threats of denouncing him as a counterfeiter.

Pat Roche, chief investigator of the state's attorney's office, said he was convinced Hassewer paid with his life for exposing the fraud scheme.

He immediately issued orders for the arrest of Begley, who is at liberty on bond, and the latter's alleged accomplices, J. E. Dewey, Howard Ward, Joseph Yerkes and John Dobbins, all of Paris, Ill., and Harry Robinson, of Keokuk, Ia.

SPANISH FLOOD DAMAGE HEAVY

GERONA, Spain, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The Ter and Onar rivers, swollen to raging torrents by the heavy rains of the past few days, have carried away trees and farm buildings. A 30-ton rock was dislodged and flung against the columns of a railway bridge at Pileres, breaking the structure in two.

A switch-guard who ran up the track was able to flag the express from France. A reward has been requested for the guard because of his alertness and prompt action.

Temperatures in Spain have been subnormal since the first of the year. Storms have been raging in the northern section. Snow has been falling since Sunday in the Guadarrama district and the mountains are covered with drifts.

BYERS CLOSES WARREN MILL

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 8.—A. M. Byers Company, of Pittsburgh, has abandoned operations at the Warren plant of the American Puddled Iron Corporation, Youngstown, where it produced mechanically puddled iron by the Aston process for several years. Operations will be transferred to the company's new plant at Ambridge, Pa., which, however, is not yet ready for production.

The Youngstown Steel Company, a subsidiary of American Puddled Iron, plans to continue production at Warren, under special arrangement with the Byers Company, producing Aston-made iron.

Youngstown Iron and Steel interests have invested over $2,000,000 in the Warren plant.

PAIR IN LAUNCH RESCUED

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Adrift for 30 hours in their open launch, Mr. and Mrs. John Lovett, of Tampa, were rescued from Tampa Bay late yesterday by coast guardsmen, who were notified of the couple's predicament by operators of the Goodyear blimp Vigilant, which sighted the craft while circling the bay.

The couple said they set out from Tampa for a camping trip at the mouth of Little Manatee River. Their motor stopped and shortly afterward the boat sprang a leak.

While his wife watched for a passing boat, Lovett bailed for several hours before finally succeeding in stopping the leak with rags. They drifted helplessly all last night and without being noticed by bay craft.

Circling high in the air on a pleasure flight over the bay, Pilot Charles E. Brannigan, of the blimp, sighted the drifting launch and nosed the airship down to within a few feet of the water.

Lovett shouted his predicament to Brannigan and immediately the pilot soared off to the Coast Guard station. A patrol boat was dispatched to the scene and towed the drifting launch ashore.

Lovett said he and his wife had not suffered from their experience, except for fatigue from bailing.

Apartment 'Peeper' Suspect Fined $10

Accused of loitering and peeping in the neighborhood of apartments at 10 and 12 East North avenue, James Booth, 34, of Munhall, was fined $10 by Magistrate Ray Schneider in North Side police court today. Booth explained that he had gone to the apartment with a companion and was trying to find his way out.

Runs Half Mile For Aid; Saves Home

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 8.—Running over snow covered fields for half a mile, Francis Neigly, 40, Derry Township farmer, summoned aid in time to save his two-story frame dwelling from destruction by fire.

When Neigly discovered the fire, he ran to the home of William Hughes where the latter and several others returned with a fire extinguisher in time to extinguish the blaze.

ARCTIC STORM HALTS RESCUE

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—One of the worst storms of the season held the Arctic region in its grip today and frustrated all attempts to continue the search for Capt. T. M. (Pat) Reid, commander of the Eielson relief expedition, who has been missing since Saturday.

Continued silence from the Norton Bay region, where Reid and his two mechanics, James Hutchinson and William Hughes, disappeared in a snowstorm, increased apprehension among the searching party here.

The storm, accompanied by relatively high temperatures, created an extremely low visibility, which has made flying impossible, members of the rescue crew reported.

Reports from North Cape, Siberia, where Lieut. Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland disappeared November 9, said that a fierce blizzard was raging between there and Nome.

The airplane which Reid piloted was lost after it started for Nome, Alaska, to join in the search for Eielson. A plane piloted by Matt Niemenen left at the same time and was forced to land at Nulato, when the snow became too dense.

HOOVER GUEST AT 2 FETES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The Washington social whirl last night claimed President Hoover for its own.

Two affairs, a dinner and a reception, lured the Chief Executive from the White House to which with a single exception, his social activities have been confined, ever since his inauguration.

The first of these was the dinner given annually for the President by the Vice-President, held this year in Mr. Curtis' spacious suite at the Mayflower Hotel with his sister, Mrs. Dolly Curtis Gann, as hostess.

The second was the annual reception of the Congressional Club, an organization whose membership is confined to the wives of members of the House and Senate.

Mrs. Hoover was unable to go. A persistent cold which has troubled her since Christmas kept her indoors, upon the advice of the White House physician, although the ailment is not considered of a serious nature.

Custom in such cases decrees that the President's partner be the ranking lady of the Cabinet circle. Mrs. Stimson, wife of the Secretary of State, was out of town, and so the honor fell to Mrs. Patrick Hurley, whose husband, the Secretary of War, is the most recent addition to the President's official family.

Looting of W. Va. Bank Vault Foiled

SHEPHERDSTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—An attempt of burglars to bore their way through a Farmers' Bank vault in which $15,000 lay was frustrated here early today when two Negroes, returning home from a funeral, saw an automobile and two men at the side of the bank and turned a flashlight on them.

The two "lookout" men fired twice and the shots aroused the neighborhood. The burglars escaped.

'HEX' SILENCES DEATH QUIZ

READING, Pa., Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Investigators trying to solve the mystery surrounding the burning to death in her home here of Mrs. Harry McDonald, mother of two small children, found themselves confronted today with the fear and refusal to talk of the usual believers in "black magic," witchcraft and hexerei. All persons questioned have refused to make any definite statement, police say, through fear of being "hexed."

An amazing labyrinth and coterie of believers in the so-called black arts, spells, hexes and the powers of evil have been uncovered in the city by the investigators. These very followers or believers in pow-wow and hex doctors have placed a blank wall in front of the probers.

Mrs. McDonald, 32, was found horribly burned, by her husband, an employe in the Reading Railroad shops here, when he returned from work early Monday. She was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where she died.

Neighbors said the woman had been going to a hex doctor for treatment and police said apparently the woman had smeared her body with an inflammable liquid which became ignited in some manner. Two small children were the only known persons in the home when the tragedy occurred.

M'DONALD SEES PARLEY VICTORY

LOSSIEMOUTH, Scotland, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Prime Minister MacDonald, who is returning to London this afternoon after a fortnight's holiday in his Scottish home, is full of optimism over the prospects for the five-power naval disarmament conference.

He said that arrangements were well advanced for the meeting, which opens on January 21.

"I feel very optimistic about the prospect. There is no use in shouting before it is over. There are one or two difficult matters arising out of the different conditions of the countries, but I see no reason for fearing that an arrangement will not be reached."

Asked whether the government proposed limiting the size of battleships to the tonnage of the earliest dreadnought models, the Prime Minister replied:

"We shall deal with every class of warship from dreadnought to submarine. Things are very well advanced. We know that there are little points where we have not agreed, but none of them are of such great importance than an agreement is impossible."

Real Estate

Officers of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board were installed for a second term yesterday following the noon luncheon of the board at the William Penn Hotel. James W. Cree, Jr., president of the board, declared that the major aim of the organization for the year is a careful study of the local tax problem and co-operation with public officials in attempting to find methods of tax reduction. The board has plans for a large property owners' organization.

The Real Estate Company of Pittsburgh, represented by J. E. Tierney, leased for the American LaFrance Republic Sales Company to R. Kennington a three-story garage on 60x160 feet at 5847 Center avenue for a used car sales room. TWO MEN SLAIN, WOMAN SHOT

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 8 (INS)—Ending a wild automobile ride through a fashionable residential section here early today, an infuriated ex-husband shot his former wife and killed her husband and himself.

The dead were George Mason and J. E. Barnett. The wounded woman was Mrs. George Mason.

Witnesses, according to the police, saw two automobiles suddenly swerve to a halt at an intersection and heard three shots ring out. When they reached the scene Mason was found dead in his automobile and his wife lay on the floor of the machine with a bullet through her head.

Barnett, said to have done the shooting, was lying in the street, dead from a wound in the heart.

Search for a blonde woman who shot and killed Paul on the Butler road, near New Castle, 10 days ago from an automobile in which her young son and two male accomplices also were riding has been unavailing. Mrs. Irene Schroeder, formerly of Benwood, W. Va., is being sought.

Auto Show Contest

$300 Cash Prizes—200 Show Tickets

(The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, co-operating with the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association, is donating these prizes for the best answers and slogans).

HERE is the Sun-Telegraph Automobile Puzzle Contest, based on passenger cars to be exhibited in the forthcoming annual Automobile Show to be held at Motor Square Garden, January 18 to 25, inclusive.

Three separate puzzle pictures, in each of which will be concealed the name of an automobile and in each of which the artist has made at least 10 errors will be published for 10 days in the daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Readers of the Sun-Telegraph are invited to find the names of the automobiles and five of the artists' 10 errors in each puzzle and send them to the Auto Show Contest Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, 612 Grant street, together with a good slogan, descriptive of the Automobile Show. YOU MUST SEND ALL YOUR ANSWERS AT THE SAME TIME IN ONE ENVELOPE AT THE COMPLETION OF THE CONTEST. ACCURACY, NEATNESS AND CLEVERNESS OF SLOGAN WILL BE CONSIDERED IN AWARDING THE PRIZES.

Prizes totaling $300 in gold and 200 show tickets are to be awarded the winners in the contest. Be sure to put your name and address with the slogan at the top of the first page. Your name should appear on each page you send in.

The final pictures will be published January 16. All answers must be in the hands of the Auto Show Contest Editor no later than noon, Friday, January 17. The winners will be announced at the Automobile Show, Monday evening, January 20 and in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph on January 21.

At various times during the contest, the names of passenger cars to be exhibited at the show will be printed. From this list contestants are to pick the names of the cars.

CONTESTANTS ARE NOT TO SEND IN ANSWERS UNTIL THE FINAL PUZZLE PICTURES HAVE BEEN PRINTED. THEN SEND THEM IN ALL TOGETHER AT THE SAME TIME.

WRITE THE NAMES OF CARS ON SEPARATE SHEETS OF PAPER WITH THE MISTAKES OF EACH PICTURE IN THE ORDER IN WHICH THE PICTURES APPEARED.

Your slogan must accompany the answers. It may be either rhyme or prose and should be applicable to the Automobile Show. It must be short, snappy and clever. Remember it is an important factor in deciding the winners.

Any person is eligible to enter this contest, except employes of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph or members of their families.

LIST OF PRIZES

For the best list of correct auto names, discovered mistakes, and the cleverest slogan, the following prizes will be awarded:

First prize—$100 in gold.
Second prize—$50 in gold.
Third prize—$25 in gold.
Five prizes of $10 each, $50 in gold.
Fifteen prizes of $5 each, $75 in gold.

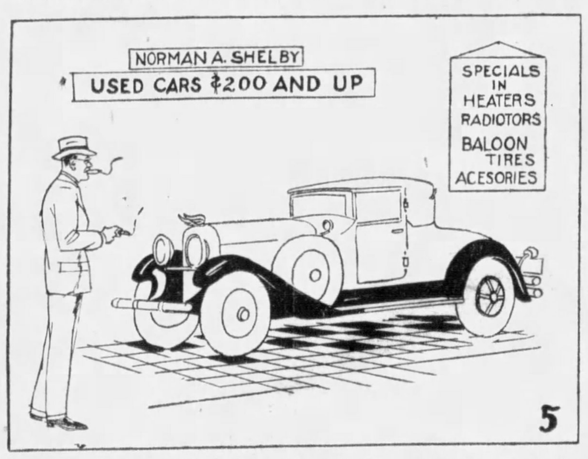
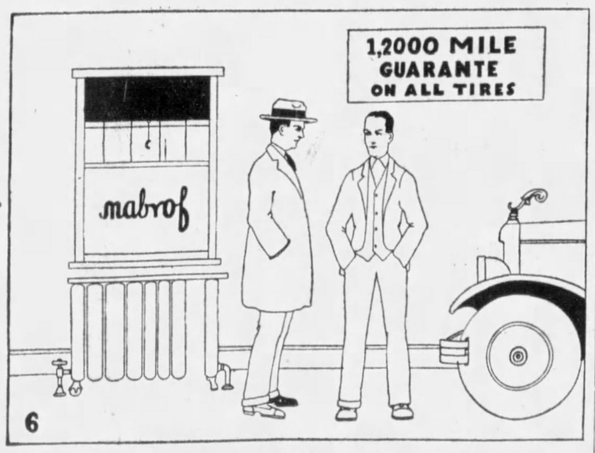
There are 10 mistakes that the artist intentionally placed in this picture. See if you can find five of them. These five will be regarded as correct—if you also find the name of a make of automobile. The word BANKERS supplies that—but you will have to substitute a new letter for every other letter in the word BANKERS.



This picture contains 10 mistakes that were made purposely by the artist. Try to find just five of them. Your list to be complete need contain only five of these mistakes. In addition you must discover the name of a make of automobile. You will find it concealed in the name of the man that appears on the sign.



There are 10 mistakes in this picture that were put there purposely by the artist. Try to find any five of the 10 mistakes and list them. You need only five in your list. At the same time you must discover the name of a make of automobile somewhere about the picture. Careful attention to details will enable you to do it.

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

HEY, MILT!

Eighteen hours of continuous broadcasting will be instituted by WCAE Saturday to test the new transmitter and studio equipment. Motors will hum from 6:45 a. m. until 1 a. m. the next day.

Amy H. Weaver, Pittsburgh Lumbermen's Club, wants us to settle an argument. "Is the Seth Parker sketch over WCAE on Thursday night of Pittsburgh or New York origin?" she asks. Also, "Please settle a dispute about the identity of Seth Parker and Matt Thompkins. Are they the same?"

The "Seth Parker Singing School" originates in the WCAE studio in Pittsburgh, but the "Seth Parker Meeting" on Sunday originates in the WEAF studio in New York. Your other questions have been answered before in this column, so we shall send you a personal letter.

SKIS NEXT?

The snowshoe has come into its own as a piece of radio equipment. Following the most severe snow storm in 10 years in Chicago recently, the operators at WENR requisitioned snowshoes for traveling about the antenna towers.

Do you know that Walter G. Myers at KDKA and Walter E. Myers at WBZA also have the same nickname of "Hap"?

In its attempt to procure a better wavelength assignment from the Federal Radio Commission, WJAS has been represented in Washington the last few days by Robert Thompson, H. J. Brennan and several congressmen. The commission is investigating radio conditions in Pittsburgh at the request of Sun-Telegraph readers.

Don Bestor will not be on the air u 'til some time next week, KDKA officials announced today. Broadcasting equipment is being transferred from the Urban room to Pirate Hall in the William Penn Hotel.

Cousin Lora is on the hospital list with an injured hand.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Allan Machesney, WCAE chief engineer, fell asleep in the club room of the train bringing him back from Washington, D. C. But when the chef sounded the chimes for breakfast he jumped to his feet and looked about for some one to make a time announcement. Machesney's boss, J. L. Kaufman, vouches for this yarn.

"THEY SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES," says FANNIE BRICE
Star of Musical Comedy and the "Talkies"

"YOU will never need to make a 'Talkie' about Nestlé's Milk Chocolate Bars—they speak for themselves. Everywhere—they are a good part of a good show. Often, at rehearsals, when there is no time for meals, I can keep working for hours on the nourishment contained in a single Nestlé's Milk Chocolate Bar."

Millions of the smooth chocolate bars are eaten every week at the theatre, the "movies", and sporting events of every kind. The delicious, satisfying flavor of Nestlé's Milk Chocolate Bars comes from sweet, whole milk with all the cream left in — blended with the smoothest, finest chocolate.

Try one today; look for the clean, silvery wrapper. 5¢ and 10¢ . . . red-lettered for plain bars . . . blue-lettered for scrunchy almond bars.

her to America. Here her fame increases. A young American boy falls violently in love with her but the actress treats him merely as a boy. His uncle, worried about the boy's condition, goes to the French woman in hope of breaking the boy's admiration. He also wants to return the nephew to the girl to whom he is affianced. The uncle and the beautiful French woman meet and the story fades into a dream of shell-torn France.

Provisions in her hold have been preserved by the cold and he finds all the comforts essential to living in this vast sea desert.

"Dangers of a Great City."

The pitfalls and dangers of New York City in 1894 will be depicted in a dramatic presentation, "Dangers of a Great City."

Diamond smugglers, thieves, gunplay and romance mingle freely in this thrilling "mellerdrammer" which will be entirely enacted in the New York studios of Columbia, under the supervision of Harry C. Browne and Phil Maher.

Most of the action of the drama is laid in a prominent jewelry store on Manhattan Island early in 1894. Other scenes of exciting moments are Mother Thunder's Lodging House on the Bowery, the Thieves' Den and Panther's House.

The Foundation of Life—A Pure Blood Stream!

The blood makes the rounds of the body—visits every part of it—hundreds of times each day. It carries the elements of nutrition to all the tissues and nerves to enable them to do their work. But suppose from some cause or another the blood is lacking in one or more of the nutritive elements—that it is not clean and pure. You can readily see that some organ will not get the right food supply—and disease will be the result. If you are nervous, irritable, discouraged—food doesn't agree with you—in fact nothing seems quite right—LOOK TO YOUR LIFE STREAM. An examination now may prevent serious illness.

Aided by the latest scientific equipment and laboratory devices, our experienced physicians make the correct diagnosis and prescribe the right treatment. We do not DRUG THE STOMACH and we do not guess at your trouble.

BLOOD CELL PROTEIN SERUM (copyright 1909), administered directly into the blood stream, is building up, purifying and strengthening the Life Streams of hundreds of people.

Book on Blood Cell Intelligence Free

We are successfully treating High Blood Pressure, Rheumatism, Asthma, Diabetes, Anemia, Nervous and Stomach Troubles, Debility, Kidney Trouble, Psoriasis, Eczema, Acne, Varicose Veins.

THROUGH CANAL PLAN URGED TO OHIOANS

Pittsburghers Ask Aid for Route to Lake Against 'Dead-End' in Youngstown

While the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce reaffirms its support of a canal from the Ohio River to the Great Lakes, representatives of the business interests of Youngstown and the Mahoning Valley are debating whether they will work for a waterway to the lakes or a short "dead-end" channel from the Ohio to the Youngstown basin.

In the office of the Lake Erie and Ohio River Canal Board yesterday Chairman William H. Stevenson invited officers of the Beaver, Shenango and Mahoning River Improvement Association to join with Pittsburgh in urging the government to build a canal all the way to the lakes.

URGES CO-OPERATION

"A canal to the lakes will be of economic value to Youngstown and the whole country as well as to Pittsburgh," he said. "This will give you cheaper coal and an outlet to the Ohio and at the same time benefit Pittsburgh and the Northwest by obtaining lower rates for lake cargo coal. We have worked together in good faith with Ohio on this project for 20 years and we desire to carry on this friendly task."

After the olive branch was held out to the Youngstown canal boosters they said that they would be obliged to go back to their organizations and consult the people before giving a definite answer. T. J. Bray, president, and A. W. Chilton, secretary, of the Beaver, Shenango and Mahoning Improvement Association, were the spokesmen.

ANSWER AWAITED

Pittsburgh's formal answer to the "dead-end" canal project sponsored by Senator David A. Reed's bill for a preliminary survey of the Beaver, Shenango and Mahoning rivers is up to the Chamber of Commerce. The matter is in the hands of the rivers and harbors committee of the chamber and no action has been reported.

In the meantime the business interests of Youngstown, New Castle and Beaver Valley towns are declared to be working industriously for their project.

Relief for COLDS for all the family

USE VAPEX BEFORE THE "FAMILY CIRCLE" BECOMES A "RING OF COLDS"

A BOTTLE of Vapex in your medicine cabinet is health insurance for every member of the family. Vapex frequently stops a cold before it has a chance to grip you. It always brings swift, sure relief. Opens the nose, eases breathing, checks the spread of infection. The vapor is delightfully cool and pleasant. . . . Vapex is safe to use at all times. A drop on the handkerchief in the mornings—a drop at each end of the pillow-case in the evenings—and you breathe your colds away. It is especially convenient for children because it is so easy to use and so satisfying in results.

Repeated tests have given striking proofs of the efficacy of Vapex. In England, where it was discovered during the World War, the vapor from the ingredients now in Vapex is credited with keeping chemists in a famous laboratory immune to influenza.

Tests in one of the foremost laboratories in this country establish with certainty that Vapex kills the germs of common colds. . . . It is always unwise to buy substitutes for Vapex. They do not give the same results. Vapex has proved itself by three years of international success.

Ask your druggist for V-A-P-E-X in the trim white box with the green triangle. The $1 bottle contains fifty applications. Each application keeps its strength all day or all night. And all it costs is 2c. A dollar spent for Vapex may save your family many dollars and much distress by checking all colds before they become menacing. . . . E. LOVEJOY — By Beatrice BURTON

Tales of Pittsburgh

by WILLIAM PFARR

THERE were four of them, brothers, and their passion was gambling. They had made lots of money and their chief enjoyment was to bet you a thousand that the next fellow to turn the corner would be a Negro—or, at the correct odds, an Armenian.

Their education had stopped at the second grade because they weren't interested in the date of the Civil War and the fact that x equals the unknown quantity. However, a kind of remorse overtook them after some years and they decided they needed book-learning.

In their Pittsburgh home they set up a classroom and hired a tutor, a Harvard gentleman who exercised the broad a and neglected his h's.

They paid him well to overlook the humiliation of teaching even the a-b-c's to adults, and he was a patient instructor.

He had to start at the beginning, for the spelling of the simplest words had eluded his pupils.

On this particular occasion he had written DOG on the blackboard.

"Mr. Soandso," he asked one of his pupils, "what have I written?"

Mr. Soandso was nonplussed. He didn't even realize that the same problem had been put to him the previous day. He started to answer, stuttered and stopped. His face was an embarrassed red.

A fellow-pupil who was just as unlearned came to his aid and whispered in schoolboy fashion that the written word was CAT.

"Cat," announced Mr. Soandso with pride and relief.

"No, No!" The instructor exhibited exasperation. "The word is dog."

"Well, now," offered Mr. Soandso, "I'll betcha fifty bucks it's cat."

She came to Pittsburgh because an old friend with whom she had lost contact had preceded her here. In Scotland her husband had mistreated her. She opened a rooming house, saved passage money and left Scotland suddenly.

In Pittsburgh she couldn't find her friend. One day she was walking in a residential street when she noticed that the curtains of a particular house were hung in what we can describe only as the old-country style. She knocked on the door and was greeted by her friend of past years.

AN EAST END school teacher missed her classes one day because of illness. When she returned the following day an admiring pupil anxiously grabbed her left hand and examined the third finger critically. Finding the finger still unadorned, she exclaimed, "I'm glad! I though you were going to leave us."

Police, Firemen Sent to Overbrook

The first step toward reorganizing the police and fire departments of Overbrook, which became a part of Pittsburgh January 1, was to be taken today when 10 policemen and 12 firemen of the former borough were to be sworn in as city employes. Patrolman Howard P. Lavelle, of Carrick station, has been assigned as acting sergeant of Overbrook police. He will aid Fred Zeiler, chief of the former borough, in mapping out beats for patrolmen. Until the fire bureau organizes the old borough company, Engine Company No. 23, of Carrick, will answer alarms in that district.

Will Rogers Says:

WINSLOW, Ariz., Jan. 8.

SENATOR GRUNDY is receiving Republican praise for not voting on a tariff measure that he himself was interested in. His side was already nine ahead. I will withhold my applause till I see what he does when a tie comes up.

Mr. Hoover is sending a Democratic and a Republican senator to the London show. Would have sent a Progressive, but it's a peace conference.

The Hearst papers are against prohibition, but in favor of enforcement. While Senator Borah is for prohibition, but against enforcement.

Yours,
WILL.

P. S.—Say, did you know it rained in Los Angeles? The floods is what drove me over here. WILL.

43 VOTE BOARDS HELD M'ARDLE VOTE CHEATS

Muldowney's Election Stands Even if Court Upholds Council Race Fraud Charge

Former Councilman P. J. McArdle will be able to enjoy only a moral victory if the alleged primary election frauds charged by Attorney Ward Bonsall, chairman of the special recount board, are recognized by court and revised figures show him a winner over Councilman M. J. Muldowney.

To have been effective in giving McArdle the nomination it would have been necessary to have gotten court action before the November elections.

FACE PROSECUTION

Forty-three election boards face prosecution, however, as a result of Bonsall's report charging McArdle should have been nominated, which was filed yesterday with Prothonotary John Vogt.

"Ample fraud has been discovered in 43 of the 76 boxes to justify prosecution against such individuals as may have committed it or were responsible for it," the report states.

With Attorney A. M. Imbrie, chairman of the Allegheny County Bar Association's election frauds committee, Bonsall today presented his report to Judge James R. Macfarlane. Later Imbrie suggested that the full bench of the court should take action against "those responsible for these frauds."

M'ARDLE'S VIEWS

fraud and brings about the prosecution and conviction of those who perpetrated the crime will be an important moral victory for the people," declared McArdle today. "Any action that will assure honest elections is of far more importance than the winning or losing of a seat in Council."

Attorney John A. Witt, in behalf of himself and Attorney Paul B. McKeever, Bonsall's colleagues on the recout board, today issued the following statement:

"We were appointed by the court to perform certain duties as members of the recent board in accordance with the provisions of the act of April 23, 1927. This we have done and our reports, which are filed in the prothonotary's office of Allegheny County, speak for themselves."

BOND RETURN URGED

Bonsall's report recommends the return of bond money posted in all but five of the 83 cases where the vote was questioned. The report cites fraud which can be used as the basis of prosecution if the district attorney sees fit to investigate and prosecute.

Bonsall has been keeping copies of records of the recount board which were not included in the report filed. Yesterday he was served with a court order, directing him to turn over all these records to the County Bureau of Elections. The order was obtained by Attorneys Witt and McKeever.

FOLLOWS CUSTOM

Attorney Bonsall could offer no explanation as to why the other members of the board had taken the action, as he said it has been customary in the past for the recount board to keep its own records, the case being a matter for the courts and not for the elections bureau.

In his report filed with the prothonotary, Bonsall assailed the actions of his two colleagues, declaring that they had refused to report similarity of ballot markings in more than 50 cases, filing separate reports attacking his stand in reporting these to the court.

This report shows that McArdle received 984 votes more than Muldowney by the recount, while by record of the primary return board, Muldowney defeated McArdle by 396 votes. These figures would give McArdle the nomination by 588 votes over his opponent.

Attorney B. Robert Averbach, counsel for Muldowney, described Bonsall's statement as "ridiculous."

"Bonsall in his report threw out ballots and in the next breath admitted he was not an expert on fraudulent ballots. He contradicts himself throughout the report, which, to my mind, is more that of a layman's than a lawyer's."

FUNDS LACKING IN VOTE QUIZ

The elections fraud committee of the Allegheny County Bar Association is still purging names from the lists in the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes, but there is no money in the fund to pay the purgers.

This developed yesterday when Attorney Arthur M. Scully appeared before the County Commissioners to determine the attitude of the commissioners toward the work of the committee.

The $10,000 appropriation for the committee died December 31. Two stenographers and two attorneys still engaged in the work have not been paid since December 19.

A motion was adopted to continue the employes at work until January 15 and pay them for the work already done. The work will probably be discontinued at that time.

Display Conference At Horne's Delayed

A study of displays in the Joseph Horne store which was to have opened today by managers connected with the Retail Research Association, has been postponed until tomorrow, due to the death of Joseph B. Shea, president of the board of the Horne Company. A number of out-of-town delegates arrived in the city last night.

The group will be greeted tomorrow by A. H. Burchfield, Sr., president of the company. Speakers will be T. Robb of the Association; C. F. Goettman of Hornes' and H. H. Tarrasch of St. Louis. The sessions will close with a general discussion Friday.

WED NINE DAYS, HELD ON FRAUD

Earl Stark, 24, of 6209 Station street, bridegroom of nine days, pleaded guilty to embezzling $700 postal funds while a mail clerk on the United States battleship Utah, before a United States commissioner today.

Judge Nelson McVicar ordered the case transferred to Boston and set bail at $5,000.

According to Postoffice Inspector J. W. Hunt, of Boston, who came here to take Stark back to that city, Stark was a member of the Marine Corps, assigned to duty on the Utah when he absconded in 1924.

The honeymoon of Stark and his bride, formerly Miss Ethel Root, waitress in an East Liberty restaurant, was interrupted by his arrest last week. They were married in Wellsburg, W. Va., New Year's Eve.

Mellon Resignation As Planner Accepted

The resignation of R. B. Mellon, as chairman of the County Planning Commission, was accepted by the County Commissioners on motion of Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong.

Mellon tendered his resignation by letter about two months ago. He has not attended any of the recent meetings of the board which resulted in their selection of the Schenley Farms site for the proposed $6,000,000 Town Hall. No reason was given for his resignation.

2 Held in Theft Of Telephone Pole Lead

Two youths who admitted, police say, cutting 150 feet of lead tubing from telephone poles, throwing more than 50 telephones out of service, were ordered held for investigation by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court today.

They gave their names as Stanley Vicinski, 18, of Jane street, and John Wableski, 18, of Forbes street. The youths melted the lead and sold it, according to police.

Police also said the boys admitted taking brass railings from the Humbolt and Morse public schools on the South Side.

STOP NIGHT BUS TESTING

Testing huge busses on Manchester boulevard around midnight will stop, officials of the Greyhound Bus Company told Magistrate Ray Schneider in North Side Police Court today. The promise secured the release of Simon Hein, 25, of Allison Park, and Jesse Holiday, Negro, 28, of 621 Wesley street, drivers, who were arrested last night.

The arrests followed the sending of 52 complaints to Supt. P. P. Walsh by residents near the boulevard and Reedsdale street, who said the screech of brakes and clamor or horns disturbed their slumbers. The drivers explained that the busses had to be tested before they could start out on long trips, and sometimes the testing occurred at night.

FORD REOPENS PLANT HERE

The Ford assembly plant in Baum boulevard, shut down a month ago, has been reopened, Manager G. F. Nelson announced today. More than 700 men have already been hired to assemble the cars and that number will be increased gradually to 1,500, Mr. Nelson said. Old employes of the plant have been given the preference in the rehiring.

Hundreds of men seeking work have congregated outside the plant each morning this week. Many of them have been attracted by the wage increase announced by Mr Ford two months ago, Mr. Nelson said.

Marriage of Lovejoy and Nicholson Is a Leap In the Dark

CHAPTER I.

THIS is the story of just what is happening to a great many young people in this country these days.

It is the story of what happened to Lovejoy and Tom Nicholson.

But it might just as easily be the story of the Browns across the hall or the Smiths across the street. Or of any of the other young couples who fall in love—and who get married on a shoe-string and a Grand Passion.

It might be your story.

The parlor of the minister's house was small and shabby. The minister himself was small and shabby. So was his gray-haired wife, and so were his tall meek-looking daughters who had come in to witness a wedding.

But there certainly was nothing shabby about the two young people who had come there that gray November afternoon to be married.

They were bright with happiness and love and youth. And both of them were more than good to look at.

The man was tall and straight, broad-shouldered and black-haired.

The girl was little and slender, and all the light in the room seemed to be shining from her gray eyes as she looked up at the man beside her. She was holding his hand tightly.

"I, Thomas, take thee, Lovejoy—" droned the voice of the minister.

The man repeated the words steadily: "I, Thomas, take thee, Lovejoy—"

"To have and to hold," prompted the minister.

"To have and to hold," Tom Nicholson repeated solemnly.

How solemn it all was, thought Lovejoy, listening to the slow, impressive, beautiful words. The words that were making her Tom Nicholson's wife.

"Till Death us do part," said the minister.

"Till Death us do part," . . . That was a queer, old-fashioned promise to make these days, Lovejoy went on thinking.

People didn't have to stay married "till Death us do part" any more if they didn't feel like it, she said to herself.

If she stopped loving Tom she certainly was not going to live with him until the end of time. What was the big idea in living with a person who no longer thrilled you or made you happy?

"But then, Tom will probably always thrill me," she told herself, "and always make me happy."

It wasn't as if she were marrying him on the spur of the moment. She had known him for two years—the two most thrilling and happy years of her life. Surely by this time there could be no doubt that she and Tom were meant for each other. None at all.

Her little fingers tightened on his as the minister turned to her:

"I, Lovejoy, take thee, Thomas—"

"I, Lovejoy, take thee, Thomas," she repeated in a loud, unnatural voice that made Tom suddenly think of a little girl saying her prayers.

Her gray eyes, with their long lashes curling up, were wide as a child's eyes as she watched him slip the wedding ring over her finger.

"—With this ring I thee wed—and with all my worldly goods I thee endow—" he was saying.

She could have giggled at that, nervous as she was.

For outside in the bleak, narrow street were almost all of Tom's worldly goods. A small black roadster and an army blanket that served him as an automobile robe.

Everything else that belonged to him—clothes and books and three golf sticks—were already in the tiny furnished flat that was waiting for them across the town on Hewlett street.

They had rented it three weeks before when the marriage idea had taken its first real grip on them.

"We shouldn't even look at it," Lovejoy had said when Tom showed her the ad in the paper. "You know we won't be able to get married until you're making heaps more money, Tom. We mustn't even think of it seriously."

But they had thought of it.

And that very afternoon had rented it.

It had three rooms and a breakfast nook, and furnished with brand new carpets and gay painted furniture. There was bed-linen and table linen and flat silver in the pale-green cupboards. There was a shining new electric coffee pot and a small white electric ice box. There were deep chairs and a wide green davenport in the living room. There was a small smoking table and a built-in bookcase. There was even a picture of Mona Lisa over the mantel, for decoration. . . And all of this luxury and comfort for $70 a month!

"It makes getting married as easy as falling off a log," Tom had said. "No furniture to buy, no linens to buy, nothing to buy—we can just move in with our clothes and be gloriously happy together."

Then and there he had written a check for the first month's rent and the place was theirs.

But it had taken him three weeks to persuade Lovejoy to marry him.

Even now no one knew that they were married and had a home all ready and waiting for them.

"Where do we go from here?" Lovejoy asked when they were coming out of the minister's

ILLEGAL ENTRY TO U. S. REVIVED

Federal Judge Nelson McVicar today ordered Nick Mercuri, of McKeesport, remanded to government authorities to face a charge of illegal entrance to the country.

Mercuri had won his freedom when he contended that the charge had not been brought until he was in the country five years, the dead-line for such charges, but government authorities pointed out today that a warrant on the charge had been issued in Florida before the expiration.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Will long skirts make the flappers less flippant and more formally graceful.

HANNAH VANZANDT, East End, deputy collector: "The flippant flapper will still be flippant even though she does wear long skirts. I believe that the average flapper will wear short dresses during the day and long dresses in the evening. She will, therefore, be both graceful and flippant. A person's dress can't change his or her characteristics."

Miss Vanzandt.

JEAN PACE, East End, stenographer: "I'm no student of mental reactions caused by dress, but I do believe that the long dress makes a woman appear graceful. As for the flapper being less flippant, I can't say. The longer dresses may prevent a few girls from leaping about like jumping jacks, for there is some danger of entangling their feet in the long skirt."

Miss Pace.

QUEENIE GORDON, downtown: "Long skirts will neither make the woman (nobody uses that trite term 'flapper' any more) less flippant or formally graceful. Can't a girl act alive even if she does wear a long dress? Of course she can. As for being formally graceful—well, I had better stop before I say a lot of mean things about some girls I know who couldn't look graceful if they were dressed in peacock feathers."

Miss Gordon.

MARIE EMRICK, East End, collector: "You are assuming that the flapper will wear long skirts, but did it ever occur to you that she might refuse to don them? I believe that the long dress does make one appear graceful. The word 'flippant' has a hazy meaning. If you mean pert or chic I would say that the long skirt has nothing to do with detracting from a girl's pertness or chicness."

Miss Emrick.

MARY D. ISLER, Mt. Washington, secretary: "Why all the worry about what the long dress will do to the so-called flapper? Who cares if it makes her less flippant and more formally graceful? Does a person become graceful just by wearing a long skirt? That's silly on the face of it. It's just as silly to think that a dress will alter a person's conduct or actions."

Miss Isler.

MARY MORRISON, Mt. Washington, stenographer: "The long dress for evening wear tends to make the wearer appear more graceful than she really is. The sweep and swirl of the full skirt is responsible. Whether it will cause a girl to lose flippancy I can't say. In my opinion the modern girl will not wear the long dress during working hours. She will, therefore, retain the flippant and become formally graceful in the evening.

Miss Morrison.

Ex-Bettis Field Owner Wins Pilot's License

Flying alone 'cross country from Issoudun Field, near Akron, to Bettis Field, D. Barr Peat, former owner and manager of Bettis Field, and now vice president of Issoudun, Mid-City Airport, has finally secured his pilots license at his old home field in Pittsburgh.

For six years it has been the ambition of Barr's life to get that license. But something has always intervened. A conspicuous figure in aeronautics since the very early days, his flair for the development end of the industry has left him little time for real flying.

D. Barr Peat

Then, too, he listened to the advice of Major Thomas Lanphier, who said—

"Don't take up flying yourself Barr or you'll become so fascinated with it that you won't want to keep on with the development end. And we need good executives more than we need good fliers right now."

So Barr stayed out of the air. He went to Akron and on the old post road between that city and Cleveland he established a new airport which is fast taking its place among the foremost flying fields in the country today. "Issoudun," named after the famous old Issoudun of World War days in France, is humming with activity. A 30-ship hangar is under construction. A flying school under competent instructors is in full swing. And no matter how wintry the weather there are always one or two planes in the air.

One morning recently Peat quietly took off in one of the planes for Bettis Field. In an hour and a half he had arrived at his destination. After receiving his license from O. D. Murphy he took off again for Washington, Pa., where he transacted some business and at nightfall he was back in Akron.

He didn't say much but he wore a happy grin. And the new little home of the Peats out at Cuyahoga Falls was a cheerful place that night.

Eddie Cantor Rises to Say:

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8.—A. Laurence Lowell, president of Harvard University, advocates an earlier entrance age for college students and a cutting down to one game a year of intercollegiate sports.

Even at the risk of being spanked, I must disagree with the eminent educator.

First of all, the students who hang around the stage door now are much too youthful and if we get 'em any younger our girls will be accused of "robbing the cradle," which is the worst thing that can be said about a Ziegfeld girl.

Why not find out at what age a boy can "hold" his liquor and drive with one hand?

Passing this test, he would be ready for college.

As for one football game a year—it would ruin the fur industry, which is in a precarious condition already.

What university student would buy a raccoon coat just for one game?

Highway Engineer Urges State Maintain Seized Roads; Suggestions Filed

Senator John J. McClure, of Delaware County, was chosen chairman of the Township Law Revision Commission at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce today to succeed Senator John E. Kunkle, who died recently.

The commission, which was authorized by Gov. Fisher to revise and codify first and second class township laws, at today's meeting heard recommendations from various township officers of this part of the state.

E. T. McIlvain, state highway department engineer, pointed out that in the old codes, township lines and boundaries are not clearly defined. He recommended that township roads taken over by the state in seizing land for state forest or building purposes, should be maintained by the state.

A. L. Sharpneck, vice president of the Pennsylvania Township Supervisors' Association, caused a ripple of comment with the assertion that in most instances the codes are all right, but that the men who have been elected to enforce them are not the right types.

"Half of our township supervisors can't even dig post holes," he said. "It seems that a lot of these fellows who sit around in front of stores whittling, and who sneak down the alley for a drink or two, have been elected."

J. M. Britton, solicitor of Lower Marion Township; C. W. Scheck, a member of the commission, and F. W. Cook, secretary of Mt. Lebanon Township, presented suggestions as to contract letting and damages outgrowing from widening of roads.

THINKING IT OVER :-: By Hal Coffman

Shakespeare says somewhere that "conscience doth make cowards of us all," but he did not have this gentleman in mind when he made that profound observation. This gentleman has no conscience. Mr. Coffman, who drew his picture for you, forgot to put one in.

Nevertheless, he seems worried. Perhaps you can guess the reason.

He is afraid of GETTING CAUGHT.

You feel sorry for him. He ought to be enjoying all the money Mr. Coffman has given him, but he isn't.

This picture interests you if you have any crooked money, or hope to have. It is not as much fun as you might think.

FIREMAN HURT, HIT BY AUTO

Knocked down by an automobile while he was running to answer a fire alarm, Lee Gardner, of North Dravosburg, a member of the Dravosburg volunteer fire department, was recovering today from lacerations of the chin, right arm and left hand. John M. Parker, of 115 Ridge street, Dravosburg, alleged driver of the car, was released on his own recognizance by Dravosburg police.

Gardner was responding to an alarm of fire from the home of John Evans, in Washington avenue, Dravosburg, last night, when, police say, he was struck by Parker's automobile at McClure and Maple avenues. After receiving medical aid, he was removed to his home.

54 School Panes Smashed; Seek Boy

Some boy in the Columbo street district was presented with a new air rifle at Christmas, police at the East End station believe. The lad is being sought to explain the target practice held Monday night in the James E. Rogers school yard, Columbo street. The principal at the school reported to police that 54 panes of glass in windows of the class rooms had been shattered by the marksman.

Zitterbart Works, Hidden Many Years, In Demand

The book in which are written the deeds of Fidelis Zitterbart, Jr., composer and student of Franz Schubert, has been re-opened. Soon, the world may look at its pages.

Fidelis Zitterbart, Jr., was a day old when the historic fire of April 10, 1845, swept downtown Pittsburgh. Perhaps he saw the thundering fire-clouds from his South Side nursery across the river, and perhaps they burned into his infant mind the color of the air.

Fidelis Zitterbart died August 30, 1915, when the flames of war-swept Europe were almost visible from across the seas.

And in the meanwhile, the most heroic task that any known composer has ever accomplished was his.

COMPOSES 1,432 WORKS

Until now, only his family has known that in that span of life he composed 1,432 works, ranging from solos and chamber music to mighty symphonies and operas.

Thousand upon thousand of pages of meticulously drawn notes; enchanting melodies, stirring poems, dazzling climaxes lay peacefully untouched in the bookcases of his children.

His friends and contemporaries, Victor Herbert, Ethelbert Nevin, Adolph Foerster, Charles W. Cadman, many others that wrote in Pittsburgh never knew that their friend Zitterbart had applied himself nearly so well.

Even Franz Schubert, that romancer from across the seas who had been his tutor, only wrote 600 odd bits, many of them lyrically beautiful for all ages, however.

HIDES WORK IN DESK

"He completed one thing, pushed it into the cabinet and forgot it," Zitterbart's daughter, Mrs. C. J. Braun, Jr., of 6936 Penn avenue, said. "He never cared to have his work published, or even heard.

"He never heard but a few of his compositions himself, except in the peculiar instrument that sends melodies through a composer's mind. The old Pittsburgh Symphony, with Victor Herbert, Emil Paur, played some, while Wassili Leps, the Russian conductor, played a funeral march of his after his death."

The first formal presentation of his works will be February 9, when the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra plays his overture to Macbeth. It is one of a series of overtures to Shakespearean characters. After that, the National Broadcasting Company hopes to get some of his melodies. The demand for new music for radio programs has reached for them.

GEMS IN DEMAND

C. J. Braun, Jr., with whom the old composer lived after he left his studio at 11 Marion street, and Ralph W. Zitterbart, a son, have catalogued the works. Two other daughters, Mrs. Florence Black, of Piqua, O., and Mrs. Beatrice Frick, of Vera Beach, Fla., are living.

Having played and directed in a number of orchestras, he was guest conductor here in 1909 and presented a symphonic suite, "A Sailor's Life." Charles Wakefield Cadman, the composer, reviewed it for a Pittsburgh paper. His overture to "Richard III" won the Art Society prize awarded by Walter Damrosch and Victor Herbert as judges. But that was because Mr. Braun picked it out of the cabinet unknown to him and entered it.

KAROLYI SEES WAR CLOUDS

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Europe has gone from bad to worse, the League of Nations is nothing more than a scrap of paper and war is imminent today, according to Count Michael Karolyi, noted Hungarian Socialist.

In marked contrast to the recent utterances of Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, Count Karolyi, in his first public address in America, at Carnegie Music Hall last night, painted a most depressing picture of present-day European conditions. He also made a bitter attack upon Fascism, branding it as a desperate policy of the middle classes.

Count Karolyi arrived in this country on Monday after a five-year battle with the State Department for a vise.

He has been in correspondence with the trade organization but has set not date for his visit.

PURSES STOLEN, 2 BOYS HELD

Two 16-year-old boys, accused of snatching purses from women were held for the grand jury in Morals Court today.

Mrs. Christine Kleener, 70, of 419 Knox avenue, identified William Kearney, of 210 Marlin street, as the youth who grabbed her purse containing $100 which she had drawn from the bank to buy Christmas gifts, the day before Christmas, in Arlington avenue.

Kearney was held also on a charge of stealing an automobile belonging to W. A. Burkley, of Webster Hall, driving it, with two other youths, to McDonald, where they abandoned it, later stealing another car.

Joseph Stupac, of 720 Mint way, admitted snatching a purse containing $3.37 from a woman near the Presbyterian Hospital, December 23. His share of the loot was 45 cents, he told Magistrate T. D. Jones. He and several companions later tried to rob a woman in the Squirrel Hill district, but were frightened away when she screamed. He was held on a highway robbery charge. Lack of a light on the wagon was held responsible for the accident by A. L. Eichler, motorman of the car.

Scramble Starts For Assistant Of Police

Political gift-makers today were in hiding from aspirants for the position of assistant superintendent of police. This job was vacated Monday when Mayor Charles H. Kline ordered the demotion of Leo D. Coleman from that position to a patrolman.

Inner circle rumors reported Police Inspector Charles Faulkner of the North Side and Inspector Albert Beebe of Oakland as possible appointees, but the rumor also had it that both men were sidestepping the position.

It was pointed out that an assistant superintendent of police becomes a nonenity, the most important duty being to inspect police and their uniforms.

C. Murphy Company, of McKeesport, a Fifth avenue retail location. The company operates a chain of five and ten cent stores.

Of this amount $347,850.08 was paid in cash when subscriptions were given and it is said that practically a full quota was received at the first deferred payment date, December 10.

Of the total of 65,000 persons who made pledges of assistance, 45,000 were men and women who themselves are dependent on daily occupations for a livelihood.

New Burgess Orders Flags Flown Daily

William M. Turner, who took office as Burgess of Wilkinsburg on Monday, put through his first official order yesterday when he directed that American flags were to be flown daily from the two high poles at the honor roll pergola in the borough. VIEWS SLAIN BODY, VANISHES

No trace of Mrs. Ruth Christian, 21, of 6415 Aurelia street, who disappeared from her home Monday night, two days after she had viewed the body of Ernest F. Simmons, 38, of 211 Hailman street, murder victim, had been found by police today.

Her disappearance was reported yesterday to police by her husband, Edward Christian, 29, who was found semi-conscious on a sidewalk at Highland avenue and Kirkwood street several hours later, talking incoherently about the murder.

The Christians and Joseph Danner and his wife, who live at the same house, heard shots near their home Saturday night. The Danners saw two men who had shot Simmons, a baggage room foreman of the Pennsylvania Railroad, running down the street, Christian said. Mrs. Christian suffered hysterics in her home following the killing.

Christian was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital and then detained by East End police for questioning today, they reported. He was discharged today by Magistrate Charles Papale.

No clue to the identity of Simmons' slayers has been found.

An aged man was rescued from the roof of a three-story building, a fireman was injured and another was overcome by smoke at a fire which damaged the home of J. C. Spielman, of 3263 Wainbell avenue, Dormont, last night. The blaze was caused by leaking gas, firemen said.

W. L. Metz, 60, was carried down a ladder by firemen after he had climbed to the roof before the arrival of the apparatus. He suffered from the effects of smoke and was removed to a physician's office. He was later taken home.

Assistant Fire Chief C. J. Thomas suffered lacerations on the right wrist when he fell through a window while fighting the flames. John Buchman, a fireman, was overcome by smoke.

The identity of one, about 50, who was killed when struck by a machine driven, deputy coroners said, by Lester D. Kirkland, of 208 Peter street, Duquesne, at Eighth avenue and Whitaker road, Munhall, last night, was being sought by morgue attaches. The victim suffered a fractured skull and was pronounced dead at Homestead Hospital. Kirkland posted bond at the coroner's office.

A fractured skull sustained when he was struck by a hit-and-run motorist in West Carson street Monday night caused the death last night in the South Side Hospital of Eugene Smith, 45, of 4633 Plummer street, according to a morgue report.

REGAN, OF SOX, STARS ON JURY

The Boston Red Sox second-baseman, Bill Regan, is being initiated into the mysteries of law today in Judge Thomas Jones' county court. Regan is on the right side of the law, however—he's a juror.

Before court convened this morning, the ballplayer and Judge Jones had a 'heart-to-heart' talk in the judge's chambers. The judge told Regan that he was glad to have a ballplayer on the jury, even if he, the judge, thought baseball resembled an Indian game. Regan threw Judge Jones out at home plate when he remarked that sitting all day in a juror's box resembled Sitting Bull — speaking of Indians. When the judge asked Regan if he were gaining any knowledge of contracts, Regan replied that he was and maybe it would help some day.

Bill is tired of listening to petty cases and would like something more exciting—but not a murder trial. He seemed surprised to find women on the juries, but he explained quickly that he was accustomed to umpires talking a lot, so the weaker jurors didn't worry him. Then again, there was his little wife at home in Brookline.

Working for $4 a day is something new with Regan, but he wants to be a good juror.

CLUB TO HONOR S. C. FOSTER

The Stephen C. Foster anniversary observance next Monday is to be carried out by the Stephen C. Foster Memorial Committee of the Civic Club of Allegheny County, under the direction of Chairman George Seibel. This will be the seventh annual memorial program to be held by the club.

The Schenley High School Band will play. William B. Foster will place a wreath on the composer's grave in behalf of the Civic Club.

At night a program of Foster songs will be presented in Carnegie Music Hall by the Tuesday Musical Club.

MAN ARRESTED IN LOTTERY

Charged with using the mails to deliver lottery material, Edwin Walters, 27, of 7804 Irwin street, Swissvale, has been held for the United States District Court in $1,500 bail.

Walters, an insurance salesman, is said to have mailed circulars announcing the winners of five automobiles offered as prizes in a lottery known as "the Robin." The material, it is stated, was posted at New Kensington, addressed to a man in Vandergrift, but lacked sufficient postage, and on that account was opened by the postal authorities.

When the nature of the material in the parcel was discovered, an information was made against Walters, and he was arrested by J. G. Lowers, deputy United States marshal.

Kensington Chief To Reappoint Aids

Edward Clawson, unanimously re-elected chief of the New Kensington fire department by Council Monday night, said today he would re-appoint Walter Bartlick and Patrick Cashell as deputy chiefs. Clawson is beginning his ninth year as head of the department, and Bartlick and Cashell have been his deputies several years, he said.

Daniel Burns has started his fourth term as burgess. The new administration includes Chief of Police D. J. Zeloyle, who succeeded Chief L. D. Skinner, and Police Lieut. Joseph Hutchie, instead of Lieut. E. O. Zillmer. W. K. Clowes is president of council.

Radios Here to Get Army Air 'War' Reports

Nightly press reports of the winter maneuvers over a 3,500-mile front in the Northwest of 20 army planes will be picked up here by two amateur wireless telegraphers beginning tonight.

F. E. Herron, of 7002 Kedron street, and Arthur W. McAuly, of Oakmont, will receive the reports from the individual stations, each assisting the other and comparing reports. McAuly has operated station W8CEO for 10 years at Oakmont. He has transmitted to varied points of Europe and South Africa. Both men received tests here last night.

The American Radio League will assist in maintaining communication with the planes during the flight. The press reports are to be transmitted at 8:30 o'clock nightly. Through the amateur operators, the message will be relayed from the scene of the mimic battle through members' stations to Washington and Hartford, Conn., the league's headquarters, and then broadcast back across the country. McAuly serves as the league's communication manager in this section.

Weather Conditions.

There was little change in the pressure distribution during the last 24 hours, consequently the weather remained nearly stationary. The rainy condition continues over the Ohio Valley states and the lower Mississippi valley, and the cold weather in the Northwest did not advance any farther eastward. The cold weather extended farther south over Oklahoma and Texas, moderated somewhat over the central plains, and became more intense over North Dakota, Minnesota and over the Canadian provinces. The temperatures are 40 to 44 degrees below zero over Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

River Conditions.

Rain over the upper Allegheny River is starting a rise there. Elsewhere in the district the rivers are falling. Stage at Franklin is 5.4; Lock No. 7, 12.7; Pittsburgh, 13.8; Dam No. 4, 10.3; Dam No. 3, 11.6; Dam No. 2, 12.3, and Dam No. 1, 12.7. The rivers will rise slowly.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Junior League Members To Usher at Wilbur Lecture Tuesday

JUST as we decide the old social world is going to be a very dull place with the debutante entertainments and school set affairs just about over, the brilliance of at least two or three important events banishes gloom.

This week there are several events of note, and plans for more. Many society folks attended the Rolland Hayes concert last night in Carnegie Music Hall and there's the dinner-dance for Mary Black, the debutante, on Saturday night, and next week there'll be a number of entertainments for Secretary and Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur.

ON Tuesday, did you know, Mr. Wilbur, secretary of the interior, will talk on President Hoover's White House conference on Child Health and Protection, in Carnegie Music Hall. And 8:30 o'clock that evening will be the hour of the address, and the Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania will be the sponsor.

Members of the Junior League will be ushers that evening with Ellen McClay as chairman.

Her aids will include Mrs. Oliver Blair, Mrs. James Brown, Nancy Brown, Eleanor Longenecker, Mary Mellon McClung, Mrs. S. C. Reed, Jr., Clarissa Reed, Mrs. Samuel Ringsdorf, Mrs. Bennett Walker, Mrs. W. W. Blair, Jr., Mrs. Wallace H. Rowe, Jr., Margaret Stewart, Mary Shiras, Anne Scott, Mrs. Joseph Scribner, Mrs. John Jackson Bissell, Marjorie Kimball, Virginia Forsyth, Evelyn Evans, Louise Totten, Phyllis Totten and Betty Scott.

LAST night many members of the social world, from debs to their grandmothers, were at Carnegie Music Hall to hear Rolland Hays.

Among the young people there was attractive Mary Franklin Robinson, debutante daughter of the William Christopher Robinsons. She wore a simple gown of blue crepe in the princess mode with a low decolletage, and a wrap of turquoise blue velvet embroidered in gold and collared luxuriously in white fox.

During the intermission I saw her smoking in the foyer with a group of the younger set, including another debutante, Emily Frew. And Florence Carroll was there, wearing an interesting gown of green lace with the long skirt tiered, and with a cape of lace hanging from the low decolletage. Her wrap was of brocaded metal cloth banded in tangerine.

I caught sight of Miss Mary Bidwell Breed, and of Mrs. Ralph W. Harbison in the audience. Mrs. Harbison wore black chiffon and lace and a moleskin coat.

Arriving together were Mrs. Norwood Johnston and her attractive daughter Frances. Frances wore a long gown of black lace and tulle and a black velvet wrap with a white fox collar.

Distinctive Frances Fitzgerald I saw talking with friends in the foyer. She looked interesting in a sweeping gown of dahlia chiffon and her coat was of green velvet with a collar of gold.

Listening attentively to the artist was Mrs. Elizabeth Reed Brown, who wore black lace.

Just before the concert began Helen Leovy in black tulle, and Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland in black lace, arrived, and Miss Neil Stewart. And I also had a glimpse of Miss Cora Helen Coolidge.

ON Tuesday night the Richard Beatty Mellons will be among the guests at the dinner Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, their brother, will give in honor of President and Mrs. Hoover.

AND today I have news of yet another engagement, that of Betty Wainwright Tinker, daughter of the Uriah W. Tinkers, of South Dallas avenue, to Robert Daniel Cavanaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel B. Cavanaugh, of Los Angeles.

The bride wore a gown of white chiffon and a veil of tulle. Her bouquet was of lilies of the valley and orchids. Miss Elizabeth Nutting, of Dayton, O., as maid of honor, wore green chiffon and carried pink roses, as did the bridesmaid, Miss R. Sikes, of Erie. Small Martha Virginia Sterrett was flower girl, and David Sterrett, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer. M. Wayne McQueen, of Barberton, O., was best man, and the ushers were John Jackson and Harold Williams, of Pittsburgh, and Robert Sevin, of Erie.

A reception following the ceremony was given by Dr. and Mrs. D. A. Sterrett in their home. Dr. Sterrett is a brother of the bride. After a southern motor trip, the Rev. and Mrs. Weals will reside in South Atlantic avenue, Pittsburgh.

LOVEJOY By Beatrice BURTON

house and down the steps to the black roadster.

"Home," Tom answered quickly. "Home, of course."

Home. . . . The strange little flat with herself and Tom in it, all alone. Man and wife. Married.

"No. I'm not going there right away," she said, and her voice trembled. Like a brook running over sharp stones. "I'm going back to Aunt Em's first. I want to tell her and Uncle James about this. I want to tell her and Uncle James about this. I want to get some clothes, too."

All at once she was frightened and uncertain.

It was suddenly so terrifying—this idea that she was leaving Aunt Em and Uncle James for good, and going away with Tom Nicholson to live with him and be his bride.

Talk about taking a leap in the dark—this was certainly it. . . . To give up everything and everybody in the world for one man, just because his voice and his lips and the touch of his hands thrilled you as nothing else ever had. . . . To promise to honor and obey him . . . to "forsake all others for him," just because you happened to love the way he made love to you. . . . Why, it was taking a terrible risk.

She got into the roadster beside him and looked at him with troubled eyes as he leaned forward to start the engine. Suddenly he seemed like an utter stranger to her, this man who had been her pal and sweetheart for almost two years.

What did she know about him, after all? . . . Nothing, really.

She knew that he sold bonds and didn't make enough money to get married on. She knew that his family lived in an upstate farm and that he had worked his way through college. She knew that he played golf on Sundays, and that his small roadster was not quite paid for.

But about the real Tom Nicholson she knew very little, she said to herself as the car skimmed along through the gray cold-looking streets. And yet here she was, on her way to live in that flat with him. To shut herself up in it with this stranger!

"Why, I don't even know whether you're cross when you get up in the morning," she said aloud, "or whether you'd be stingy and horrid to me—or whether you'd be true to me."

She gasped as Tom turned in his seat and gave her a straight, puzzled look.

"I'm not going through with this," she finished wildly, and putting her head down into her little white-gloved hand, she began to cry.

A few blocks farther on there was a small park. It was only the size of a city block, but it was full of trees and leafless bushes. It bore the poetic name of Halfmoon Park.

On many and many a summer night Tom and Lovejoy had sat there on one of the iron benches, watching the stars come out like flowers in the dark meadow of the city.

Dusk was coming down over it that November afternoon by the time they reached it. Tom stopped his car in the street, close to a familiar clump of leafless shrubs.

"We'll have to talk this over," he said quietly. "Are you sorry you married me, Lovejoy?. Or, are you just nervous the way they say brides always are?"

She shook her head in its little black velvet hat pulled down over a mass of shiny red-gold hair.

"I don't know, Tom," she answered truthfully. "But, I think I'm sorry we did it. . . . We shouldn't have. We should have waited until you were making three hundred a month. Tom, let's not tell anyone about this. . . . Not for a while. I'll go back and live with Aunt Em and Uncle James, and you can stay in the flat alone."

Tom didn't say a word. He sat still in his corner of the seat, his eyes fixed on the small square of park where he and Lovejoy had spent so many long hours, wrapped in each other's arms, in the warm breathless darkness of the summer-time.

He sat that way for a long time while the twilight deepened into night and the street-lamps blossomed out into light.

"Gosh, I don't know what to do," he said finally. "I've married you and I've promised to work like a horse to take care of you. I can't let you go back to your folks now, Lovejoy."

He turned to her suddenly, and put his hands on her arms just above her elbows, turning her so that she faced him.

"Lovejoy, I've got to have you now," he said, and his voice was thick and hoarse with his longing for her, "now that we're married."

His arms went around her little body, crushing it against his own. His mouth came down hard on her mouth, on her cheeks and her neck. He never kissed her like this before. As if she belonged to him.

"We're going home together tonight," he said, and his mouth met hers again, flame to flame.

"We are, aren't we?" he asked when he had kissed her again. And with her head against his shoulder, Lovejoy nodded.

"Of course," she sighed, "everything's all right, Tom. I was just—panicky for a minute."

And somehow everything was all right for her, once more, now that she was in Tom's arms again, close to him.

All the magic of their love for each other had come back again.

And once more she wanted to be alone with him, just as she had wanted to be alone with him, night after night, for months and months.

"We'll go and get my things—and break the news to Aunt Em and Uncle James," she said unsteadily. "And then, we'll go home."

Aunt Em and Uncle James Pomfret lived in a first-floor flat in an apartment house on Bullard street.

They had lived there for 20 years, ever since Lovejoy had come to them as an orphan at the entrancing age of two.

It was a high-ceilinged, old-fashioned flat with seven large rooms full of old-fashioned furniture.

It never seemed like a city flat to Tom Nicholson, but more like the interior of some fine old homestead in the country. The long mirror in the hall, the deep chairs with lace doilies on their backs, the four-poster beds in the sleeping rooms, all looked as if they had stood in their places for 50 years at least.

Then, the rooms were always filled with smell of Aunt Em's baking. Her pies and her crusty loaves of bread, her Boston baked beans and her spice cake.

There was an appetizing odor of hot biscuits in the front hall when Lovejoy and Tom stepped into it that chilly November night.

And as the door slammed, Aunt Em came walking in from the kitchen, with her blue sleeves rolled up and a smudge of flour on one of her pink cheeks.

"I thought you'd be here for supper," she said briskly to Tom. "There's creamed chicken and hot soda biscuit! I know you like 'em."

Aunt Em never could make up her mind about Tom. She liked him—but she didn't want him to marry her niece, Lovejoy, until he was making enough money to take care of her.

"And when that'll be, God only knows!" she often said. She didn't think much of the bond business. She said it was too airy.

"It's pretty hard to sell something to folks that they can't see and take hold of," she had told him time and time again. "Seems to me you'd do better trying to sell lots of automobiles or men's clothes—something solid."

Most of the time she was furious with him for not taking her advice. And yet she admired him for his stubbornness.

"What you been doin' . . . crying?" she asked now, giving Lovejoy a sharp and suspicious look. "What you been crying about?"

Lovejoy looked up at Tom with eyes whose lashes were gathered into wet black points. She put her hand on his arm.

"I haven't been crying," she answered. "That is—I have. But we've been getting married, too. Tom and I—we're married."

If Aunt Em was surprised she gave no sign of it.

Her lips straightened themselves into a narrow line, and she shook her head.

Then she went to the door of the living-room and spoke to Uncle James, who was reading the evening paper.

"Did you hear that, James Pomfret?" she called to him. "These two have gone and got married. Didn't I tell you they would? Well, they have!"

She looked back at them. "Where you going to live?" she demanded.

They told her:

"Well, you'd better sit down and have some supper," she said, "and I'll open up some raspberry vinegar."

Aunt Em's idea of wine was raspberry vinegar. Every summer of her life she put up two gallons of it, and she kept it for state occasions—Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year's, birthdays.

"Your wife will never be able to make chicken-and-biscuit like this, Tom Nicholson," she said grimly to Tom, watching Uncle James serve it. "Lovejoy can't even fry an egg or make a cup of coffee. . . . I declare, I don't know how the two of you are going to get along. She don't know any more about housekeeping than you know about making money, it seems to me."

Tom grinned at her, his teeth dazzling white in his lean, brown face.

"Oh, I don't know what ailed the two of you," she went on, "jumping into the holy bonds of matrimony like a couple of wild things. . . . And after you both promised me you'd wait for a while."

"'Youth must have its day'," quoted Uncle James, a mild and pleasant little man.

"You shut up! What do you know about youth?" asked Aunt Em. "You've been an old man for a long time now...and you know that a girl who don't know how to cook and make beds and darn socks hasn't any business marryin' a poor man..and a.."

"I didn't marry Lovejoy to get a housekeeper," Tom quietly interrupted. "I married her because I love her...and if she can't keep house I'll help her until she learns. I don't care whether she ever learns to darn socks or make beds or cook meals."

He was going to remember that in the days that were ahead of him.

"I, Thomas, take thee, Lovejoy"—droned the voice of the minister.

"I'm not going through with this," she finished wildly.

"We've been getting married, Tom and I," Lovejoy told her aunt.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Olina's Request for Newspaper Arouses Madge's Curiosity.

PRINCESS OLINA'S appearance at so early an hour at the door of the apartment would alone have arrested my attention, for she is not an early riser. But when, in addition, I overheard her queer colloquy with the night bellboy I knew that I must take cognizance of the incident, even though it laid me open to the accusation of unmannerly meddling.

"Perhaps I can help," I said in my most matter-of-fact tones as I heard her tell the boy he must get something she wanted, and that she did not care what it cost, for she wanted it at once.

Tom, the boy—or rather man—who at night combines the functions of telephone operator, bellboy and elevator man at the hotel, turned a relieved face to me. He is not as resourceful as Purnell, the highly efficient and amusing colored "boy" who had helped me so signally upon the night of my "announcement dinner," but he is honest and most obliging, though a trifle stolid. He plainly was most distressed at being obliged to refuse a request from a guest.

"You see, Mis' Graham, it's like this," he explained. "When Mister Allen, the old night clerk, was here, I could get off any time to do an errand for a guest. He'd do my work for me. But this new man is terrible cranky with me, and especially this last week or two. He wants me on the job every minute."

I could have told him why the clerk wanted him on the job every minute. It was because he himself wished to be free to aid Mr. Underwood and the detective, who I knew was now on duty every night, when the expected attempt upon Prince Georges should be made. But, of course, this was outside Tom's ken.

"This must be a distinctly second-class hotel," Princess Olina said witheringly, her nose in the air, "when one cannot send out for so simple a thing as a newspaper at any hour during the night."

"That depends upon what one means by first class, my dear," I told her, purposely making my voice a bit patronizing. "This is not a fashionable hotel, but an old-fashioned residential house, many of whose patrons have lived here for years. It is distinctly first class of its kind, but you cannot expect the unlimited service of the very expensive houses."

I turned to Tom, plainly uneasy to return to his elevator.

"How long before a boy who can go will be here?" I asked.

"I can go myself, ma'am, just as soon as the first boy comes on at six-thirty. That's not quite an hour from now."

"Is that the very first chance?" Olina struck in impatiently.

"I'm sorry, ma'am, yes. I'd like to go, but——"

"Come back at six-thirty, then," she said. Here!"

She thrust a bill into his hand.

"Get me copies of all the papers," she ordered. Then, as Tom hurried away, she looked at me hesitantly, but with something hostile in her gaze.

"I am sorry to have disturbed you," she said formally.

"You haven't," I said quickly, and smiled at her, although I secretly was annoyed at her stiff manner. "I would not have interfered, only I was so surprised at your being up so early that I was afraid you might be ill and need something I could get for you."

"No, I am not ill," she answered. "But I couldn't sleep, and I am so anxious to see the newspapers."

She did not name either of the two reasons I knew she had for wishing to see the newspapers. Instead she looked at me again, this time with something wistful in her expression which I promptly interpreted.

"Why don't you come up with me to the roof?" I asked. "It's a wonderful morning. I'll wait for you while you dress. But wrap up well."

"I'd love to go up with you," she said promptly. "And I won't keep you long. I can dress rapidly. But—won't I miss the papers when Tom brings them?"

"No, for I shall tell him to bring them directly to us on the roof," I told her. "I'll telephone him while you're dressing."

She made no further reference to the papers, nor, of course, did I. But, though she chatted with me with apparent interest, I saw that she was plainly distrait and closely watched the door which opened on the stairway from the roof.

When Tom at last appeared, papers in hand, she rushed over to him as eagerly as if she were a schoolgirl entrant for some prize, instead of a royal princess. And when she had received the papers from him she rushed back to the seat beside me, muttered a hasty "Pardon!" as she handed me three of the papers and then swiftly turned to a certain inside page of the sheet she had selected.

Then I heard a little gasp of joy.

"Oh, it's here! It's here!" she cried.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Endings for Letters

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I correspond with a young man who is at college. I met him in July while on my vacation. We went together for three weeks, and now I receive a letter on the average of once a week from him. I would like to know some endings I could use for my letters. He uses mostly: "Yours" or "As ever"—Jack.

What does "yours" mean in that case?

2. How is my writing paper and handwriting?

IT IS difficult to think of endings that are happily suitable for letters of this kind. Evidently the young man finds it difficult, too, for his endings aren't particularly imaginative. I'm afraid that you can't make "yours especially meaningful, although under circumstances (for instance, if you were engaged to the gentleman) it certainly would take on a "lovely light." "As ever" is one of the dullest letter endings, I think, for, if you stop to analyze it, the signer certainly is "as ever" probably!

Often not to use an ending is more effective than to use one. For instance, to say something quite delightful in the ending of the letter, the last sentence, and then sign—Carol. "Sincerely yours," or "Very sincerely yours," or "Most sincerely yours" are, I believe, as you probably do too, a bit formal for this kind of letter. Perhaps you would like "Faithfully"—it is a favorite of mine—for it seems to fit into such as this in-between kind of letter. Do you? Or "Cordially"?

Your letter paper is in excellent taste, dignified, well monogrammed and of a size in excellent proportion to your handwriting. And I bow in congratulation to you for your fine, careful, good looking, letter-form, including your artistic margins.

Use the Title, Doctor

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am doubtful which is the correct way to address a Doctor, when writing to him. Should I address him as Dear Mr. Blank, or Dear Dr.

MAY T.

NEITHER form is correct. Address him My Dear Doctor Blank: Do not abbreviate his title of Doctor.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Soft Foods Spoil Our Teeth

CIVILIZATION has done much for us, but it has brought with it less physical activity and the taking of soft, cooked foods. These have their effect on the circulation of the blood and on the teeth and gums.

DR. COPELAND

The gums of the teeth are built of tissue similar to that of the rest of the body. They are covered by a membrane closely related to the skin of the body. The blood circulates through this tissue.

Friction over the skin not only stimulates the flow of blood in the tissues but it toughens the protective skin. This is true of the gums, as well.

An animal continually scrapes the gums in chewing its food. This keeps the tissues firm and healthy. Man eats foods which do not require much chewing. This means sluggish circulation around the teeth and gums.

Man cleans his teeth because of the soft foods he consumes. In brushing the teeth, which should be done after every meal, one should rub the gums well, using either a clean cloth wound about the finger or the toothbrush. The idea is to harden the gums and stimulate the circulation there. After a few weeks or months of this sort of treatment, if it has not been done before, the teeth and gums should be in a much healthier condition.

Healthy gums are a coral pink and firm. Through the fine network of blood vessels in the gums the material is brought to rebuild the tissues and the blood carries away the waste poisons, just as is done from every other part of the system.

It is said that more than 90 per cent of civilized persons suffer at one time or another in their lives from dental decay. They have "pyorrhoea," rickets or some other form of bone disease.

Dr. McCollum, in his book "The Newer Knowledge of Nutrition," says "Primitive man had neither rickets nor decayed teeth. In the National Museum at Washington there are several hundred skulls of Indians who lived 200 or 300 years ago. Only a single tooth showed dental decay." Of course the reason is clear; among these people the diet was excellent in chemical completeness, and consequently bone diseases and teeth decay were almost unknown.

Where there is tooth decay it is very likely there is improper mastication of the food. Then we find failing nutrition, loss of appetite and anemia. Many cases of what is thought to be rheumatism are probably symptoms of tooth infection and the absorption of poisons. Arthrisis, which seems to be so common now, rheumatism, heart disease and many diseases often have their first cause in diseased teeth.

If we poison part of the body we poison the whole of it because the body is one. Blood and lymph flow from one part to another and infection is carried from one center through all the tissues and organs and affects all the functions of the body.

If we only build up healthy bodies, healthy teeth, mouth, nose, eyes, digestive organs, then we have an impregnable defense against almost any disease germ. It is the business of the body to defend itself against all the ordinary danger to which it is exposed, but it cannot do so unless we help to fortify the body by taking proper care and food.

The Marry-Go-Round

White Chips in the Love Game.

A KISS used to be the jackpot in woman's game of love; now it is merely a little white chip of no particular value.

When a woman loses faith in men her life may be spoiled; but it is not utterly wrecked until she loses her faith in beauty creams, plastic surgeons and her last reducing diet.

A woman can forgive a man for almost anything except that "You-owe-it-to-yourself-to-kiss-me" manner with which he sometimes bestows his favor upon her.

A man often goes back to his wife, just as a woman "goes back to mother"—for consolation, relief and moral support.

Men used to stand in a barroom and sing "There's no place like home!" Now they go home because there's no bar-room like a man's own little "cellar" and no "speakeasy" like the average American "home."

Theoretically, a man may admire a "queenly woman," but he will walk all the way around a throne any day to find a little "Cutie" who will sit on a footstool and look UP at him admiringly.

In the modern play it is always the villain who makes love artistically, while the hero just grabs the girl and blurts it out—or has to have it dragged out of him. Is love-making becoming such a "villainous" thing that it's beneath the notice of a really good man?

Every man is entitled to his Indian Summer fling—provided he doesn't mistake it for the return of Spring.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, January 9.

THE affairs of this day are found to be under a very auspicious rule for profitable and vigorous pushing. All things should be lively and progressive, with new ventures and enterprises especially stimulated by the intensive impetus of aggressive planetary forces. Old obstacles will be removed to make way for high initiative and a determined constructive attack on all desirable projects. This may entail change or travel, but new contracts and associations are in order, with brilliant prospects; but affix signatures with great precaution.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of unusual prospects for reaching high goals of achievement in many directions. New projects should flourish and new contracts bring large profits, but all writings should be signed with particular precaution. Removal of old congestions will find the spirit of initiative and adventure under high stimulus to forge ahead constructively.

A child born on this day should be endowed with all the essential forces and faculties for high achievements in life, with practical industry, determination and fine initiative.

Kidnaping Mystery Solved When Tom Burns Is Found Dead

CHAPTER LII.

BY the light of the street lamp, the reporter read! "I owe your paper a debt, which I now pay. I'm giving this 'story' exclusively to you. Guess it's a good enough 'scoop.' You're welcome and thanks.

"The large key opens the front door. The house is empty. Better not switch the lights. Use the flash you'll find on a chair just inside the door.

"The key with the red string leads from the hall to the garage. Go there. Then follow the directions attached to key No. 3. You'll come upon the whole story. Good luck!"

The three men entered the dark, narrow hall of a very small cottage. The floors were without carpet; the furniture, which they could dimly see, was of the shabbiest. At the end of the hall, a door led down steps to a garage.

Entered here, they read by the flashlight directions attached to key No. 3. Printed in minute, precise letters:

"This key opens a secret board in the back wall of the garage. To save your time, I've marked the keyhole with an arrow. It's near the corner to your right as you face the wall. Open this secret door and enter the room upon which it gives."

The garage appeared roughly plastered. There was no sign of a door, but several large cracks streaked this back wall. One of these was the break where the door swung.

They found the keyhole. The door went inward on a dark cavity, whose floor level was several feet above that of a garage. At first they saw only the rough outlines of a cellar-like space. It was about 6 feet high, 10 feet wide and 5 deep. In the far corner was a crude bed. This was partly obscured by the table and bench which stood in front of it.

They took the high step and turned the flashlight full on the bed and the shocking presence lying there.

The body of a man with his throat cut from ear to ear, and one hand with the fingers curled, trailing the floor. The head and neck lay in a dark pool of blood, the eyes stared open and two white lines like the old, bitter scars went from the nose to the mouth. Below this, the blood trickled in a thin stream into the coagulated pool. The body was still warm.

On its chest was an envelope addressed:

"To the Reporters:

"You can switch the light on the table now. But be careful. Don't disturb the several articles I've laid there. You are looking at the kidnaper of Billy Bryce. Perhaps you recognize me. The police will. William Bryce will. He's known in his heart, all along, that it was I who perpetrated this. He didn't want to think it. He knew that he'd never see his grandson again—never see him living again if it was I who had him.

"So he kidded himself that I wasn't in it. But they watched me. Every minute since a week ago last Monday. I've laughed and eluded them as they shadowed this wretched house. Oh, yes—I've been at work every day! They've got NOTHING on me. And till doomsday they'd get nothing on me. They searched this house! And all the while Guy Elliott was in this room. It's because I guessed they'd do this that in the end I changed my plans. Because of this change, and ONLY because of this, I'm now lying here.

"You see, I thought of everything. I anticipated everything. Even that you mustn't switch the light in the front hall and give your scoop away.

"And my part of this went along without one hitch. If I could have done it alone, as originally planned, Billy Bryce would be lying here now. And lying in exactly the condition you see me—nice and red across the throat. For ten months I've lived with this vision before me. I've slept, worked and wept with the picture in mind. His kid choking to death as mine choked.

If I could have put the deal over alone all would have gone through so perfectly as to seem mysterious — the work of a phantom. I laughed at them! But I had to call in aid. Unfortunately I picked a blunderer.

"All that went well was my work. Yes—that Partridge and Montgomery should get Elliott in that dark passage, where once he got me . . . damn his soul forever! This crime need never have been—two beings, one of them vastly more precious than I, would be living today if Guy Elliott had minded his own damn business; if he'd kept his face out of my affairs. I've evened my score with him.

"It was I, too, that had Slim Partridge change into Elliott's clothes after they dumped him here. I that had Slim ride in Elliott's car to Lafayette Square, where for ten months I'd watched Billy Bryce at play. I, who had a second machine meet Partridge down the Skyline boulevard. He stopped long enough to change his clothes and return Elliott's things to me. So I could dress him in them when I left him at the ransom scene.

"And I who phoned Mills Field to have the plane tuned up for Ace's take-off. The one thing I didn't, perhaps couldn't anticipate, was the presence of Elliott's girl there. She queered it all! But for her—even blundering as Ace did in the storm—but for Elliott's girl, they'd have made good the get-away.

"All went well. They reached the field I'd staked out in Gilroy. They found the shed with the gasoline I'd stored there. They took off again Tuesday morning at dawn. Thus far, I led them.

"But the jig is up. Montgomery queered it. He's caught. This means he'll squeal.

"All right! They'll have him. Perhaps they'll even land Partridge alive—though I doubt it. But they'll never put the rope on me.

"Goodby, fellows—it was a short life and a damnable one. I ask this favor—deliver the several packages, articles and notes you'll find on the table, to the parties to whom they are addressed. All are carefully labeled.

"If you want to know why I go into this, and why I'm now lying here, you'll find a complete answer on the table. There is my story with its details and evidence.

"Kind regards—

"TOM BURNS."

On the table was a motley assortment of articles and notes. A pair of handcuffs, footshackles and chain labeled:

"With these, I held Guy Elliott. But first I carefully bound wrists and ankles with soft cloth that no marks might appear, and no evidence that he'd been imprisoned would be left. I wanted the police to hold him—charge him."

A helmet, blindfold and gag.

"With these I silenced and blinded him."

A box of powders:

"I put these in his coffee whenever it was necessary to have him sleep. He got several, almost one too many last Friday night. Put him out until Sunday. Sorry! Ha, ha!"

A book, attached to which was a key and a note: "Here you will find all the details of this ROMANCE. Something beautiful and precious that died. Something ugly and repellant that lived. How did I get away from the flume last Friday night? What have I done with the ransom? Right before you, boys!

"And how did I re-enter this house at 11 o'clock last night with the cops watching? They say my car entered the garage about 10 o'clock and didn't go out again. They're right! But I slept in this cottage Friday night . . . and I was out in the hills at midnight Friday, when I took Bryce's $10,000 and Laura Dawn's $10,000. He didn't have the whole of it! Not a bit of difference did it make, though he put ten million there. His child was doomed!"

A box with an envelope addressed to Laura Dawn. The envelope was unsealed. The note said: "Here is your $10,000. I am truly sorry for what you have suffered. I hope your girl comes out of it. I don't want your money. Money is worthless to me NOW. It's been worthless since last Christmas, when Tommy died."

Near to this box was a tin plate. Here was a mound of ashes. Under the tin plate was an open letter addressed to William Bryce:

"And here is your $10,000! It's mixed with dirt, with water, with blood. You can't recover it."

A last envelope:

"Also for the reporters."

This is what it said:

"Please be sure that Bryce gets that heap of ashes and also this attached message. You can read it. Now if you want to know about the woman who aided me while I had Elliott a prisoner, take this last key. It opens a panel in the east wall over there. You'll find the lady.

"Give the attached note to Bryce."

The last message to Bryce said this:

"Your grandson is dead. It was agreed between us that he should be killed if any of our plans went wrong. Montgomery was stalling Elliott. Montgomery is a coward. You know Slim Partridge. Cease hope."

ATELIERS DESIGN NEW AND ATTRACTIVE DINNER FROCKS

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—Devastatingly demure is the somewhat paradoxical term, best applied to some of the lovely dresses seen here just now. There is a subtly alluring effect to be found in an old world frock worn in an ultra modern setting. And many of the smartest young women here, especially the charming American girls who are so energetically adding to the beauty and gaiety of the present season, have been quick to realize this, and are responsible for much of the success of this mode. Lately we have seen and admired some frocks that seemed distinctly of the period of 1830, with tight bodice, off-the- shoulders decolletage, and full voluminous skirt.

In many instances, the skirt and decolletage were outlined with a narrow tulle ruche, and these fashions of another day were further emphasized by antique costume jewelry of coral and ember. That there is no lack of grace in the young people of today is evident. For these frocks are worn with ease and elegance and an added allure that is typical fo the young woman of our times.

ONE of the most attractive visitors here this season is Miss Chico Kilvert, daughter of Mrs. Cory Kilvert of New York. Always perfectly dressed she has been a frequent visitor at the Ritz, Ciro's and other fashionable restaurants. We are glad to be able to send you a sketch of the dress worm by Miss Kilvert at a recent dinner dance at Ciro's, that attracted much attention and enthusiastic comment. It is Lanvin model of black chiffon velvet with a close-fitting bodice and a long skirt, trailing slightly at the back. An exquisite bertha of real lace—rose point, knots in front like a fichu and forms a deep cape at back. With this frock was worn a platinum necklace on which was hung a diamond cross, and the bracelets also were of diamonds.

ANOTHER dress that attracted much attention on the same occasion is also shown. It is entirely of black tulle, spotted with tiny glycerined leaf-shaped motifs, placed about three inches apart. The body of the frock is close fitting in princess fashion, but flaring godets give a crisp silhouette to the figure. The skirt is slightly shorter in front.

GAINS SCORED BY LUTHERANS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Secular influence on the church and pastoral, congregational and synodical efficiency were under discussion here today as the conference of synod presidents of the United Lutheran Church in America was resumed.

Reports presented at the conference thus far have shown material increases in the membership and financial strength of the denomination. Statistics compiled by the Rev. Dr. E. B. Burgess, president of the Pittsburgh Synod, and Dr. E. Clarence Miller, of Philadelphia, and covering the period of 1921-28, show that no other seven-year period has approached it.

Among the salient features of the report were noted: Increase in baptized membership from 1,147,007 to 1,370,183; confirmed membership increase of from 801,250 to 949,188; increase in communing membership from 597,768 to 676,839; property valuation, from $63,193,649 to $114,446,734; beneficence, from $3,341,792 to $4,932,265, and total contributions from $13,798,195 to $22,983,765.

The conference, called by Dr. Frederick H. Knubel, of New York, president of the United Lutheran Church, is being attended by presidents of the church's 33 synods in the United States and Canada. Much of the work being done is preparatory to the annual general conference, which will be held in Milwaukee in October.

'Humiliated' Man Dies From Poison

Poison tablets swallowed, police said, while he was being searched in the cellroom of North Side Police Station late Monday night, caused the death of John Salamon, 23, of 207 Second avenue, Homestead, in Allegheny General Hospital early today. He had been arrested at East General Robinson and Federal streets on a charge of drunkenness. On his way to the hospital he told a policeman that he took the poison because of the humiliation of being arrested for drunkenness.

MYSTERY VEILS GIRL'S MURDER

IRVINE, Ky., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The slaying of an 18-year-old girl, whose body with two bullet wounds in her breast was found in a ravine here, puzzled officers today, though a young man known as her sweetheart was in jail charged with her murder.

The girl, Daisy Horn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Horn, had been missing from home all night when her body was found early yesterday.

The mother had first told officers the girl left home with a man the parents did not recognize, but later she swore to a warrant charging Ancil Proffett, 22, with murder.

Proffett, however, denied he had been with the girl Monday evening and footprints found near the body did not correspond with his, officers said. They were at a loss for a motive for the crime.

The coroner returned a verdict of murder "by persons unknown." Proffett is to have a preliminary hearing Friday morning.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

LOBBY REVEALS TARIFF 'LEAK'

By EDWARD L. RODDAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—H. H. Pike, Jr., New York sugar broker, who helped raise funds to fight a higher sugar tariff, will testify before the Senate lobby committee today.

Other witnesses will be R. L. Purdon, sugar expert of the Commerce Department, and Maurice Mermey, publicity representative of the American Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages.

Highly confidential information on the sliding scale sugar tariff was "leaked" to Washington lobbyists by the sugar expert of the U. S. Tariff Commission, the committee revealed.

The information was given to Maurice Mermey, a publicity agent for the American Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages, an organization opposing the increased sugar duties. Mermey wrote to one of his associates:

"I am enclosing several copies of a highly confidential memorandum regarding sliding scales. The authority for the information on the enclosed memorandum entitled 'Report on Sliding Scale' is Mr. Thompson, sugar expert, U. S. Tariff Commission."

The letter was introduced in evidence during the testimony of William H. Baldwin, of New York, who employed Mermey to aid him in putting on a high-powered publicity campaign against higher sugar duties. Baldwin's firm drew $2,500 a month for this work.

Probing the details of this campaign by disclosing Baldwin's correspondence, the lobby committee revealed that the lobbyists were receiving co-operation from the Democratic National Committee in opposing the increased sugar duties.

Baldwin also took credit for inspiring Senator Borah's proposal to aid the beet sugar growers by a bounty rather than by raising the tariff.

Passengers Shaken As Car Hits Truck

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Jan. 8.—Joseph Burke, Conway, H. W. Parker, Rochester, and Daniel W. Wilson, Beaver, were cut and bruised, and a score of passengers on a Beaver Valley street car were shaken, when the street car crashed into a trailer of a tractor truck. Joseph Bittner, 211 Industry street, Pittsburgh, driver of the truck, was unhurt. The injured were treated by a physician.

Wilson, car operator, declared no light was showing on the rear of the truck and he did not see it until too late to stop.

WIN FIGHT FOR RAIL SERVICE

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Jan. 8.—Word was received here that the petition of the Monongahela Railroad Company to abandon passenger service on the Chartiers Southern extension has been denied by the Public Service Commission.

Residents of Nemacolin, Millsboro, Mather and other towns affected by the proposed abandonment, together with representatives of the Mather Collieries and Crucible Fuel Company, protested the petition.

As a result of the refusal of the petition it is possible passenger service may be extended to Waynesburg over the recently completed extension from Mather. Waynesburg has been without passenger service since the abandonment of the narrow guage line last August.

LINER BREWERY O. K. AT SEA

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The miniature brewery—if any—set up on the liner George Washington, can brew full blast beyond the 12-mile limit. But it will have to be dismantled and disguised as a water pump or an ice cream freezer while it's in territorial waters.

This was the tenor of Prohibition Commissioner Doran's comment on reports that beer would be made on the liner about to carry arms conference delegates to London.

Doran said he did not believe there was any brewery aboard, but if there was, its mere possession, near shore, was illegal. The Volstead act prohibits possession of equipment for making alcoholics. But the act does not apply on the high seas.

'Missing' Oil Man Delayed by Illness

FRANKLIN, Pa., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—R. H. Rial, 40, a Franklin oil man, who had been reported missing for several days, returned to his home yesterday from Pittsburgh. Members of the family said he had been ill.

His disappearance was reported to the Missing Persons Bureau at Pittsburgh after Rial was said to have failed to return home following a business visit to Sharpsburg, Pittsburgh suburb, last Friday. It was feared by friends and relatives that Rial might accidentally have driven his car over an embankment on the way back to Franklin.

MARY ASTOR, SO STORY GOES, WAS FOREWARNED OF HUSBAND'S DEATH

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1929, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 8.

HOLLYWOOD is still in something of a mental ague occasioned by the tragic airplane accident over the Pacific that resulted in the death of Director Kenneth Hawks and his 10 associates. Mary Astor, according to a friend of hers, has borne up heroically under the shock. Miss Astor and Mr. Hawks would have celebrated their second wedding anniversary in February. They were among the really happily married couples in the colony.

A pathetic incident forewarning the untimely passing of Mr. Hawks was related to me the evening of the accident. Early last year, Miss Astor and a friend of hers visited a fortune teller. Kidding, Mary asked if she would be divorced from her husband within the year. The fortune teller took her seriously:

Mary Astor

"You won't be divorced," she said, "but your husband will meet with an accident shortly after the first of the year that will cause his death."

Mary left the fortune teller in fear and trembling. But fortunately, she forgot the prophecy in the days that followed. Mr. Hawks was killed the second day of the new year.

This department is informed from an authoritative source that Miss Astor has decided to carry on her career. To troupe and in work to find a certain amount of solace for stricken nerves. When she heard the heart-rending tidings of her husband's death, she departed from the home in the hills of Hollywood and went to her mother's. She will never return. Her clothes were packed by family and relatives. For the time being, she is staying with her mother, at a friend's house, removed from phone calls and demonstrations of sympathy.

Kenneth Hawks was among the fine characters in the film colony. He is mourned by sundry friends and acquaintances.

Movie Youngsters Make Up Triangle

WHAT promises to become a Hollywood scandal is in the offing. It seems that Raymond Hackett, Jr., aged 4 months, has been sending tokens of his esteem to both John Mack Brown and Benny Rubin's small daughters. Mr. Rubin, in behalf of his daughter, has rebuked Raymond, Jr.'s daddy severely. His daughter is too young to speak for herself, being only a few months old. Mr. Hackett, Sr., is surprised at his son's fickleness. He confesses he knows nothing about it, but will investigate the matter. Mr. Brown, in behalf of his small daughter, has also registered an uproarious complaint. Christmas, both infants received presents from Raymond, Jr., and the cards instructed each not to tell the other. Mr. Rubin told this bureau that if Hackett, Jr., continues his philandering he will take the case to court. Verily, this smacks of a de luxey triangle.

He has a play impatient to be written. Perhaps he'll write it in New York. . . That audacious stunt flyer, Dick Grace, risked his life and limb to smash an airplane for "Young Eagles." Dick doubled for "Buddy Rogers. The scene called for him to smack his plane into a river bank. He did, without injury to himself, but there was little left of the plane after the crack-up. For this venture, Grace received between $750 and $1,500. . . Clive Brook is having a tennis court built beside the home he leased from Mrs. Wallace Reid. Inasmuch as the current rainy season seems far removed, Clive should get immediate pleasure from the court. . . Jim Tulley has put himself in a spot. Tully will turn actor in James Cruze's screen version of his book, "Circus Parade." Wait 'till Jack Gilbert interviews Tully for Vanity Fair! Now's your chance, Jack. Suggested title for the article: "The Last Laugh," with no apologies to Emil Jannings. . . Four or five years ago, Rudolph Schildkraut bought a Theatre Guild bond for $1,000. He is selling it at a profit of 115 per cent. Which is sho better than the stock market. . . Evelyn Brent was on the receiving end of a hefty kick that landed plum on her ankle. Reason: She was playing a fight scene in "Framed" and the other guy lapsed a bit realistic. Betty's wounded ankle did a Zeppelin pronto. . . Irene Rich returns to town in six weeks or so, following a voodvil jaunt of 32 weeks. . . Lilyan Tashman has had her home re-decorated, and—that's all.

Believe It or Not, Thurston Always Has Clicked

Howard Thurston, the magician appearing in the Shubert Alvin, perhaps is the only author, actor and producer in the world, who for 24 years has never had an unsuccessful show. For that many years he has been writing, acting and presenting a magic show, and it has never failed to draw. In these 24 years Thurston has never missed an engagement or failed to give a performance. There will be a matinee this afternoon.

Hugh Banks will appear as Willie Barton, the original Wallace Ford role in "The Nut Farm," to be presented by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt next week. Willie is a boy who wants to be a moving picture director. Most of the fun of the play is watching his directions miscarry.

Hold Two Youths For Kidnaping, Theft

BEAVER, Pa., Jan. 8.—Joseph Cacciamudia, 19, and Peter Catrone, 19, both of Philadelphia, were held for court by Justice David Stewart on charges of highway robbery and larceny, in connection with the kidnaping here Sunday night of W. A. Schultz, 19, McKees Rocks.

Schultz said he had given the two youths and Jakie Abruzzio, 14, also of Philadelphia, a lift and when he asked them to get out, one of the trio shoved a gun against his back and told him to drive on. The car was halted at Chambersburg when Schultz told his story to a motorcycle officer. Abruzzio was turned over to probation officers.

HEINZ PLACES CORNERSTONE

The cornerstone of the new H. J. Heinz Company employes' auditorium, Progress and Heinz streets North Side, was placed yesterday by Howard Heinz, president of the company, while more than 2,500 employes watched. A box containing newspapers, coins and other objects was placed beneath the stone by Sebastian Mueller, first vice president of the company.

Mr. Heinz, in placing the cornerstone, made a short address in which he pointed out that the character of the building represents a complete reversal of the former altitude of business men toward their employes. He stated that the company believed in a partnership of employe and employer and that it is the company's duty to provide for the welfare of its partner.

The building, a four-story structure, is being erected adjoining the Heinz plant. Half of it will be used as an auditorium with a seating capacity of 3,000. A pipe organ and talking motion picture equipment will be among the features.

Roland Hayes, most celebrated of Negro singers, gave a song recital in Carnegie Music Hall last night before a large and well-pleased audience. Following so closely the appearance of his great colleague, Paul Robeson, there were bound to be comparisons, especially during the singing of the Negro music.

J. Fred Lissfelt

Robeson presents his racial sorrow and exultation in its most elemental form through a medium that is still essentially in its natural state. Roland Hayes has refined his voice so that only rarely does it forsake its studied character and go far beyond his intellect for its meaning. Robeson remains with spirituals; Hayes sings the songs of all nations, and in the white man's style.

No school, no composer seems unknown to Roland Hayes. In the airs of the old Italians or Handel, in the most delicate impressions of the French, in the finest lyrics of the Germans he is equally at home. His diction is always a great satisfaction. His soft voice is as entrancing as ever. And although he sings his spirituals with utmost polish, he manages to retain enough of the jubilee spirit to make them his own.

Among the French group was a little known song of Saint-Saens, strange because of its unusual difficulty—"Tournoiement"—"Turning," the fantastic ravings of an opium smoker. The Henschel songs bear the good qualities of many lieder, but none of them have that rare touch, immediately recognizable in the Schubert "Youth at the Spring," given as encore. Two more spirituals, "Ezekiel Saw the Wheel of Fire," and "Goin' Up to Heaven to Sit Down," were also sung as encores.

Percival Parham played accompaniments.

JAIL PRISONERS GAIN 1,133

There were 1,133 more prisoners received at the county jail last year than in 1928, according to the annual report of Warden John McNeil, presented yesterday to the board of prison inspectors. This figure does not include the 519 prisoners in the jail January 1 last year carried over from 1928.

The increase was due, Mr. McNeil states, to the sentencing of more Federal prisoners last year to the county jail. There are 115 Federal prisoners now in the county jail.

Among those who served sentences in jail were eight doctors, eight preachers and eight bartenders. There were 13,452 laborers. Other occupations represented included 20 policemen, one postmaster, 58 railroaders, 23 soldiers, one sailor, 12 tailors, 34 waiters, two models, 12 bootleggers, [illegible] estate dealer, 103 painters, 21 plumbers 29 porters, 13 pipefitters, 16 paper hangers, 14 plasterers, 19 restaurant keepers, 14 students, three justices of the peace and five bellboys.

The food cost an average of 10 cents per day for each prisoner and the total cost of a prisoner's maintenance averaged 53 cents each day. The jail was operated at a cost of $95,186.45, the county receiving credit for $15,448.32 for maintenance of Federal prisoners; $2,673.50 for maintaining deserters and more than $500 for sale of waste products or a total of $18,644.98.

Doctor tells how to heal CHAPPED HANDS

"CHAPPED hands," writes a leading Baltimore doctor, "usually come from one of three causes: hot water taking out the oils which keep the skin soft, insufficient drying of the hands in cold weather; or strong alkaline soaps that also dry out the oils, roughen the skin and make it brittle and coarse.

"In prescribing for bad cases of chapped hands, I normally consider it necessary, first, to apply something which will relieve the pain or irritation and which will help to soften the skin—then, an antiseptic medication which will keep the tiny cracks or skin abrasions free from infection and promote quick healing.

"In my experience, Noxzema Cream is the most effective preparation for accomplishing all of these things. It is a pure white cream containing a variety of soothing, antiseptic medication. It stops the smarting instantly, softens the skin and promotes rapid healing. It has the added advantage of being greaseless so that it can be applied during the day or at night without bandaging and without fear of soiling clothes."

Scores of other doctors use Noxzema and recommend it to their patients for chapped hands. See how quickly it heals away your chapped hands and how soft, white and lovely they become after a few applications. Get a jar at any drug or department store.

How we came to make the perfected loaf

Every forward-looking baker of bread has hoped that some day he could bake the perfect loaf—the bread that in every feature—crust, slicing, texture, taste, toasting-quality—would be as near to perfection as possible.

We made up our minds that we would do this very thing. So we took a new look at what people really want in bread.

After a long period of concentrated effort by our master bakers, sparing neither cost nor any other consideration in testing our ingredients and our baking methods, we have succeeded magnificently. We have produced—and at the accepted price for quality bread—a full-weight loaf, perfected in every detail, and of surpassing goodness. The proof of our success you will find in the bread itself—Mother Hubbard, the perfected loaf.

We will not tell you now about each feature of the perfection of Mother Hubbard Bread. We will tell you later how Mother Hubbard, in every single point that you consider important in the bread you give your family, has been brought to so high a degree of perfection that it may justly be called the perfected loaf.

In the meantime you can see for yourself just how fine a loaf Mother Hubbard is. Your grocer has the perfected loaf and will be glad to recommend it to you.

What Price LAZY APPETITE

"Dear, are you not glad you followed my suggestion when I urged you to try S.S.S. for your lost appetite?"

HAVE you an indifference or loathing for food, or do you really enjoy mealtime?

Fads and fancies come and go. We must be reasonable. You can't afford to wreck your body by "killing" an appetite given you by Nature to nourish your body.

You must really enjoy your meals and assimilate them to restore the waste of the body. Don't expect a strong, sturdy body and a keen mind to carry on if you do not enjoy your food. It just can't be done. Friends, happiness and business success may depend on a keen appetite.

Many thousands have turned to S. S. S. when the appetite signaled danger. It is a time-tested remedy . . . purely vegetable. Easy to assimilate. Pleasant to take. It will do much to restore the natural appetite. It will not act instantly, but, be assured, when taken according to directions, it will usually bring back your desire to eat and enjoy your food. This you well know is the basic step for health. Simply reason it out for yourself and you will agree that it is the practical way.

And remember, S.S.S. will help you get your blood-cells back up to normal. Then that sluggish, let-down feeling and skin troubles will disappear. You should sleep soundly. Firm flesh should take the place of that which was once flabby. You should feel strong. Your nerves become steady.

S.S.S. gives to Nature what it needs in making you feel like yourself again. At all drug stores in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

Batsmen Hard to Fan. • Bush Impresses Mack.
Traynor Tops National. Ruth's Salary Demands.
Sewell Leads Them All. To Agree After Ballyhoo.

GREAT MARKS BY PIRATE AND INDIAN

PIE TRAYNOR has come to be recognized as just about the hardest man in the National League to strike out. The Pirate captain's record certainly entitles him to that rating. It has been a most impressive one through the years, and makes the star third-sacker stand out as a marvel of steadiness and consistency, just as he does in all other departments. Last year Traynor struck out only seven times, and easily led the National League for fewest number of whiffs. In 1928 he won the same distinction with a total of only 10 whiffs charged against him. Lefty O'Doul fanned only eight times that year and Andy High was charged with only 10, but considering the fact that Traynor played in 144 games against 114 for O'Doul and 111 for High the Buccaneer was the real leader.

Pie Traynor.

That makes two years in succession in which Pie has led his league, and in all his previous seasons he was up among the top men. He struck out 11 times in 1927, 14 times in 1926, 19 times in 1925, 26 times in 1924, 19 times in 1923, and 28 times in 1922, his first full campaign in the majors.

SUMMED up, Pie's record shows that in his eight complete seasons in the National League he has struck out a total of only 134 times, or only 40 times more than Hack Wilson fanned in 1928 alone, when the Cub slugger set the league record at 94 strike-outs for one season. On an average, Traynor has fanned a fraction less than 17 times per year.

In the matter of few strike-outs, however, Traynor and all players in the majors have been surpassed by Joe Sewell, of the Cleveland club. And this applies not only to players of the present day, but to those of all time, as Sewell has made some records in this respect that are without parallels in the history of big-league baseball.

ONE of these records was hung up first in 1925 and duplicated last season. In each of those campaigns, Sewell placed to his credit the remarkable performance of fanning only four times, playing in 155 games in 1925 and in 152 contests last year.

That is the major league all-time record for a season, for players taking part in 150 or more games, and the fact that Sewell has accomplished it twice puts him in a position of honor in which he is likely to remain unrivaled for quite a few years to come.

Joe Sewell.

BUT that does not cover all of the notable feats credited to Sewell as proving him the toughest man in the main tent to strike out. He has led the American League in fewest strike-outs the last seven seasons without a break, and some statistics compiled by Gordon Cobbledick show that in his ten years in the majors Joe has whiffed only 96 times all told, a total not much higher than that reached by Babe Ruth and Hack Wilson annually, and an average of less that ten times per season.

AND at the same time, by the way, Sewell is speeding along toward another record, with a fair chance of reaching it. That is the mark for consecutive games played in, which Everett Scott set at 1,307 from June 20, 1916, to May 5, 1925.

Up to the end of the 1929 season, Sewell took part in a total of 1,090 games without a miss. This the nearest approach to Scott's record ever made by any player in any major league. Sewell can set a new mark by playing in 218 more games in succession, requiring a little less than a season and a half.

THE manner in which Donie Bush, former Pirate manager, has begun the work of reconstructing and building up the White Sox in assuming his new duties as pilot in Chicago, has impressed Connie Mack to such an extent that the veteran leader of the world champion Athletics is already predicting the Pale Hose will be a vastly improved team this year.

"In the last two season's, the Sox have been picking up some promising acquisitions," Mack pointed out to Jimmy Isaminger. "They discovered two real outfielders in Reynolds and Watwood, who are apt to rise high in the American League, for they have everything in their favor.

"NOW they have rounded out a strong combination by adding Outfielder Smead Jolley, heavy hitter of the Pacific Coast League. It has been said that Cissell has not come up to expectations at short, but he is getting better all the time and will yet justify the big sum paid for him. Nobody can outplay Kamm at third, and if Shires forgets about pugilism the team will have no worries at first base. The pitching staff is a good one, with Lyons, Thomas and Faber standing out, and you must also consider McKain, who was one of the pitching finds in 1929. The Sox have a new manager in the aggressive and able Donie Bush, so I expect that the Athletics and all other teams will have tough opposition when they meet Chicago next season."

Connie Mack.

KARL E. DAVIS, former graduate manager of athletics at the University of Pittsburgh, and now, in a similar capacity at Cleveland, making a great start in his usual capable and hustling style toward bringing Western Reserve University to the front in college sports, still has a warm spot in his heart for the Panthers.

He continues to be a loyal rooter for Pitt's athletes when they are meeting any teams other than his own, and no football follower in the country was more keenly disappointed when the Blue and Gold was beaten by such a huge score as 47 to 14 at Pasadena on New Year's Day.

MANAGER DAVIS, while at Pitt, had some experience with coast football, and therefore knew what the Panthers would be up against; nevertheless the outcome left him feeling rather glum. "I was sorry to see the Pitt boys meet with such a defeat on the coast," he writes. "Nine of the boys who played on that team were my proteges, in a sense.

"I hated to see them defeated by such a large score, especially when I feel that the game was not a fair test for the East. I have been out there twice myself, and I would have hated to play foot-

PITT, TARTANS OPEN SERIES

PARTY ON LAST STRETCH BACK FROM COAST

By JESS CARVER,
Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Attached to the puffing engine of the Fast Mail, one of the Pennsy's crack choo choos, the 'varsity football party of the University of Pittsburgh steamed out of this city early this morning, to complete the final lap of the long journey home from California.

In case you have not read the papers recently, the Panthers went to the coast to take part in the annual Tournament of Roses football game in Pasadena. They took part, all right, but Southern California, their West Coast opponent, took the ball game.

ARRIVE AT 8:35

The Panthers are scheduled to arrive in the Union Station in Pittsburgh tonight promptly at 8:35. Although the boys feel keenly the sting of the 47-14 walloping served them in the Rose Bowl, they intend to face the reception committee bravely, and there will be no dropping off the train at wayside points. What the heck, it was only a ball game, after all.

Yesterday was spent in traveling across level Kansas. The boys breakfasted at Dodge City, lunched at Hutchinson and dined at Kansas City. Between meals they pursued the program which has been in force since entraining at Los Angeles last Saturday morning—sitting goo-goo eyed, staring at aces and kings and deuces—what a life!

Your correspondent had the doubtful honor of attending all three of the East-West intersectional games played on the Coast since the first of December. On each occasion, after the boys from east of the Mississippi had taken their on the whiskers, I heard the same old crack from Western folks:

"Oh, well, you guys had a nice train ride, anyway."

TAKE IT SERIOUSLY

They take their football very seriously in the West, and nothing in the wide world gives them greater pleasure than to have a team of native sons knock the spots off a club from the East. Their cup of joy is filled and overflowing now, for Tech, Army and Pitt all were flattened. And how they were flattened.

The big news of yesterday concerned Senator Marclay Barnes, the rotund center of the Pitt squad. Barnes let his whiskers grow to sizeable proportions, and then, when he decided to come out of hiding and scrape 'em off, discovered he had lost the key to his traveling bag. He searched the train from end to end, crawled under every bunk and even tried to rip up the floor carpets. The other players joined in the search very willingly, for our Marclay, with a three-days' growth of hirsute adornment, is hardly a spectacle calculated to inspire confidence and love in the minds of little children. As Eddie Hirschbert put it: "One more hair, Barnes, and you'd have to live in a tree."

RECEPTION FOR TEAM

Although defeated in their New Year's Day battle with the University of Southern California in Pasadena, the University of Pittsburgh Panthers will be given a reception on their return from the coast tonight befitting conquering heroes. The Pitt band and a large delegation of students will be at the Pennsylvania station tonight to greet the gridders on their arrival at 8:30.

Mayor Charles H. Kline heads the list of speakers who will feature the Pitt testimonial dinner to be given by the Oakland Board of Trade Monday night at the Schenley Hotel. Alderman Charles B. Quailey, of Oakland, chairman of the committee, will preside at the banquet. He will introduce the toastmaster the Rev. C. Wallace Petty.

DUKES TO QUIT CONFERENCE

Duquesne University is about to drop out of the Tri-State Conference.

Although the authorities at the local institution refuse to admit shaping such plans, it is known that the decision has been made to drop out of the loop, which also includes Bethany, Waynesburg, Geneva, Thiel and Westminster.

The reason assigned is that, since the Dukes have been spreading out and elaborating their football schedule, they are not eligible to win the conference championship because they do not play sufficient teams in the circuit and they are likely to meet fewer of them in the years to come.

TOMORROW—THIS IS THE JANITORS' MONTH

CARLSON AFTER NINTH VICTORY OVER TECH

The University of Pittsburgh Golden Panthers will go after their ninth straight victory of the season and also their ninth in a row over the Carnegie Tech Skibos in the Carnegie Tech gym tonight when the two Oakland rivals clash in the opening battle of the annual three-game series.

The Panther-Tartan contest is the feature attraction on the Tri-State district floor card tonight. In the other games Allegheny College meets Washington & Jefferson in Washington, Pa.; Uniontown Pitt Junior College entertains St. Vincent's at Uniontown, and West Virginia renews a feud of long standing with West Virginia Wesleyan at Morgantown.

PITT FAVORED

The mere fact that the Panthers are regarded as big favorites over the Skibos in the opening battle of the series has failed to detract from the interest in the contest and if advance indications mean anything, the Tech gym should be packed to capacity.

The Tartans are making their first appearance against the Panthers under the guidance of Coach Ralph Hogan and their showing so far this season indicates that Carnegie will send its strongest team in years against their time-honored rivals.

The Skibos are expected to start Capt. Nease and Webster at forwards; Merten at center, and Schumacher and High at the guards. Pitt will counter with Capt. Hyatt and Zehfuss at forwards; Les Cohen at center, and Wrobleski and Arture at guards.

GEORGETOWN NEXT

The contest tonight is the second of the week for the Panthers, they having defeated Montana State in a hectec struggle on the same floor Monday night, 38-37. Next Saturday night the Panthers wind up their week's card by engaging Georgetown University on the Stadium court. The probable lineup:

Pitt.		Carnegie Tech.
Hyatt (C)	F	(C) Nease
Zehfuss	F	Webster
L. Cohen	C	Merten
Wrobleski	G	Schumacher
Arture	G	High

COACHES TO PLAY

Probably the most colorful preliminary game of the season will be played before the annual Duquesne University Alumni game which is scheduled for Friday night in Bluff gymnasium. An all-star cage combination will have in its lineup, Head Coach Elmer Layden and Joe Bach, line coach, football mentors; Chick Davies, basketball coach; John D. Holahan, graduate manager of athletics and Brue Jackson, trainer. The all-stars will be pitted against a quintet chosen from the undefeated Duquesne football team. The Alumni team will play the varsity.

ALLEGHENY AT WAYNESBURG

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Jan. 8.—Members of the Waynesburg College basketball team will engage in their second game of the present week tomorrow when they play Allegheny College here. The game will mark the first appearance of an Allegheny cage team in Greene County for a number of years and much interest is being shown in the contest.

Frank Wolf, coach of the Yellow Jackets, gave his men a long drill yesterday to eliminate faults which appeared in the Duquesne University struggle here Monday night.

HARPSTER MAY COACH GENEVA

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Jan. 8.—Howard Harpster, all-America quarterback at Carnegie Tech in 1928 and coach of the undefeated eleven at Shady Side Academy last fall, will be the new coach at Geneva College next season if present negotiations go through.

The local authorities are understood to have been in touch with Harpster for several weeks and he has their offer under consideration.

REISELT NEARS CUE TITLE

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Otto Reiselt, the smiling little German billiard-master from Philadelphia, once again is sitting on top of the three-cushion world with his second national title within his grasp.

Five of the world's best angle players have already succumbed to Reiselt's cool, consistent type of play. Today the Philadelphian found Gus Copulos, a battler from Detroit, barring his way to his sixth consecutive victory. A win would assure Reiselt of at least a tie for the title with only Champion Johnny Layton in his path to a clear claim. The schedule brings Reiselt and Layton together Friday, in one of the last two blocks.

Reiselt's latest victory was at the expense of Allen Hall, youthful St. Louis star, who was defeated 50 to 42 in yesterday's feature.

Layton remained in the running by rallying to defeat Copulos, 50 to 34, in 49 innings. Augie Kieckhefer improved his position with a decisive 50-to-23 victory over Harry Schuler, of New York. Tiff Denton, of Kansas City, went out of the cellar with a 50-to-31 victory over Charley Jordan, Los Angeles broker-billiard player, in a battle of losers. The standing:

	W.	L.		W.	L.
Reiselt	5	0	Copulos	2	2
Layton	4	1	Denton	1	3
Hall	2	1	Jordan	0	5
Kieckhefer	2	1	Schuler	0	5

SOCKO, PIRATE MASCOT, TAKES UP AVIATION

With almost four hours of actual flying time to his credit, Caleb (Socko) McCarey, well-known member of the Pirate family, is well on his way to become an aviator. Socko is one of the students of the school operated by Joe Dawson, former Pirate pitcher.

Socko McCarey

Caleb this week started to night school at Carnegie Tech in furtherance of his aviation course. Instructors, including Dawson, are in charge of the lectures. Now Socko has been making fine progress in the practical flying, but at this time of year the young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of baseball, to paraphrase a famous saying.

Well, Dawson observed that Socko was making notes with undue concentration. Finally Joe stepped up to his pupil's desk and saw a conglomeration of angles and lines that did not seem to have much in common with aviation.

Socko had drawn out a baseball diamond and was working on the outfield when Joe brought him out of his reverie with a stiff reprimand.

Georgtown Cancels W. Va. Wesleyan Tilt

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., Jan. 8. —(AP.)—Georgetown University has canceled its game scheduled with West Virginia Wesleyan here Thursday night, Wesleyan officials announced today. The Georgetown coach believed the trip to Buckhannon would endanger the Washington team's chances against West Virginia University and the University of Pittsburgh this week end, it was said.

Wesleyan will open its season against the Franz and Burka Collegians at Clarksburg Saturday night.

Drury to Return To Buc Lineup Saturday

Herb Drury, star center who sustained a broken hand in one of the early games of the season, expects to get back into the Pirate lineup Saturday night when the local skaters meet the New York Americans at Duquesne Garden.

With Andy Spooner, spare goalie, assisting, Herb has been working out here each day this week, and he expects to be ready to resume league battling by Saturday.

Other members of the Pirate squad are in Boston, where they are to oppose the world champion Bruins tomorrow night.

SHIRES STOPS TONY FAETH

ST. PAUL, Jan. 8.—Art the Great Shires knocked out Tony Faeth, former American Association pitcher, in the first round here last night. Two rights to the jaw settled the issue. The first dumped Faeth for a count of nine and the second knocked him out.

The crowd, one of the largest that ever witnessed a show here, booed Shires when he attempted to make a speech from the ring after his victory. He received $1,500 for his efforts. Faeth received $500, on a basis of $300 for signing and $200 per round.

DALY CHARGE FADES

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—The Illinois Boxing Commission today will absolve Art Shires of the charge of having induced Dan Daly, of Columbus, to quit to him in the first round of his professional debut here recently. Testimony taken yesterday led the commission to believe that Daly was not telling the truth when he said he was coerced into "diving" to Shires.

BOSTON GRANTS LICENSE

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The Massachusetts Boxing Commission today decided to grant a license for the bout scheduled here Friday night between Art Shires and Al Spohrer, catcher for the Boston Braves.

Harrisburg Men Out To Retain Ball Club

HARRISBURG, Jan. 7—(AP.)—The Harrisburg Club of the New York-Pennsylvania League has taken steps to insure baseball for this city during the 1930 season. At a meeting of the board of directors last night, agreement was reached to give a one-year option on the franchise to M. M. Dull, business manager of the Senators, and a group of associates.

Under the terms of the arrangements, further details of which were withheld for the present, the local owners retain the privilege of regaining operation of the club at the end of the 1930 season.

Dull and his partners have until January 27 to obtain the necessary financial support for the project. The transaction, in the meanwhile, must be approved by the stockholders of the club.

Dysart Is Beaten In Pinehurst Play

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Dysart, of Pittsburgh, lost his match in the mid-January tournament here yesterday, falling before A. B. Jenks, of Manchester, N. H., formerly Eastern senior champion, by 6 and 5.

R. W. Smith, of Greensburg, advanced to the semi-final, however, by defeating E. C. Keating, of Montclair, N. J., by 3 and 1. In the fourth division another Pittsburgher, Lawrence Barr, defeated I. E. Raymond, of New York, by 2 and 1.

RUTH ASKS $85,000 SALARY OF YANKEES

BABE SPURNS $150,000 FOR TWO YEARS

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Ten years to the day after he signed his first Yankee contract, calling for $10,000, Babe Ruth yesterday nonchalantly rejected an offer of $75,000, the salary paid the President of the United States. At a conference with Jacob Ruppert, president of the New York American League Baseball Club, and E. G. Barrow, its secretary, the home run hitter shook his head when it suggested that the club would be willing to pay him $150,000 for a two-year crop of home runs.

Ruth countered with a proposal that he affix his well-known signature to a contract calling for $85,000 annually for three years. This suggestion, Col. Ruppert emphatically vetoed, declaring that the club would not agree to a three-year contract at any terms, although Ruth pointed out that he had just closed a three-year contract at $70,000 a year.

"NOT ENOUGH"

The matter rested with a difference of $10,000 in money and a year in contractural limits. Yankee officials said that they had made their "top offer" to the Babe and the next move must be made by the player. Ruth said he would leave Saturday for St. Petersburg, Fla., training camp of the Yankees.

The big slugger's comment on the $75,000 offer was that it was "not enough" while Secretary Barrow insisted it was generous, perhaps to a fault.

The big outfielder brought up the question of exhibition games and the club was understood to be willing to make a stipulation limiting the number of exhibitions in which Ruth should be called on to participate. This the Yankees planned to do in any event, as the wear and tear of the extra contests on the slugger's legs were regarded with apprehension last year.

Although he has played 10 years in a Yankee uniform, Ruth has had only three contracts in that time. When his release was purchased from the Boston Red Sox for a price reported to have been $125,000, he had a holdover contract calling for $10,000 a year. This the Yankees took over and he played in 1920 under its terms. For 1921 he had a contract calling for $25,000, and he was signed in 1922 to a document running for five years at $52,500 a year. He then jumped to the forefront of high finance in baseball by signing for three years at $70,000 a year.

At the conference, participated in only by Ruth, Ruppert and Barrow and held at Ruppert's brewery, rather than the midtown offices of the Yankees, the negotiations were opened with an offer to renew the expiring contract for one year at the same figure, $70,000.

BABE INDIGNANT

When Ruth, with a show of indignation, refused the "feeler," Col. Ruppert made his offer of $75,000 a year for two years. The Babe then stated his terms and the conference adjourned with a rejection by Ruppert.

Secretary Barrow said that he had no idea what the next move would be, nor where nor when. "It is up to the Babe," he said.

There was no idea in baseball circles generally that the home run hitter ever will be classed as a holdout. Negotiations as to salary may be continued until the season opens in April, although probably Ruth's name will decorate a Yankee contract long before that time.

Ruth already was baseball's highest salaried performer, his last contract exceeding the amount paid K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, by $5,000 a year. He was, however, slightly under the salary of the President of the United States, but the Yankee officers offered to remedy that.

Jury Rules Bout Not a 'Prize-Fight'

SEATTLE, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Lonnie Austin and George W. (Biddy) Bishop, Seattle promoters, early today were acquitted by a Superior Court jury of a charge of conducting a "prize fight" here October 1 between Leo Lomski, of Aberdeen, and Jack Willis, of San Francisco. The case went to a jury last night.

Bishop declared from the witness stand that the bout was a "sparring match," although he admitted that managers of the two fighters collected 50 per cent of the gate receipts. Bishop said that was "expense money."

Long's Sport Comment

ball, the way I felt. The month's lay-off, the long trip and the change in climate form a terrific handicap."

BASEBALL stars of three decades ago, playing for salaries which were said to be limited by an unwritten agreement among the club owners to $2,400 per season at the highest notch, never dreamed that the day would come when a ball player would nonchalantly reject a two-season contract calling for the record-breaking pay of $75,000 a year, equaling the salary of the President of the United States. Yet that was the offer that Babe Ruth turned down yesterday, with the demand that the sum be increased to $85,000 per season and the contract lengthened to three years.

Babe Ruth.

WHAT is more, the majority of the country's fans probably will line up with Ruth in the demand that he is worth it, not solely by reason of his playing ability as compared with that of other topliners of the diamond, but because he draws it through the turnstiles. Home runs have become so numerous under modern conditions that many of them are farcical, but the Ruth variety still hold such a thrill for the public that they attract to the box office many thousands of dollars each week that would not be expended there if the Babe were not in the games.

The values of home runs has gone up with their number. Ten years ago Ruth received $10,000 for the 1920 season; in 1921, he drew $25,000; from 1922 to 1926, inclusive, he was paid $52,000 annually, and for the last three seasons his salary has been $70,000. The Babe, who will be 36 on February 7, evidently wants to make sure of one more long contract before he begins to fade. Whether the club will take the chance on the extra year is a question. That an agreement will be reached eventually, however, is certain. Then they'll call in the photographers. Meanwhile both the Yankee club and Ruth will receive countless columns of free advertising. Perhaps that feature has not been overlooked by either side in the so-called dispute. Baseball as well as other sports has its ballyhoo men.

WITH Charley Hyatt continuing to stand out as one of the greatest basketball players in the college ranks, it is generally recognized that Dr. H. C. Carlson, Pitt coach, put the finishing touches to his development, but it may not be out of place to pass a word of credit in the direction of the man who laid the groundwork. It was Avy Eberhardt, Uniontown High School coach, who taught Hyatt the rudiments and shaped him for his brilliant college career. And that is only one of Eberhardt's achievements, as he has steadily proved himself one of the best coaches in the scholastic field. He has received offers from several colleges, but Uniontown in his home and that's where he prefers to stay.

Chicago Mitt Card Friday Revamped

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.— (AP.) — With two substitutions made, the program of boxing bouts for the Chicago Stadium Friday night was revamped today.

Jackie Fields, world welterweight champion, will engage Jimmy Owens, Oklahoma City, in a 10-rounder instead of meeting Tony Vaccerali, of New York. Billy Wallace, Cleveland lightweight, replaces Benny Bass, junior-lightweight champion, in another 10-rounder with Danny Delmont, of Chicago. Bass withdrew because of a cold.

King Tut meets Bruce Flowers, the New Rochelle (N. Y.) Negro lightweight, in the principal 10-round match.

HO, HUM! FOULS AGAIN

DETROIT, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—A method for reducing the number of fights decided by fouls is being put forward by Dick Dunn, manager of Olympia. Dunn would have the fighters meet again the following week as an added attraction to another card. Both boxers who took part in the match when ended in a foul would have their purses held up until after the second meeting. If either fighter refused to fight again his purse would be given to some suitable charity.

Gob to Fight Phil Scott at Miami, Feb. 27

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Jack Sharkey, Boston sailor man, will battle Phil Scott, heavyweight champion of Great Britain, in Madison Square Garden's second annual Southern spectacle at Miami, Fla., February 27.

Difficulties were ironed out in a long conference at the Garden last night.

Selection of Scott as Sharkey's opponent was practically dictated by the Boston sailor, generally regarded as the outstanding contender for Gene Tunney's vacated heavyweight throne.

LONDON, Jan. 8.— (AP.) — Phil Scott, British heavyweight boxing champion, is booked to sail on the Homeric one week from today for his bout with the American, Jack Sharkey.

News that the Miami match had been definitely arranged for February 27 was welcomed by the British sporting world. Fight fans are planning to give Scott a hearty sendoff.

AL HERFORD'S DEATH RECALLS GANS TALES

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

The death, a few days ago, of Al Herford in Baltimore recalls to this writer meetings of a half-dozen years ago with the former mentor of the late Joe Gans, rated by many close observers of boxing as the greatest lightweight champion of all time. Together we pored over the scrapbooks and other records of the Old Master, as Joe was affectionately termed by those who knew him.

Herford had been in ill health for some years before his death. He dropped out of the boxing game many years ago and was engaged in a brokerage business in Baltimore. He was married and lived in a suburban section of the city and never even attended the boxing shows. Seemingly his interest in the sport died with the passing of Gans.

MASON OF BALTIMORE

In his day, Herford was the Red Mason of Baltimore, the leading manager of boxers and also the promoter who staged the big matches. For a time he had to operate under the club plan, with the boxers "both members of this club" and the spectators buying "memberships" in the club instead of admission tickets on fight nights. A feature of these shows always was an opening speech by "Uncle Al," as Herford was known to all of the fight followers of the town, and it included reading of the "minutes" of the preceding show.

Many were the stories Herford spun of the great Gans, who was scaling fish in the open markets of Baltimore when he got his first fight in the old Folly Burlesque Theater, which was destroyed by fire a few years ago. Herford spied him and became his manager and piloted him to the lightweight championship of the world, which he won by knocking out Frank Erne in a single round at Fort Erie, Canada, in 1902. Herford also managed Gans in his bouts with Battling Nelson, Terry McGovern and the other greats up to the time of Joe's death.

RELATES GANS STORIES

Many of the best stories told by Herford about Gans had to do with the latter's gentlemanly qualities and his humbleness even in his hours of triumph. For instance, shortly after he won the title from Erne, Gans declined to attend a banquet in his honor in one of the large hotels in Baltimore, making the plea that he would be out of place. At about the same time, he was asked, according to Herford, how it felt to be champion of the world.

"Listen," he told his interrogator, "I'd give everything I have, the title and all, just to have a white boy's chance in the world."

Many such tales are told of Gans in Baltimore, where they point to his memory with pride, and no one told the stories quite so interestingly as his mentor, Al Herford, sitting across the desk in his office and taking his time in the telling of them.

Between Rounds

Sergt. Sammy Baker and Joe Trippe, who fought that great battle at Motor Square Garden last Monday night that still has the fans talking, will be rematched at the same club before the end of the season. Negotiations already are under way in that direction.

Promoter Francis Flynn, of the Moose Temple, reports that his patrons are regarding his final show in the Penn avenue arena, Friday night, featuring George Panka and Harry Williams, heavyweights, in the 10-round main bout, as a sentimental occasion and are ordering tickets in batches to be sure of being able to "sit in on the wake." After this program, Flynn moves to the Columbus Temple Coliseum, where he will stage his first show Friday night of next week. He expects to put over a sellout as his farewell gesture at the Moose.

BRANNON TO BOX SMALLWOOD

Eddie Brannon, flashy Negro lightweight, of the Hill, has been signed to box Chet Smallwood, of Akron, in the eight-round semi-final to the Tony Herrera-Tommy Crawley battle at Motor Square Garden next Monday night. He also has a main bout in the making for the latter part of the month with Ray Kiser, of Chicago, at McKeesport. Johnny Haggerty and Bobby Burns will box the second bout at the Garden Monday.

Frankie Wine boxes Whitey Groshiine at Detroit tonight. Rene DeVos and Gorilla Jones are billed in Cleveland, with Benny Burns boxing Jimmy Evans in another bout on the card. Ted Sandwina meets Jack Gagnon, Andy Mitchell opposes George La Rocco, Humberto Curi boxes Ed Hultgren and Bruno Sala battles Amadeo Grillo in bouts at the New York Coliseum. Vincent Hambright meets Tony LaRose at Cincinnati and Young George Dixon tackles Wesley Ketchel at Long Beach, Cal.

Tickets for the Otto Von Porat-Paulino Uzcudun show in Madison Square Garden, New York, Friday night are scaled at from $1.05 to $5.75. Von Porat is being picked by the wise money at odds of 7 to 5 to win, although Paulino holds a decision over him.

AFRAID OF TUFFY?

Jack Sharkey's pooh-poohing of Tuffy Griffiths as an opponent at Miami next month on the ground that Tuffy isn't good enough may be hot stuff in Boston and New York, but it's a laugh and savors of picking opponents for the terrible Sharkey man to insist on Tumbling Phil Scott in preference to a little guy who really can fight and punch. Scott ought to be fighting semi-finals to Tuffy anywhere, judging from what they have shown in the ring.

Vincent Hambright, of Cincinnati, has been substituted for Young Saylor, of Charleroi, as Tommy Malco's opponent in the opening show at the Coliseum Friday night of next week. Saylor handed Malco a one-sided beating at the Moose Club several weeks ago, but was deprived of the decision, and Malco evidently is satisfied to let matters rest as they are insofer as any rivalry with Saylor is concerned.

Vidal Gregorio and Eugene Huat have been matched for the 10-round main bout at the Arena in Philadelphia next Monday night. In other 10-rounders on the card, Luis Vicentini boxes Baby Joe Gans and Emory Cabana opposes Dino Tempesto.

LIONS OPPOSE GOLDENSONS TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN.

"Ladies' Night" will be inaugurated at the South Side Market House tonight, when the Goldensons meet the Charleroi Lions in the only Allegheny County League game on the schedule. In the preliminary game the Goldenson Vanities will meet the Canonsburg Tiger Girls.

Meyer Goldenson, sponsor of the two teams, has made preparations to handle a capacity crowd at the Market House tonight, as ladies will be admitted free. The Goldensons are the first professional club in the district to inaugurate this policy.

While practically out of the running for the County League title, the Goldensons are eager to finish high in the first-half race and will be determined to check the Lions. The Lions have been making a fine spurt after dropping six straight games, having won two in a row. They may prove a tough assignment for the Goldensons tonight.

Other games on tonight's schedule find the South Side Falcons at Kingsley House in a West Penn League contest; Equitable Life at Joseph Hornes in a Central Pittsburgh League game; East Liberty Y. M. C. A. at Kingsley House in an Institutional League game, and St. Wendelin's at St. Casimir's in a Catholic Lyceum League game.

Dribbles

The Ray Schneiders, Community House and Y. M. H. A. are running neck-and-neck for the title in the West Penn League. The race may not be settled until the closing games on the schedule.

Leo J. Hogan, 30 Lincoln place, Crafton, who died last week, was the man who introduced Dr. Lou Sugarman in professional basketball. While a student at Notre Dame, Hogan sent Sugarman to the South Side Club of the old Central League, where he proved one of the outstanding players of his day.

The Philadelphia Company Girls will open their basketball season tomorrow night when they meet the Blue and Gold Girls of Hazelwood. Saturday the Philadelphia Girls invade Coraopolis Y.

The McKees Rocks M. E. Church team has dates available for games at home and abroad with light first-class clubs. Call Federal 0857-J.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Harry Smith, Harlem Negro middleweight, stopped Pal Silvers, of Brooklyn, in the fifth round of their scheduled 10-round match last night.

How to Play Basketball

What general precautions can be given about dribbling?

Answered by

J. M. SAM BARRY,

Basketball Coach, University of Southern California, Pacific Coast (South Division) Champions.

The chances a man takes in dribbling are: he may fumble the ball, lose control of it and let the other four men on the team remain idle while he is dribbling. The dribble should be used as a team play and not as an individual one. The advantages are in short drives to goal, out of bounds play and in the tip-off play.

Gene Tunney May Undergo Operation

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Gene Tunney may within the next few weeks have to undergo an operation for the removal of a stone from one of his kidneys. The former champion, incommunicado since his return a few weeks ago from a long honeymoon in Europe, could not be reached. However, his former manager, Billy Gibson, said Tunney already had been examined by physicians who diagnosed a slight ailment as a kidney disorder. If x-rays within the next few days indicate a stone has formed, an operation will be performed for its removal, Gibson said.

LOCAL BOOTERS MEET HOLLEY

By TOM BIRKS.

The Pierpoint Motors Soccer Club meets the Holley Carburetors Soccer Club, at Detroit, Sunday, in the first round of the National challenge cup, the game to be played at Packard Park. The secretary of the Michigan outfit kicked in with a telegram yesterday guaranteeing the expenses of the Pittsburghers, but only after the local outfit had called the Holley bluff by offering to guarantee their expenses to come to Pittsburgh, January 18. This offer was made on Monday evening, and Tuesday morning bright and early came the required guarantee. This was followed by a telegram from Secretary Thomas Cahill of the National body, confirming the game.

Their answer to Manager Ekequist's inquiry regarding the locals' expenses was offering to come to Pittsburgh for a sum of $600, which is far above the guarantee for 15 men to make the trip. Ekequist appealed to Secretary Cahill, and the National secretary answered by asking the question: "Why didn't the Pierpoints answer the Detroit manager's letter regarding the $600?"

Holley is a professional club, and if it is unable to draw a $1,000 gate, it should get out of the professional ranks. Pittsburgh clubs are getting fed up on these trips. In the last round the Pierpoints met the Walkerville club, and after being guaranteed around $350, only received $150, the home club telling the Pittsburghers they would pay the money when Pierpoint came to Detroit for the next round.

Pittsburgh soccer writers have been on the rampage again this season regarding the treatment of our clubs, and it is warranted.

U.S. PROSPERITY NOT GOVERNED BY POLITICS

Booms and Depressions Experienced in Past in Reigns of Both Parties

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Business has flourished in the last decade partly as a result of the subsidence of political radicalism in the United States.

Some economists are already beginning to question whether the era of conservative good feeling will be permanent. As a matter of fact, unless business recovery is rapid, they foresee significant political changes in the congressional election next November.

Politics and business will interact on one another. Quick recovery of prosperity will be helpful to the conservative wing of the Republican party, whereas more protracted recession and unemployment would doubtless swell the Democratic vote, and also that of the Republican insurgents.

Political fears are hardly warranted, because the record shows that business prosperity over a long period of years has depended on economic, rather than political conditions. Col. Leonard P. Ayres, of the Cleveland Trust Company, once remarked that over a period of 40 years both major parties had been in office during approximately equal periods of prosperity and depression.

Except for a political change, which would threaten the right of private property, like the Bolshevist uprising in Russia, the real effect of politics on business is slight. But, as Otto H. Kahn has observed, finance is like an old lady with shaken nerves, and is sensitive to fears about bogey men and shadows. Of course, the regulated industries, the railroads and the public utilities, are more directly affected by politics than the unregulated industrial corporations.

PROTECTS PROPERTY

Irrespective of what may be said in legislative halls, the courts have been gradually building up the rights of property. The newest addition to the structure of precedent is Justice Sutherland's opinion handed down this week in the Baltimore Railway case before the United States Supreme Court. Justice Sutherland held that each generation must work out its own conception of a fair return on property, in the light of prevailing economic conditions. "The fundamental principle to be observed," Justice Sutherland pointed out, "is that the property of a public utility, although devoted to the public service and impressed with a public interest, is still private property and neither the corpus of that property nor the use thereof constitutionally can be taken for a compulsory price which falls below measure of just compensation. One is confiscation no less than the other. What is a fair return?"

In seeking to give a formula for finding a fair return on earnings on property value, the justice added: "The problem is one to be tested primarily by present day conditions. Annual returns upon capital and enterprise, like wages of employes, cost of maintenance and related expenses, have materially increased the country over. A rate of return upon capital invested in street railway lines and other public utilities, which might have been proper a few years ago no longer furnishes a safe criterion either for the past, present or future. Nor can a rule be laid down which will apply uniformly to all sorts of utilities. What may be a fair return for one may be inadequate for another, depending upon circumstance, locality, and risk."

EASIER MONEY SEEN

The seasonal easement in call money is a reminder of the widespreading banking opinion that during 1930 credit will be no deterrent toward business prosperity. As a matter of fact, the central banking policy is more likely to be a stimulant to trade.

The financial public thinks in herds. Before the crash, the mere name "investment trust" added a premium above book value to the price of securities. Investment trusts, real and alleged, faced their first real test during the debacle, and many suffered severe shrinkages. Accordingly, public opinion turned against them, and their securities suffered unwarrantably marketwise. Several trusts, affiliated with leading banks and banking houses, have recently reported that the liquidation value is greater than their current market price. A dollar for 80 cents is cheap at any stage of the business cycle.

The reopening of New York as a world capital center is likely to be especially helpful to Germany, which was starved for credit during the bull market days. Dr. M. J. Bonn, German economist, points out in Barron's: "The progress of German industries during the immediate future must inevitably depend on the extent to which Germany can continue the process of fertilizing her industries with capital from abroad. If she can do this and develop and extend her systems of production and distributions, the prospects are by no means unfavorable."

Billion-Dollar Sales Manager Gives Pointers

—By B. C. FORBES—

WOULDN'T you like to learn how to sell a billion dollars' worth in one year?

For having achieved that record, one American has been chosen for the biggest sales job in the world.

I induced him to tell something of how he does it.

RICHARD H. GRANT, for having raised Chevrolet sales from below 315,000 in 1924 to above 1,300,000 last year, has been placed in direction of all the General Motors Corporation's sales activities. This is the most responsible, the most gigantic, the best-paid sales job the world has ever known. Chevrolet sales alone last year approximated a retail value of a billion dollars. General Motors has, in addition to Chevrolet, a long line of other motors as well as domestic refrigeration, electric lighting and other products. This year, too, Dick Grant will have as part of his job the creation of a nation-wide network outlets for radios, the latest field to be invaded by General Motors.

DICK GRANT, a little fellow, was born in Massachusetts 51 years ago with Scottish blood in his veins, graduated from Harvard, tried several jobs before he developed aptitude for selling. He first made his mark with the late John H. Patterson of National Cash Register, and became general sales manager. Next he raised Delco Light from a one-room concern to a national organization. Frigidaire followed—and blossomed equally. Chevrolet needed attention, so Grant was called in.

"It would be interesting to have you tell how to sell a billion dollars' worth of one product in a year," I prodded Mr. Grant. Under further prodding, here are some of his observations:

"To sell a lot of anything, the product itself must, of course, be meritorious in quality and attractive in appearance, and must be priced to give the buyer good value. But that is only part of the problem.

"You must have an adequate number of the right kind of outlets.

"I believe that when any factory decides to adopt a policy of expansion, the sales department must beat the factory to it. Many companies have lost out because they expanded their factories without correspondingly expanding their outlet facilities.

"Then there must be a leadership and a supervision that can develop throughout all the retail outlets not only keen selling enthusiasm, but the most effective business-getting methods. This never is self-created, never builds itself up: it has to be done through leadership, through example, through education, through training, and through persistent effort.

"There must be such sympathy and confidence and loyalty between the manufacturer and the seller of the goods that the keenest desire to sell more is constantly born throughout the whole selling field. Such a relationship inspires and impels man to do things beyond the ordinary.

"Furthermore, in addition to being, through a constant supply of facts, very sensitive to what is happening on the firing line, fast communication must be established between headquarters and selling outlets, and communication back from the selling outlets to headquarters must be just as rapid. Such lines of communication must be an integral part of your organization plan. A sales manager may conceive wonderfully fine ideas, but unless he can put the ideas to work, they remain only ideas, unfruitful, unproductive. Although the sales manager of a large organization must needs spend much time out in the field, he must have developed machinery which will start functioning immediately he gets a worthwhile idea."

Platt Supports McFadden Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Edmund Platt, vice governor of the Federal Reserve Board, appeared before the House Banking Committee today in support of the McFadden bill to authorize the board to permit withdrawal of any state bank or trust company from the Reserve system without six months' notice, as is required under existing law.

When such a situation arises, he explained, the member sometimes retains his identity as a corporation, and continues to draw dividends on the Federal Reserve stock.

Bituminous Coal Production Gains

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The National Coal Association estimates the production of bituminous coal during the week ended January 4 at 10,175,000 net tons as against 7,675,000 net tons the preceding week.

The total production of soft coal for 1929 is estimated at 525,358,000 net tons as compared with 500,745,000 in 1928, and 517,763,000 tons in 1927.

Penna. Loadings Higher for Week

Total loaded cars handled by the Pennsylvania Railroad System during the week ended January 4 were 120,909, compared with 109,011 carloads in the preceding week and 123,633 in the corresponding week of 1929.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Prices improved today in the most active bond market of the new year. Although rates on time money were unchanged during the forenoon, a slightly easier tone was reported and a larger demand for fixed income securities of the investment description turned quotations upward in all sections of the list.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (AP).—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted, in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

STOCK TRADING LIGHTEST IN 18 MONTHS

Prices Flounder Around in Narrow Limits With No Definite Trend Showing

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Trading on the New York Stock Exchange today declined to the smallest volume since the summer of 1928, with prices still floundering around within a narrow trading area, and giving no indication of a definite trend. Gains outnumbered losses, but floor traders continued to provide the bulk of the activity, the public apparently maintaining a complete indifference to the proceedings.

Business news had a little more cheerful tinge. Preliminary estimates indicated a sharp increase in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation in the monthly tonnage report to be issued at noon Friday. Iron Age reported that "steel production has taken an upturn after two months of sharp curtailment and the outlook is for further improvement, although it is expected to be gradual." Directors of the J. C. Penny Company increased the annual dividend from $2.33 to $2.50, and indicated their intention of further increasing the payment to $3 annually in the next quarter. Directors of the Zenith Radio Company omitted the usual quarterly dividend, giving as a reason the need of conserving cash.

CALL MONEY DROPS

Call money renewed at 4½ per cent and again dropped to 4 when the supply of funds far exceeded the demand. The time money and commercial paper markets displayed an easier undertone, but the official rates remained unchanged. Recent weakness of some of the European currencies, particularly sterling, suggested the possibility of a further decline in discount rates.

Much of today's activity was in stocks selling between $20 and $50 a share, although the widest fluctuations, as usual, took place in some of the high-priced issues. Western Union, which dropped 7¾ points yesterday, rallied 5½ in today's early trading. Ingersoll Rand dropped 5¾ and Columbian Carbon 5, heaviness of the latter probably representing the traditional "selling on the good news" following the announcement of a higher dividend.

Public utilities showed more signs of bullish activity than any other group. Pacific Lighting, in which larger dividend payments are looked for, rallied 3½ points. Commonwealth Power advanced 4 points and American and Foreign Power 2. New York tractions also indulged in one of their mysterious advances. Third Avenue Railways, Manhattan Modified Guaranteed, Interboro Rapid Transit and Brooklyn Manhattan Transit all selling 1 to 2½ points higher.

MOVEMENTS MIXED

A good demand was apparent for General Electric, Simmons, General Railway Signal, Collins & Aikman and United States Cast Iron Pipe, while Allied Chemical, United States Industrial Alcohol, Lambert, Gillette Safety Razor, Westinghouse Electric and American Tobacco B yielded 2 to 3 points on a renewal of selling pressure.

United States Steel common, after opening nearly a point lower at 168⅛, crossed 169 and held fairly steady around that figure in the early afternoon.

New Commission Urged by Stone

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—President E. W. Stone, of the Federal Telegraph Company and Kolster Radio, urged immediate creation of a communication commission along the general lines and with the general powers outlined in the Couzens bill.

Mr. Stone is appearing before the Senate committee on interstate commerce now holding hearings on the Couzens bill to create federal communication and power commission. Strong opposition to the repeal of section 17 of the radio law which prohibits mergers among communication companies was expressed by Mr. Stone.

3 More Found Ill Of 'Parrot Fever'

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 8.—Three patients at emergency hospital here are suffering with a disease which their physician, Dr. J. Willis Martin, believes is "parrot fever," it was said today. They are: Mrs. Simon S. Martin, her daughter, Mrs. Edith M. Kalmey, and the latter's husband, Lee W. Kalmey. When they entered the hospital their condition was not considered serious but today Dr. Martin described it as alarming. The family bought a parrot shortly before Christmas and the bird died on Christmas day.

Magnolia Adjusts Gasoline Prices

NEW YORK, Jan. 8. — The Magnolia Petroleum Company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of New York, and other oil companies have made readjustments in gasoline prices in the southern territory similar to those announced last week by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. The readjustments amounted to the lowering of prices at points on or near the seaboard to compete with gasoline brought from the west coast through the Panama Canal.

Holiday Affects Movement of Freight

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Christmas week resulted in the usual sharp curtailment of railroad freight traffic, the American Railway Association noted today in making public its regular weekly compilation of total car loadings.

Revenue freight loadings for the week ending December 28 totaled 638,445 cars, the lowest of any corresponding week since 1922. This was a reduction of 204,038 cars under the preceding week, and a reduction of 29,529 cars under loadings for the corresponding week a year ago, and a decrease of 42,109 cars under the corresponding week in 1927.

Complete reports for the year show that 52,789,789 cars were loaded with revenue freight in 1929. This was the largest number of cars loaded with revenue freight on record except for the year 1926, when there were 53,098,819 cars.

Freight traffic during the past year was an increase of 2,199,902 cars or 2.3 per cent above 1928 and an increase of 1,153,983 cars or 2.2 per cent above 1927.

STEEL OUTPUT SETS RECORD

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The American Iron and Steel Institute estimated that the total steel ingot production for the country in 1929 reached the high level of 54,164,384 tons compared to 49,865,185 in 1928.

The high total reflects the record operations of the early months of the year, which reached a peak in May, when 5,273,187 tons were produced. Productions declined sharply in the last two months of the year. Output for December is calculated at only 2,896,269 tons, the lowest for any month in several years.

Operations in December were 59.07 per cent of rated capacity, compared with 85.26 per cent in December of 1928. The average for the entire year was 88.81 per cent against 85.05 per cent in 1928.

P. & W. V. Asks Bond Issue Authority

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway has asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue and sell $6,000,000 of additional first mortgage 5 per cent 30-year gold bonds, dated February 1, 1930, to finance further construction cost of its Connellsville extension.

The bonds will cover construction of the next 18 miles of the extension.

The road will refund the $2,000,000 short-term notes which was recently authorized in this same connection.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Affected by upturns in Liverpool quotations, the wheat market here scored something of an advance early today. Foreign reports indicated that wheat shipments from Russia would be small. Besides, a fair amount of export business in North American wheat overnight was announced. Opening ⅛c to ⅝c higher, Chicago wheat afterward scored additional gains. Corn, oats and provisions were also firmer, with corn values starting unchanged to ⅛c up, and subsequently continuing to harden.

With Russia apparently fading out of pictures of the wheat market situation, and with prices abroad advancing, Chicago wheat traders found future delivery offerings scarce at times today and the market here tended decidedly upward. Advices current suggested that Russian sales of wheat to other countries were mostly scattered parcels which could not be readily moved back into interior Russia from Black Sea ports, and that the most convenient method of disposal was to sell the wheat for export. In some quarters, predictions were made that Russia will not export a total of more than 10,000 tons.

Overnight trans-Atlantic purchases of wheat from the United States and Canada were estimated today at 400,000 bushels. Canadian wheat in this total was bought for Great Britain, and domestic hard winter wheat went to continental Europe. Furthermore, numerous inquiries from overseas were reported at prices near to a working basis, and it was asserted that Russia was after a cargo of seed wheat from North America.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Price movements in curb market stocks were narrow and for the most part inconsequential today. Trading during the morning was at the lowest ebb experienced in more than a year, the tape moving in a slow and halting manner. Stocks generally sagged a little during the first hour, but rallied toward midday, and few shares recorded noteworthy net gains.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

Investment Companies Show Losses

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE annual reports of investment trust companies, made public during the past few days, have thrown an interesting light on the judgment of many of the country's leaders in banking and investment fields who asked the public to intrust its surplus funds to them during the past year.

In almost all cases the reports have shown depressing results. Income received from the investment of funds has frequently been wiped out by losses taken on securities sold below cost. In almost all cases the market value of securities owned at the end of the year was less than the purchase prices.

The results shown in the year just ended supply the answer to a question asked in this column on September 6. The question was, "What will happen to the investment trusts when and if we have a bear market?"

The Fall of the Mighty

THIS column, discussing the workings of investment trusts during the break in the stock market, was suggested by a prominent Pittsburgh banker. He proposed that it be entitled "The Fall of the Mighty."

During most of last year, after the greatest bull market in history had been under way for an unprecedented length of time, after it had reached heights unknown in the past, investment bankers of outstanding reputation continued to invite the public to purchase the stocks of investment trust companies which were buying into stocks showing dangerously low yields. These investment trusts had on their boards of directors the presidents of giant corporations and bankers of nation-wide reputation.

They sold the public on the fact that the judgment of these gentlemen was beyond reproach. They were at the hubs of wheels of finance and industry. They were supposed to know more about the value of securities than the average individual.

Big and Little Gamblers

WHEN thousands of people lost their savings in the stock market crash they were told that they had no business gambling in stocks when they know nothing about the finer points of investments. But now it is being disclosed that the greatest minds in the business worlds have been almost as badly bitten. They have taken losses, not merely of their own money, but of other people's money.

Examination of the investment lists of most of the organizations show that the stocks of exceptionally good companies have been picked. There is little cause for complaint on that score. But there is cause for complaint about the prices they paid.

Profits from Trading

IN THEORY investment trusts are supposed to offer the small investor a means of insuring himself against loss by the wide diversification of the investment company's holdings. That is, instead of putting $1,000 into a single company which would pay him a return with the risk of something going wrong to cut off his income, the investor was to put his money into a company which holds so many stocks that a depression in a single industry could not interrupt his dividends.

The weakness of many of the recently formed investment companies, as was pointed out in this column on September 6, was the fact that the lists of securities purchased did not pay enough in dividends or interest to yield the investor a reasonable return. The enormous profits to be made in trading in and out of stocks was given as the solution of this problem. All went well until the market break showed that the great financial minds are not much more astute than those of the common herd.

Chance for Profit

BUT a study of the current prices of investment trusts discloses the strangest thing of all about the security buying habits of the public. Last summer investors were literally fighting to get stocks of investment trust companies at a time when they might be paying $100 for $75 worth of assets or else merely buying a pig in a poke.

Today the stocks of many investment trusts have declined to levels below their liquidating value. On Monday the Sun-Telegraph published a list of 15 investment trust stocks which were selling for less than the market value of their holdings. Now the public will not pay $40 for $50 worth of assets.

RIVER TONNAGE SETS RECORD

MARTINS FERRY, O., Jan. 8.—Records for Ohio River traffic volume were broken during 1929, the annual report of District Overseer J. E. Carpenter, whose headquarters are at Dam No. 12, Martins Ferry-Warwood, showing 9,913 craft as having passed that point. The next largest year was in 1928 with 8,294, 1,284 more than 1927.

August set the all-time record with 1,234 boats and barges. The dam was up fewer days than usual due to the spread of rainfall, which kept the river at high stage for a considerable period. Rain totaled 43.73 inches.

A. P. I. Oil Figures Show Sharp Gain

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The daily gross crude oil production in the United States increased 44,600 barrels for the week ended January 4, totaling 2,652,300 barrels, according to the weekly summary of the American Petroleum Institute. The daily average production east of California was 1,951,800 barrels, an increase of 33,500 barrels.

Refineries representing 95.4 per cent of the estimated daily potential refining capacity, operating at 70.9 per cent of their capacity, reported daily average run of crude oil stills as 2,468,300 barrels. Daily average the previous week was 2,541,300 barrels for refineries representing 95.5 per cent of the potential capacity operating at 72.3 per cent of their capacity.

Trans-America Corp. Assets Sharply Up

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8.—Trans-America Corporation revealed in its annual statement assets in excess of more than $1,175,000,000, showing a gain for 1929 of more than $83,000,000. Profits were estimated at more than $90,000,000 by A. P. Giannini, president of the giant bank holding corporation which controls large financial houses on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

The ratio of surplus and undivided profits to capital is shown by the statement to be more than 100 per cent. The corporation was entirely clear of debts at the start of 1930.

Ah, This Is Love!

THERE'S the wistful look
Of a heart in mesh,
And the love of a schoolgirl,
Fresh and fair,
And the love of a boy
For his sweetheart—
All have existed since time began,
But the most wondrous love,
The love of loves,
Even greater than that
Of a mother,
Is the tenderest, intimate,
Passionate love
Of one dead drunk for another!

—Lew Wood.

FRED ALLEN, the "Little Show's" cream of wit, forwards the one about the small-time ham who had been taking treatments at a local hospital for a week. The doctor had given him a tonic, in spite of which the actor had appeared weaker with each visit.

"Have you taken the medicine regularly?" asked the physician.

"Yes, doc," replied the fellow in two voices (he was a ventriloquist).

"It's surprising," replied the doctor, "that you do not respond to treatment when this tonic has built up hundreds of my patients. What is your business, perhaps that has something to do with it?"

"I'm a ventriloquist," said the sick man.

"Good heavens," ejaculated the doctor, "why didn't you say so? No wonder you're getting weaker. Here's a dollar. Go get something to eat!"

HEHEHEH

And Portland Hoffa's current favorite is about the 47th Streeter, noted for his untidy appearance. The lad, who can't afford a bath with his room, appeared on the street with the usual stains on his coat and vest, but there was a gardenia in his lapel.

"What do you think of this," he said to a race track tout as he pointed to the flower in his lapel, "and where do you think I got it?"

"Maybe it grew there," was the retort sarcastic.

TYPES I'M GLAD I'M NOT

PEOPLE who ask you if you have always been left-handed. ....The lad who is invariably out of a job, but who tells others how their work should be done.... People who put the names of plays and movies together like: "Monsieur Beaucaire" who was "Strictly Dishonorable" met "Jenny" and there was "A Little Accident," etc., and clog up your mail with it....And imitators who ape Helen Kane, Libby Holman and others so atrociously the imitated cannot consider it flattery.

OBSERVATION

The latest crusade against the gyp ticket brokers was steamed up after a series of conferences between Brock Pemberton, Arthur Hopkins, Gilbert Miller and Adolph Ochs, publisher of the N. Y. Times, which pledged its support and hinted that after a decent interval, it no longer would be interested editorially in the attractions of the showmen "who did not sign on the dotted line."

This is pretty tough on the producers of two musicals who have been taking a dollar a ticket premium for themselves. The plan to stop ticket speculating, however, will never come to pass until the managers themselves turn honest. One brokerage, to give you a rough idea, pays a certain producing firm $118,000 per year and a Chicago femme broker pays $100,000 per year to the same show company for the "choice seat" privilege.

The slogan being: "Never even give a sucker a break!"

EVENING MATTERS

AMONG Eddie Buzzell's Jewish anecdotes is the gag about the cloak and suiters who were leading merchants in a small Jersey town ruled by the Ku Klux Klan. The dialecticians, fed up with the Klan's abuse, decided to do something about the stitch-ee-ay-shun. Meeting behind closed doors one of them got up and said: 'My frands, I make a motion dot we should stop doong business mit Jones Co. becuz dey don't like de Jewiss pipple de most!"

"I would like to make a commendment to dot commotion," cried another. "I suggast dot ve comtinue doong business wit' Junns end Companeh—but we shouldn't pay dem!"

BY WAY OF REPORT

You probably observed, as we did, the handsome tribute in a recent Sunday Times to Fritz Lieber, the renowned Shakespearean player. It was written by the Times' critic, J. Brooks Atkinson, who set a precedent for that sort of thing by going all the way to Chicago recently to see Mr. Lieber and his Shakespearean company.

Some years ago, however, Fritz Lieber (who is now forced to the road) frequently came to New York City with his repertoire troupe and played at the Lexington Opera House, but none of the local dramatic critics gave him a tumble.

OH, MR. WILSTACH!

RECOMMENDED for F. J. Wilstach's 1930 Simile Dictionary: I. Elinson's: Conspicuous as a man with his hair combed at a Communist Cafeteria . . . . Varied as a star's signature on her photographs in shop windows . . . Stolen as a ham's second bow . . . They drew away from each other like a pair of lovers in a movie theater when the lights go on.

THAT THING CALLED LOVE

You might have read the account of their betrothal in the papers recently. She is a revue headliner and he is a member of a jazz band appearing in the show. Pursued by numerous admirers her name has appeared in the rags often, linking her with this lad or that member of royalty. But her engagements eventually went up like a flapper's skirt over a sidewalk grating.

She just shelved a Count for the horn-tooter, and most of us wondered if that were not a precedent on Broadway. It is all very clear, however, now. The Count had his title, nice manners, good looks and background, but no job. And he let her pay the bills.

And the musicial really loved her. She wasn't sure, though, not even when he gave her a diamond ring.

She decided he was sincere when she learned that the sparkler cost $3,500 and that the lad had made a bargain with the jeweler to pay $25 weekly out of his meager salary for the next three years!

Buffington Urges Marshall Shaft At Valley Forge

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 8. — (Special.) — Judge Joseph Buffington of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday suggested placing a replica of the statue of John Marshall at Valley Forge.

The Pittsburgh jurist broached the idea at the ceremonies unveiling a John Marshall statue in Fairmont Park, a gift made to Philadelphia by James M. Beck, former solicitor general of the United States and now a congressman representing this city.

Judge Buffington delivered one of the addresses, stating that Marshall's career as a soldier has largely been overlooked.

UNSCRAMBLE THESE ANAGRAMBLES

DAILY ANAGRAM PUZZLES

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d," to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

I have been asked to give the height of Eiffel Tower, and thus settle any dispute that may arise. The Eiffel Tower, I would judge is about 1,017 feet tall—that is, 1,017 feet, or, perhaps meters would be a better way to put it. However, I don't want to quarrel about that.

Sterling Citizen Passes In Death of Jos. B. Shea

In the death of Joseph B. Shea Pittsburgh loses a sterling citizen, business life of the city is deprived of one who has been conspicuous in holding merchandising on a high plane and a wide circle of acquaintances is severed from a valued friendship.

Mr. Shea was another of the direct line connection with pioneer mercantile activities of the city, being son of C. B. Shea, partner of Joseph Horne, founder of Joseph Horne Company, of which Joseph B. Shea ultimately became president and of which he was chairman of the board at the time of his death.

Other business interests also called for the expert attention he was able to bestow because of long experience and training through which he gained promotion to higher and higher position until he left the presidency of the Pittsburgh Drygoods Company to become a director of Joseph Horne Company and to succeed his father as its treasurer.

His pleasures were artistic and he had been an influence in the esthetic life of the community as a member and former president of the Pittsburgh Orchestra Association.

An exemplary citizen is gone, but, fortunately, his works survive.

Many Kinds of 'Oil'

The Wise Virgins Had the Kind They Needed. Are you Saving the Kind That You Need?

This picture is published because many people will be interested in the drawing by William Blake, the eccentric genius.

This striking picture shows the angel soaring through the air above, blowing on the trumpet. It shows the Wise Virgins, each going off with an old-fashioned lamp, held up by chains, and well supplied by oil. They didn't have kerosene oil in those days, much less electric lights. They filled their lamps with oil made from the fat of animals, the blubber of whales, or, more often, oil taken from the ripe olive.

You know the old Bible text:

Then shall the Kingdom of Heaven be likened unto ten virgins, which took their lamps and went forth to meet the bridegroom.

And five of them were wise, and five were foolish. They that were foolish took their lamps and took no oil with them.

But the wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps.

While the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept.

And at midnight there was a cry made, Behold, the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him.

Then all those virgins arose and trimmed their lamps.

And the foolish said unto the wise, Give us of your oil, for our lamps are gone out.

But the wise answered saying, Not so; lest there be not enough for us and you; but go ye rather to them that sell and buy for yourselves.

And while they went to buy, the bridegroom came; and they that were ready went in with him to the marriage; and the door was shut.

Afterward came also the other virgins, saying, Lord, Lord, open to us.

But he answered and said, Verily I say unto you, I know you not.

Watch therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh.

There are many kinds of oil that people need. In the Bible allegory, you read about Wise Virgins and Foolish Virgins. Presumably without oil, those Virgins could not go to the wedding, or join in the festivities. The Wise Ones had a good time. This picture shows how they felt.

In those ancient days, oil played a most important part, for without olive oil, in the days of the Greeks and the ancient Jews, and others, life would have been difficult.

They used the oil in cooking, they drank it, they used it for their lamps. And after the bath, which did not occur too often, except among the highly civilized Greeks, who bathed every day, they covered the entire body with oil.

Oil doesn't interest us very much now, except for our automobiles. We press a button when we want a light.

But there are other kinds of "oil" as important to us as that oil that the Foolish Virgins forgot to bring along with them.

There is the kind of "oil" that we call money. It makes things go very smoothly. It makes you order the other man instead of being obliged to obey the order of the other man.

Today money is, in moderation, the oil of life. In excess, it is the curse of life, when it comes to be the only thing thought of.

Make it your business, as you go through life, to save wisely, without stinting or hardship for others, so that you may gradually accumulate enough "oil money" to grease and ease your last days.

There are other kinds of "oil," without which life amounts to little. The most important, of course, is education, or, rather, information. You may have strength, health and money. But without information to make thought interesting and efficient, without education which includes not only reading, writing and arithmetic, but the world of history and of science, you are not much better off than those Foolish Virgins that William Blake shows here.

Separate Them

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Kicking Rugs Around

ANOTHER wing of the White House burned up last week. With hot music.

President, Junior, threw a dance for his raccooned pals.

"Bugs" Baer

But when young people dance they want to hop. So young Hoover imported a jassbo orchestra and invited the neighbors' children to kick the rugs around.

Heretofore, or otherwise, all the White House music has been established by the United States Band which has a cruising radius of three bugle calls a day.

Times have changed since grandma smoked a pipe. Like all other venerable institutions the Marine Band has been outdistanced by the younger set. It ain't nervous enough.

The drummer boy of the Civil War may have been K. O. but he wasn't in tempo.

The spirit of '76 is too slow. Now, the greener generation want the spirit of 100 beats to the minute.

If the music on the night before Waterloo had been broached by a jazz band there would have been no war the next day.

Everybody would have been sleeping.

It's all right to have jazz music in the White House. It's the first time that the night watchman in the Treasury has had company in a long while.

We don't know what the Daughters of the American Revolution will think about it but it gives them a good chance to start the new year with a loud, wailing squawk.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover were there to chaperon things and see that the young folks enjoyed themselves. You can't do both at once. Chaperoning and water don't mix.

There hasn't been so much gayety in the pale bungalow since Alice Roosevelt was a girl about 30 years ago. Maybe, we're wrong.

Anyway, Alice was not one of the young folks at the dance. Neither was Mrs. Gann and the question of chair precedence was demolished by a buffet lunch.

The dance was held in the East room of the White House. Which makes us a traveling companion of Horace Greeley's index finger.

The leaping and cavorting of untrammeled collegians is an improvement on dignified colonial squirming to the unoiled squeaking of a spinet. We would just as soon put walnut shells on a cat's feet and watch him do the stately minuet.

The next time the young folks have a drag at the White House we would like to be there and show 'em real ancestral dignity on a pair of pogo sticks.

To a Rut-Jogger:

To a Crested Popinjay:

—By Herbert Kaufman—

IF you're jogging along in a crowded way,
Stepping the same slow pace each day;
Like an old car-horse with his movements tracked,
It is time, my friend, you were soundly whacked
'Till your eyes are open to the fact,
That the land on either side of the road
Is a virgin field that may yet be sowed.

If you need more space in which to DO
There's plenty of waiting room for you.
In farming, in business, in art, there are still Enormous deserts for wit to till.
What the world most needs are the magic seeds
That are spread as dreams and are reaped as deeds.

But the beaten paths where so many pant,
And jostle and rant, is no place to plant
For high endeavor. Nobody ever
Achieved distinction within a rut
Or by following patterns the past had cut.
And the posted score declares YOU can't Secure success at a bargain rate,
Or snare it with stale and borrowed bait.
You must force a gap through the throttling throng
If you really expect to come along.
But the man who pines, and the man who whines,
Who skulks away from the skirmish lines—
HE isn't worth bothering over a minute;
He's out of the game, and he never was IN it.

THOUGH lions and griffins may charge on your crest,
If truth be confessed, nobody's impressed—
Mere quarterings can't lift you over the rest.
The fact that dim grandsires rode off to war
And rampaged and tore in a wild zeal for gore,
Doesn't count any more;
The days of the snob and LE SANG PUR is o'er.
In these times, even kings are poor, puppety things—
Ermined jumping jacks, jerking on parliament strings.
Your family tree may reach high up in G,
But we're waiting to find out what YOUR branch will be.
It's you, not your FATHER, we're putting on trial;
It's your exploits, not LINEAGE, that reaches the file;
It's the record you've MADE that we count worth the while.
A noble old oak may drop acorns all day.
But that doesn't say
They'll ALL sprout the same way—
A lot will be spoiled by a touch of decay.
You may start in the peerage or start in the steerage,
As the son of a duke or a grimy coal-heaver:
'Twill amount to the same if you're not a believer
In SELF, and are ready to work like a beaver.
The world scoffs at men who can't help to improve it;
It respects only brains with the power to move it.
Don't flaunt coats-of-arms or take pride in beginnings,
Your birth won't advantage or hinder your winnings.

LISTEN, WORLD!

—By Elsie Robinson—

I'VE met up with a good many miserable, muddled people since I've worked at this job . . . including myself.

Mad people, bad people, sad people . . . all of them in some sort of a jam. AND NEARLY EVERY ONE OF 'EM BLAMING SOMEBODY ELSE FOR THAT JAM. ALTHOUGH, AS A MATTER OF FACT, THEY HAD WISHED IT ON THEMSELVES.

Funny, how easy it is to wish trouble on ourselves. And we don't need to DO anything, either. We just THINK ourselves into it . . . dream our way into disaster.

'Jever consider how many things you'll do in your mind that you wouldn't dare to do in real life . . . things you'd be ashamed to have the neighbors catch you doing? Usually it begins when you're bored. Or nursing a grouch. Or getting fed up with things in general. You'd like to start something. But you're afraid. It might get you in wrong at home, or down in the office. People might talk. So you don't really do anything . . . YOU THINK ABOUT IT, INSTEAD.

Surely there can't be any harm in just thinking about a thing?

F'instance—suppose you did pull that row with Bill. Gosh, you'd show that bozo where to head in! You'd give him what was coming to him! . . . And so, for an idle hour, you speculate about what you'd like to do to Bill, and you see yourself, in your imagination, doing it. Then the next day, you speculate a little bit more. You give him two socks on the jaw instead of one. You mention a few more highly personal facts. Presently, you're staging regular knock-down-drag-out fights with Bill in your imagination whenever you have a spare moment...wallowing in your dislike...getting madder every time you think about him. But surely there can't be any harm in that?

Or perhaps you're a sentimental lady with a lot of leisure and a husband who doesn't thrill you as he did once. There can't be any danger in PRETENDING that you're having a flirtation with that stunning man across the hall...? Of course you wouldn't REALLY flirt—you're not that kind of a girl. But, just suppose you weren't married... and suppose he did fall for you...

Or maybe you're sick of being an underpaid cashier in a small bank. Wouldn't it be wonderful if those dollars that pass through your hands were really yours! You toy with the thought . . . you speculate on what a lot of money you could make in the market if you had just a temporary loan of a few hundred . . . you see yourself swelling out in new clothes at some ritzy hotel...

Then some fine day you find yourself on the wrong side of the bars serving a sentence for embezzlement. . . .

Or under arrest for really giving Bill that sock on the jaw....

Or facing divorce proceedings because you and your husband have grown apart. . . .

And you wonder how you got there.

You got there because you THOUGHT yourself there. Those "harmless" meditations were just so much dry rot. . . . spreading insidiously through your character . . . eating away your healthy scruples and standards . . . crumbling your barricades . . . until at last you stood defenseless before temptation and the IMAGINED act leaped into terrible REALITY.

Beware of your imagination! "As a man thinketh so is he!" If you pretend to do a thing long enough, the chances are you'll DO IT!

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

SECTION 3C. INSECTS.

THE insecta are an enormous group; in the rich variety of their forms they surpass every other class in the animal kingdom—indeed, there are more species of insects alone than of all other animals taken together. Butterflies, moths, dragon flies, beetles, gnats, mosquitoes, house flies, blow flies, bot flies, daddy longlegs, bees, wasps, ants, fleas, bugs, lice, termites, grasshoppers, earwigs, cockroaches—these are the most familiar forms, but there are many others.

For the most part they are a host of nuisances. Some it must be admitted are aesthetically satisfying and a few, such as bees and cochineal bugs, and those insects which eat weeds or other insects or those which fertilize flowers have been found actually useful to man, but these are the few bright exceptions in a vast family of bloodsuckers, stingers, spreaders of disease and devourers of crops.

H. G. Wells.

They are a distressful aspect of creation. They are a hard problem for the theologian.

Some of these animals live in water—the larvae of gnats and dragon flies, for example, or the air-breathing water beetles—but the greater number are land-living forms and, like the spiders, they breathe by means of a system of air tubes or tracheae.

They may be distinguished from other land arthropods by their possession of three pairs of walking legs; in addition the great majority of insects have a highly characteristic feature in their wings.

Alone among invertebrates, the insects have conquered the air, unless we consider the gossamer spider who floats along parachute or balloon fashion on his slender threads is also a conqueror.

The wings do not correspond to any of the appendages of a crustacean; they are different structures, sprouting, not from the belly, but from the back.

Typically, there are two pairs of wings—as, for example, in the dragon-flies, where the wings are transparent and delicately veined, in the butterflies and moths, where they are colored and dusted over with prettily constructed scales, and in the bees, where the front and back pairs are fastened together by hooks so that they may beat together more accurately—but this arrangement may be departed from.

In the beetles only the hinder pair is used for flying; the front pair of wings forms a hard, opaque casing that covers and protects the delicate second pair when the latter are not in use. In the mosquitoes and commoner flies, on the other hand, the front pair are the ones which are used as wings or should be used; the hind pair are developed as tiny knoblike structures, the so-called "balancing organs."

Finally, many insects, such as the fleas and the spring-tails, have no wings at all.

A second respect in which the insects excel over other invertebrates is the surprisingly efficient degree of communal organization to which many of their species attain. There is only one other animal—man—which surpasses them in this respect.

There is one consequence of the possession of wings that is worth noting. The arthropods, as we have seen, have to moult in order to grow, and the insects are no exception to this rule.

But it is apparently impossible to moult the skeleton of a wing and then grow it again. An insect's wing is a delicate, tenuous structure; it consists of little more than a double film of chitin with an invisibly thin layer of living tissue in between.

If the stiff outer film were cast off the inner layer would be quite unable to retain any sort of shape.

For this reason, the winged stage of an insect's life is invariably its last. For most of its life it simply creeps and eats and grows; once it has developed its wings it cannot moult and its growth therefore ceases.

During its long childhood the insect is called a larva; in its often brief final stages, when it flies and reproduces its kind, it is called an adult or imago.

The difference of duration between the two periods may be very striking; in some of the mayflies the larva crawls and feeds for two years or more as a preparation for one day of winged lovemaking.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

—By O. O. McIntyre—

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—This has been a theatrical season of "clucks" and "turkeys." There have been only five outstanding hits along with three "left overs" of the season before. The market crash is a convenient alibi, but the truth is the theater has not toed its artistic mark.

Only two of the hits really deserve that rating. The others in any other season would be only fair performances. Some unbelievably bad trash has been offered at fancy prices. And as a result the Rialto for the first time in years is almost completely "cut rate."

I have, along with many others, gone home from the theater after the first act at six plays featuring recognized stars. They struggled bravely with such material as was given to them, but their artistry and personality could not fill the void.

The usual Broadway "angels" have been missing for some time, and as a result any number of productions have been backed by theatrical ticket agencies. One may acquire seats to almost any show in the cut rate markets these days—and best seats, too.

The rise of Joe Leblang is a striking illustration of the sweep of the cut rate business in New York. He is a millionaire many times over and one of the biggest holders of valuable real estate in town. His rise is one of the business romances of Broadway. "To Leblang" a show is part of the language.

He began with desk room in the corner of a Broadway drug store. Today he owns that valuable corner and the drug store is used chiefly to provide entrances to his remarkable cut rate agency in the basement. A dozen policemen are required to keep the crowds in line nightly at theater time.

Like a noisy brokerage office, a long line of clerks stand before the boards—listing attractions in cut rate. As they call out choice seats the takers rush for them. The first come, first served formula is employed.

It is so contagious the entire room for no particular reason is convulsed. She developed the stunt by accident and is now paid $100 a week.

And another Harlem place is a cellar entirely lit by candles, and offers the shadowy outline of a group of moaning singers chanting spiritual dirges—very creepy.

A literary critic discovers that out of the 12 best novels written by Americans the past six years nine were written abroad. Only one was written in New York. He believes that aside from being away from metropolitan distractions, the chief reason is the impetus of having avoided a certain literary clique here. "They have," he says with some heat, "sneered many timorous fledglings out of all desire to write, despite the fact that not one of them has done anything of literary importance."

ONCE OVERS

—By J. J. Mundy—

YOU may pride yourself on the fact that you are not deceitful. You are known to be frank and honest no matter how much pain you cause as a result.

Deceitfulness when it is used harmfully or is unjust to another person is a damnable trait; there is no excuse for it in any case. But there is such a thing as going to extremes in ideas of honesty.

The "brutally frank" person causes a lot of unnecessary pain.

Perhaps he gives us what we need and is good for us. But usually the trouble with the brutally frank is that they do not care to take the trouble to think what might be said with truth and what better be left unsaid.

Most of us need more censure than we get.

If more people would be honest in saying what they think there might be greater opportunity for improvement and direct benefit.

It is not necessary to be deceitful to preserve good feeling. But if criticism should be made it need not be made publicly.

It is the cad who embarrasses others.

No matter how adverse the critical opinion expressed it can be couched in language that is helpful and kindly, without sting and yet be honest.
